THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives in its Horticultural Department a continuous variety of information and suggestions, which in the aggregate is equal to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce and disseminate a taste for Rural Taste every where through the country; and commands to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of purchasers and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains unusually full and trustworthy Market Reports, and devotes special attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN embraces numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and so on, and thus prevents a column or two for the Housewife and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well edited Review of Current Events, and a Synopsis of the Progress of Invention, a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

"The very best ladies' magazine published."—Seneca Falls (N. Y.) Courier.

☞ CHEAPEST AND BEST! ☜

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 20 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any lady book in the U. S.

THRILLING TALES AND NOVELETTES

are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

☞ As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

DR. QUAIN'S
MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few of what I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. I have lots of testimonials and they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of your Pills. Before I had taken them I was a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the, must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages. Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.50 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

SCRIBNERS' MONTHLY for 1876

The publishers invite attention to the following list of some of the attractive articles secured for Scribner's Monthly, for the coming year. In the field of fiction, besides numerous novelettes and shorter stories, there will be

TWO REMARKABLE SERIAL STORIES,
By American Authors.

The first of these, now complete in our hands,

"GABRIEL CONROY,"
By BRET HARTE,

Begins in the November number, and will run for twelve months. This is Mr. Harte's first extended work. The scenes and characters, which the author has chosen from his favorite field, California, are painted with characteristic vividness and power; and the work is without doubt the most graphic record of California life that has yet appeared.

We shall also begin in the January number,

"PHILIP NOLAN'S FRIENDS,"
OR, SHOW YOUR PASSPORTS,"
By EDWARD EVERETT HALE.

The scene of this story is laid in the Southwestern territory, now forming the States of Louisiana and Texas, at the time of Aaron Burr's treason. The characters are of the section which was now American, now French, and now Spanish, and this record of their adventurous lives makes a story of intense and unflagging interest throughout.

A SECOND "FARMER'S VACATION,"
By Col. GEO. E. WARING, Jr.

Col. Waring is now in Europe, visiting, in a row-boat ride of two hundred and fifty miles, one of the most fertile and interesting of the vine growing valleys of Europe. This second series of papers promises to be even more interesting than that with which our readers are already familiar.

CENTENNIAL LETTERS,
Edited by John Vance Cheney.

A rare collection of Revolutionary Letters, mainly from stores in the hands of the descendants of Col. Joseph Ward. They are full of interest, and will be read with a rare relish in connection with the Centennial celebration of the year.

BRILLIANTLY ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES ON AMERICAN COLLEGES,

Written respectively by their friends, will appear during the year. The revived interest in college life makes these papers especially timely, and will be cure for them unusual attention.

OLD NEW YORK,

Elegantly illustrated articles on Old New-York, by John F. Mines, will appear at once, and will attract the attention of all, in city or country, who mark with interest the development of the great metropolis, and affectionately remember the quaint peculiarities of its olden time.

Every number is profusely illustrated, thus enabling us to give our descriptive and narrative articles, an interest and permanent value never attained in a non illustrated periodical. Under its accustomed management the magazine will in the future be devoted, as it has been in the past, to sound literature and Christian progress.

The Editorial Departments occupy over twenty pages of each number and contain Dr. Holland's vigorous and timely editorials, as well as Reviews of the latest works in Art, Literature, and Science.

TERMS:

$4.00 A YEAR, in advance; 35 cents a Number. The 10 vols. complete, Nov. 1870, to Oct. 1875, bound in maroon cloth.....$20.00
do. do. bound in half morocco, 30.00
Vols. begin in November and May. Any of the earlier volumes (I to VIII) will be supplied separately to parties who wish them to complete sets at this rate, i. e., cloth, $2 00; half morocco, $3.00.

Booksellers and Postmasters will be supplied at rates that will enable them to fill any of the above offers.

Subscribers will please remit in P. O. Money Orders, or in Bank Checks or Drafts, or by registered letters. Money in letters not registered, at sender's risk.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. Those painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local care) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

LOCAL AGENTS
WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in such town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments and of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return a dollar to invest one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment with the usual rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue Bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have made the Bonds forever free from taxation, property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will feel a needless zeal a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

TH E TWO ORPHANS.

[Concluded.]

VI.—THE PRISON.

A dreary scene, a prison always is, whatever country it may be in.

This is the Salpetriere, for mendicants and troublesome women, and they are all dressed in similar garbs. They are no longer women with names, but numbers so-and-so.

They are at some heavy, clumsy work, and appear, for the greatest part, to be very careless about it.

Two are seated near each other, and they work as though it were a relief from their wretchedness to be industrious.

Let us hear what they say.

"Ah, young lady; I little thought to have you for a companion in a prison cell when I gave myself into custody. It was you who prompted me to that wise act. Here, in a prison, a thief condemned by my own confession, I am happy for the first time in my life, and, wicked as it is, I am glad to find that I am near you. Oh, do not look at me like that! I know that you are innocent—that you are placed here unjustly; but you are the only human being who ever said a kind word to me—you who saved me from myself!"

"Marianne, I shall go mad! If they do not let me out to find Louise—if I am kept here much longer, I shall not be myself! To be sent to this place as a criminal—I who have always earned my living, who have but one thought—Louise!"

"You are a victim," she said, "and therefore should be happier than I, who am guilty."

"Louise—Louise!" cried the other.

They both looked up as the Lady Superior of the Sisters of Mercy, accompanied by a doctor, now approached.

"Marianne," said the good woman, sweetly, "our friend, the doctor, brings you good news. He has interceded for you, and you are granted a full pardon—he brings it you himself!"

"Yes, yes!" said the doctor—the medical man the reader has already seen speaking to the Countess de Liniere—"you are, at heart, a good woman; I am sure you will make proper use of it. Why do you shake your head!"

"Because, for me, liberty means death. My husband will kill me for having given myself up, and I am here at peace."

The doctor shook his kind-looking head. "I am sorry my efforts end so badly. But there, take the pardon, and do with it as you will! I wish I could help you!"

"I want no help," said the poor woman. "But, dear doctor, if you assist this poor girl," pointing to Henriette, "even you will be a better man than you are."

"Why are you here, my good girl?" said the Doctor, civilly.

"I have done no wrong," she said.

"Your looks are honest enough."

"I have been brought here, I know not why; but I do not care about myself—it is for my sister Louise I am so wretched."

"Where is she?"

"She is blind. We came together to Paris to find a clever doctor, and I lost her almost as soon as we arrived."

"A blind girl! Louise!" said the doctor, "who sings songs; one something about Jacquette and the spring?"

"Oh, yes, yes, yes! Do you know her?"

"She begs under the portico of St. Martin's Church."

"Begs!" cried Henriette, in an agony. "Oh, my poor sister!"

"I will see to her," said the doctor. "I have lost sight of her for several days, but be sure I will find her; and, moreover, I will bring her to you. But tell me something of yourself."

"I was brought here, I know not why. I have done nothing wicked, and I was seized just at the very moment when I heard the voice of my Louise in the cold streets."

"I will obtain information as to what charge you are detained upon, and if anything can be done for you it shall be effected. Be sure of this; that if you are innocent, all my power—which is not little—shall be exerted in your favor; so be of good cheer."

The Lady Superior had said no word, but her gentle face showed how much she was moved by the doctor's words.

And now there was a noise of opening the great door, and an officer entering, presented the lady principal with a paper, which she read at once.

In a moment or two she started, and looked at Henriette.

"She has a powerful and concealed enemy," thought the good woman.

She passed the paper to the doctor, who, after a mere glance, exclaimed, "Transported to Guyane, without trial or inquiry! Oh, this is too monstrous!"

"My poor child," said the Lady Superior, "here is an order for the removal of twelve prisoners from this place to Toulon, on their way to Guyane—your name is one of them."

"Transported? I?" cried the girl. "But I have done nothing; and Louise, Louise—what will become of my gentle Louise?"

"I am hurried," said the officer.

The Lady Superior reluctantly gave the list to an official, and then turned and attempted to whisper a few words of consolation to the terror-stricken girl.

When she had moved away, Marianne, holding her pardon in her hand—the certificate which would open the prison door before her, drew near the poor girl.

Upon Marianne's features was a strange and wonderful light.

"Henriette," she said, "they have spoken untruly. It is not you who are going to Guyane, but Marianne."

"You?"

"Yes; for here is my pardon, which take and pass from the prison as Marianne Frochard; while I, as Henriette Liegeloi, will go far from France—far, far away."

"No, no!" cried Henriette, pushing away the order of release; "it would be infamous!"

"It would be a mercy; for, being pardoned, I must leave here, where I am so unhappy, and go back to my old life, which probably Jacques would kill me. For me there is only peace far, far away from my native home."

"But it would be unjust. I have no right to benefit by your misfortune."

All the other said was but these two words—"Blind Louise!"

The other was conquered, and with an exclamation partly of joy, partly of shame, she thrust the order of release under her dress.

"Henriette Liegeloi!" here cried the officer, before whom eleven female convicts were grouped. "Where is Henriette Liegeloi?"

"Here!" said Marianne, calmly.

The Lady Superior uttered a cry.

The self-sacrificing woman went up to the good-hearted Superior, and said, "Let me expiate my old sins by restoring one who has not sinned to the world, that she may work for her blind sister, and save her from a worse fate than death. You can not denounce me—you know that I am doing right."

"It is well, my daughter," said the Lady Superior. "In this act you will find your reward."

No one spoke; perhaps they were too terribly engaged in their own wretchedness to notice what was done for others; and Marianne calmly joined the rest, so light of heart that she could have afforded to pity the grandest lady at court.

An hour after, Henriette, calling herself Marianne Frochard, had crossed the prison threshold, and the next moment she was hurrying to the portico of the Church of St. Martin.

VII.—LA FROCHARD'S GARRET.

Poor Louise procured Jacques and his mother a really good weekly income by her singing. Yet the family lived in a couple of wretched garrets, if be excepted a miserable loft opening out of one of these rooms.

There was scarcely an atom of furniture in the place, no comfort, nothing bright or homelike—all was utterly wretched and deplorable.

Something moved in a corner.

"Art awake, creature?" asked a sharp croaking voice.

"Yes, madame; but very weak!"

"Weak!—if thou art not strong enough to walk and sing, thou shouldest not be strong enough to eat or drink."

"Nor have I, madame, for several days now."

The reader will have no difficulty in distinguishing these two individuals to be La Frochard and poor, blind Louise.

She had been crushed at last: even the hope of finding Henriette could not resist the ill usage to which she was subjected, and La Frochard had herself, by her cruelty, stopped the earnings of her poor blind victim.

Suddenly she began to shiver, as a step approached the door.

It was Jacques.

The poor creature knew that there was her greatest danger.

She pretended to be asleep.

"Mother," said he, looking with terrible meaning at the poor girl lying on the straw; "mother, we must get the law on our side. Once let her be my wife, and—a fig for the rest. A man has a right to rule his wife, and rule I will."

"Marianne!" whispered La Frochard.

"Dead!" he said; "or as good as dead; and I now have my own way. Ho! who's there?"

"Pierre," whispered the woman.

The fellow did not seem reassured.

"Keep an eye on him, mother! He does not say friend to you and me, and I'm doubtful if he wouldn't help the girl to slip through our fingers!"

The knife-grinder here came meekly into the room, and offered the worthy couple a civil good morning, that neither returned.

He sat down and began munching a crust, but, hungry as he appeared when he began, he soon threw down the food, as he saw his mother drag up poor Louise, set her in a chair, and give her some dirty looking decoction in a basin, and which was intended to bring back her voice.

He managed to pass her, under the pretense of finding a file, and he whispered, "Escape to-night from here. The lock of your left is unscrewed, and a key, that will open the outer door, is under your mattress in this room."

Her face showed no sign of hearing, and she replied by no word.

He could not tell whether she had or had not heard.

"Mother, they are whispering!" muttered the jealous giant.

The merest intimation from her huge pet was always enough for La Frochard.

In a moment she ran at the blind girl, and, despite her entreaties, she dragged her off the steps to the loft, forced the tottering girl into the hole, and turned the key in the ricketty lock.

Meanwhile, Jacques walked up to Pierre, and said, "Cripple, I warn you once more that we belong to a killing family! Keep at arm's length from me! Mother, if I'm wanted, I'm over at the liquor-shop."

He lounged out, a great, strong man, of no use to himself, and a danger to society.

"Thou might, at least, respect him, if thou can not love him!" La Frochard said to Pierre, and looking after Jacques.

He made no reply, but in a little time he rose, and went silently out, leaving the old crone alone.

She sat thinking and planning for some time, and was only shaken from her crouching position by a tap at the door.

"Who's there?"

"Only a young girl."

The old woman opened the door cautiously.

The truth had been spoken. The visitor was only a young girl, and dressed very plainly.

"What's wanted?"

"You have a blind girl here?"

"No."

"Yes: called Louise, who begs under the portico at St. Martin's Church."

By this time she had pushed her way fearlessly into the room.

"What a wretched home for my Louise," she was thinking, "if she were here!"

"No; there is no such girl here."

"But you have been seen with her!"

"I? Well—well—did you know her?"

"Know her! We are sisters!"

"Ah, me! ah, me! Poor thing! Much I wondered why she just withered and withered away. 'Twas for love of thee, darling!"

"She—is—dead?"

"Ay, dead!" answered the old crone.

Without another word, the poor, weary Henriette fell to the ground, insensible.

This was just what old La Frochard wanted.

"Jacques is only across the road," she was thinking; "and she will be frightened of a man and go away quietly. She'll not find me at home to-morrow!"

By this time she had left the room, locking the door after her.

Henriette lay as still as death; the rattling noise came from another part of the place.

Still she did not move.

The lock fell from the loft door, but quite uselessly, for Henriette remained motionless.

And now Louise came softly creeping down the ricketty steps, bent upon escaping from that place, and upon asking the first passer-by to help her to the blind asylum.

Slowly she came toward the straw mattress, upon which she had been lying, and underneath which she knew a key was to be found, which would give her such liberty as the streets afforded.

Better any danger than the increasing horror of that place.

There they were, at last, within a foot of each other, and yet far apart. The blindness of one and the insensibility of the other kept them divided, as had the police when Henriette at last heard the voice of the blind girl, as had the Marquis when Henriette was carried off.

And now even one of the two orphans touched the other, and yet they were as divided as ever.

Louise had no time to hesitate.

She felt the hands, face, forehead of the cold figure, over whom she had tumbled.

"A young woman," she said, "whom they have killed! Help! I must seek help!"

She turned from her for whose sake only she had clung to life, and moved away toward the door.

At that moment Henriette's lips quivered.

Still she never would have found her sister in that place but for the action of La Frochard and her worthy Jacques, who confronted Louise as she was opening the door.

She knew he was there, sightless as she was.

"Drive her back to the room—leave the other to me!" cried Jacques.

Overcome with terror, Louise yielded, and she had even reached the door of the loft, when Henriette's still scattered senses were in a moment gathered at the sight of the blind girl.

"Louise!"

"Henriette!"

La Frochard found herself pushed aside by the blind girl—such power of attraction had the voice of the one orphan upon the other.

In a moment the poor girls were locked in each other's arms.

"Very loving!" laughed Jacques. "And what now?"

"Let me pass!" said Henriette.

"Ha! ha!" yelled the ruffian. "Try!"

Henriette moved forward a step, when she was stopped by a weak but determined voice:

"Don't touch them!"

He went very pale, being at heart a coward, turned, and faced—Pierre!

The cripple went to the dilapidated tinker's truck, and took out a sharp-pointed knife.

"Jacques," he said, "let them pass! You often say we are a killing family—I think at last that I am as bad as the rest!"

"Ho! ho! here is a giant going to fight poor Jacques!"

"Let the orphans pass!"

"Bah!"

"Then let fate decide!" said the cripple, who had been watching to save Louise from danger, and who was now desperate.

He turned half aside, to take off his coat, and the wretched giant took advantage of the cripple's momentary embarrassment to stab him in the back.

But the wound was not instantaneously to be fatal.

In a moment he was on guard; and the two men, so unequally matched, ran at each other, while the wretched woman, La Frochard, fell upon her knees, and began praying aloud for her Jacques.

However, Pierre was naturally far inferior in strength to this brother; one foot was valueless as a support during the encounter; and, finally every moment he became weaker.

A mere quarter minute, and the giant, now laughing hideously, had overcome the trembling cripple, whose right hand was in the clutch of Jacques' left, the point of the knife being downward.

"Ho, ho, King Cripple! thou shalt be bound fast, and shalt see the end of the festival!"

Then suddenly he shrieked.

For King Cripple, by a sudden upward turn of the wrist, had driven his knife mortally into the other's body.

The wretched man leaped back a yard, then, with a final effort of despair, rushed at the cripple, and fell dead at the feet of the poor creature whose whole life had been made wretched by this monster, yet against whom he had committed but a single act of vengeance. It was a lasting one.

La Frochard showed no resistance. She was clutching her favorite child, and calling him all the endearing names in her vocabulary.

"Go, go!" cried Pierre, "or you will be arrested as well as me! Forgive, forgive, Louise! One kiss—one, the first and last! Ah, I loved you—I loved you!"

"We shall see you again!" said Louise, who knew but little of what had taken place.

"Not here," he said, "not here!"

He did not say that he was bleeding to death—that already he was as sightless as Louise herself.

Neither girl thought either him or the wretched Jacques dead.

"We will come back for you," said Henriette. "We will find a home for you."

And then he heard her blind step upon the staircase, and, having saved her, was happy. He had committed but the one crime, and that for the purpose of saving the orphans.

He was dying—and fearless.

VIII.—CONFESSED.

The Countess lay pallid almost as death; her husband writing at a table near at hand, and anxiously watching her.

"Martre, why will you not tell me your secret?"

"I have no secret that you may know."

The following silence was broken by the entry of the doctor.

"Countess," he cried, "I have found your protege—the blind girl, Louise, who sings in the streets."

"Indeed! Where is she?"

"Here!"

"Here?"

Then she battled with herself, but vainly she strove to appear calm.

The doctor had turned to the door.

Meanwhile, the Count was watching his wife.

When Louise was brought into the room, now plainly but comfortably dressed, the poor mother did not move.

Thus they met for the second time.

Said Louise, in a low voice, "The good doctor tells me, madame, you have been very kind to my sister and to me. We are very grateful. We are going away from Paris—far away from this wicked city. But we will always pray for you."

"Going away?" said the Countess, faintly.

"Far away!"

Now Armand, Chevalier de Vaudry, had entered the room with the doctor and blind girl.

He saw the Countess, and read her heart.

"Sir," he said to his uncle, "the secret of the Countess' life, as written in the archives of the police, is here. I did not destroy the leaf I tore from the book."

The Count read the paragraph.

"She was secretly married," he said, "and a child was born! Then—then——"

"It was her father's cruel ambition forced her into the marriage with you, and she dared not admit her relation to De Barsac, who, she feared, would be imprisoned. He was even then in the Bastile."

"De Barsac!" cried the Count. "He died by his own hand the night of his arrest!"

"Ha!" cried the Chevalier. "Then she really became your wife at the altar. Count, her child, whom she found begging upon the steps of St. Martin's, is the poor blind girl who is kissing your wife's hand."

The Count's face cleared. He crossed the room, and, leaning over the couch, he said, "I know all! She is your child; and for your sake I love her!"

The doctor and Chevalier had turned away from this family group, and neither moved until they heard the courteous Count apologizing to them for his forgetfulness of their presence.

Said the doctor, "I will forgive you upon one condition—that you sign a certain pardon for a person sent unjustly to gaol."

"With my eyes shut!" he said, his looks becoming still more brilliant.

He had signed the pardon when he asked for the name.

"Henriette Pleydel."

He wrote it and gave the document to the Doctor.

"By the way," said the pleasant doctor, "I did not tell you that she has contrived to get out of prison; that she goes wherever her foster sister Louise is to be found, and whose sight I know I shall be able to restore; in fact, she is here!"

He went to the door again and brought in Henriette.

The Count turned angrily upon the Chevalier.

"The same," said Armand. "And as I have given you peace of mind, bestow the same gift upon me. This young girl is to be my wife—in France, if you will; if not, beyond its borders."

The Count hesitated for a moment, looked from one to the other, and then, offering his nephew his hand, he said softly, "In France."

And so the orphans sailed into rest and happiness.—Bow Bells.

Daily Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1875.

News and Notes.

It is reported that on Sunday a gentleman from Suncook, while walking through the Pembroke woods, where the recent tragedy was committed, found a pocket handkerchief covered with blood. From this and other indications, it is thought that it may have contained the missing parts of the murdered girl. It was found between the localities where the body and head were found. It was given to the authorities.

The trial of the libel suits of Henry C. Bowen vs. the Brooklyn Eagle has been set for the 17th inst. Theodore Tilton is to be a witness for the defence.

Ship Messenger picked up, last Saturday morning, twenty miles south of Cape Flattery, a part of the pilot house of steamship Pacific, on which was a man named Henry L. Jelly, the only survivor of the steamship Pacific, which sailed from Victoria, Thursday morning, and foundered forty miles south of Flattery at eight o'clock, Thursday evening. Jelly floated on the pilot house until ten o'clock, Saturday morning. Several boats were launched, but all foundered. Jelly states that he was in a boat, which swamped, and with another man succeeded in reaching a part of the pilot house; the other man subsequently died of exposure and was cut loose by Jelly.

The Patriot thinks its political friends who control the lower House of Congress "will now assemble at Washington in a serious and careful frame of mind," after hearing the result of last week's elections. We should think so.

The house of James J. Pratt, a farmer living in Braintree, Vt., was entered on Saturday evening, while Mr. Pratt and wife were in town shopping, by a masked man, who knocked a daughter of Mr. Pratt, about twenty years of age, senseless, and so frightened a young son that he ran to the neighbors. This caused the villain to depart without accomplishing his object, whatever it was, and leaving no clue whereby he can be detected. Miss Pratt was not much injured.

The Keeley motor isn't dead yet, and it is said that a firm in New York, largely engaged in the machinery business, has taken an interest in it, and is constructing an engine of a thousand-horse power for its application.

The new editor of the Lebanon Free Press is grateful for compliments from his brethren, but protests against being called "Frederick,' saying: "We are simply "Fred W. Cheney," with no period after the 'Fred.' We deem it best, in protection to ourselves, to make this announcement at the start, and if necessary, shall defend our position as vehemently as on the first day of our going to school. If we must go into the dark closet of journalism, we choose to go now and have it over with. We may want to run for Senator sometime, and, although it is not at all likely that a Weston will occupy the gubernatorial chair, it is best to guard against every possible contingency."

The democratic candidate for Congress in the first Massachusetts district ran 2000 votes behind his ticket, and the papers calculate that if he could have had two weeks more in which to have stumped the district he wouldn't have got any votes at all.

Horace and Annie Kimball, children of Lewis Kimball, of East Chester, were thrown from a wagon on Walnut Hill, on Wednesday of last week, the wagon passing over the body of the boy, inflicting injuries from which he died soon after being taken to a house near by. The girl was so badly hurt that it is feared she may lose the sight of her right eye.

Up in Vermont they are revelling in the luxury of tipping over into ten feet snowbanks.

In his campaign speeches Gov. Tilden told the people to elect honest men to the legislature, and to look more to the integrity than the politics of candidates. The people took him at his word and a republican legislature is the result.

The building on the summit of Kearsarge mount in, for the U. S. Signal Service, is now completed and ready for occupancy.

Orders have veen received at the Charlestown navy yard from the authorities at Washington to send to the Centennial Exhibition the figure-head of the frigate Constitution, which has so long stood conspicuously opposite the head of the dry dock.

Gen. Hartranft has 14,150 majority for Governor of Pennsylvania.

Full returns from Kansas show that the republicans carry all of the seventy-two organized counties except three. Last year the opposition carried sixteen counties in the State.

A party from Keene took a sleigh-ride from that place to West Swanzey on the 1st of November.

A general religious revival is in progress at Lake Village. Business is being generally suspended in order to give all persons an opportunity to take part.

The latest returns seem to make the New York Assembly stand 71 republicans to 57 democrats.

E. G. PIERCE, Jr., P. M.

TRIAL OF DAVID L. MAGOON,

OF RAYMOND,

FOR THE MURDER OF MRS. MAGOON,

BY POISONING.

TUESDAY.

DR. N. J. OSORIO.—I am a physician in regular practice in Portsmouth. [The question propounded to the medical experts of the day previous was put to the witness and answered in the same manner. In the cross-examination the witness created some merriment by his replies to the questions put, and failed to materially aid the side of the case for which he was summoned.]

DR. T. W. GOULD.—The body of Mrs. Magoon was first disinterred on the 12th day of August. The second time on the 3d of September. On the 25th day of September, (the day of Magoon's arrest) was the first that I heard of strychnia poisoning in the present case. [Hypothetical question again put and a similar reply elicited.] I commenced to interest myself in regard to this case about the first week in August. Mr. Magoon called at my office and inquired of me if I had heard the result of the chemical examination on the stomach of his wife. He added that it was quite important that no should know, as they might find strychnine, altho' he did not put it there.

DR. EDWARD S. WOOD.—Strychnia is heavier than water and therefore sinks to the bottom. When mixed with peppermint it makes a turbid mixture, that is, opaque, and that is due to the fact that in the essence of peppermint the oil is dissolved in the alcohol. [The Doctor produced a number of bottles containing strychnine differently mixed,—in one case strychnia and water; in another, on grain of strychnia, essence of peppermint and water, in another, twenty grains of strychnia, two teaspoonsful of the essence of peppermint and water. It was stated on cross-examination that essential oils dissolve strychnia while absolute alcohol fails to absorb it.] The alcohol contained in two teaspoonsful of essence of peppermint will dissolve one grain of strychnine. [Dr. Wood displayed an intelligence in his replies to the questions of the defendant's counsel that proved him to be a valuable witness in the case, his thorough medico-chemical knowledge being evident at every response.]

MRS. CARRIE HEATH.—Live at Manchester. Know the prisoner at the bar. I met him at my mother's house in Manchester after his wife's death, and he said that he wanted to see Abby Heath and get her out of the way as she had been telling something she hadn't ought to. He said that he loved her and he wanted to get her a boarding place where the law would not reach her.

[Counsel for defence wished an exception noted to the testimony of this witness as the defendant had not received proper notice of the intention to place her upon the stand.]

Counsel for the prosecution here announced that they rested their case, and at this point the testimony was concluded.

The senior counsel for the defence, Mr. Hatch, commenced the argument in behalf of the prisoner, a brief synopsis of which we present:

The County Solicitor in his opening laid down certain points of evidence that he stated he should introduce that would show that the prisoner at the bar was a false husband, a lecherous lover, and a probable murderer. We need not say to you that they have utterly failed to show this, because you have heard the evidence and it furnishes its own comments. The learned counsel for the State spoke of a "probable murderer," while no one knows better than himself that the law in such cases does not deal in probabilities, but requires that all reasonable doubts must be removed. He also stated that he should show by competent testimony that on the day of Mrs. Magoon's death that she was in better health than usual, about the house attending to her domestic duties, cheerful even to joking until as late as five in the afternoon. The jury were well aware that just the contrary had been shown; that Mrs. M. had been unusually ill for at least three weeks prior to her death she indulged in forebodings, insomuch that she desired her son (who visited her about three weeks before she died) to remain longer with her, asserting that he would not again see her alive; that on the day of her death she was in bed until eleven in the morning, and when called upon at a later hour by a Mrs. Cram (who has testified here she was found so sick and miserable as to call forth expressions of regret from Mrs. Cram that her circumstances would not permit her to remain and assist her;) that her domestic duties on that day were not performed by the deceased, but by other members of the family.

The State is driven to the rack of going back for ten years in the lives of Mr. Magoon and wife to prove them to have been unhappy. The counsel then took up the relations of the prisoner with Abigail J. Heath and showed how unreliable and worthless a woman she was, arguing that if the defendant had sinned with her, he was but repeating the offences of others, even of Biblical note; and while he would not attempt to palliate or excuse it, it must be remembered that the prisoner is not on trial for fornication, and it is not to be considered save as it points to something else that helps form a chain of evidence. The theory of the woman having died from poisoning by strychnia, was next discussed and the testimony recapitulated to prove that none of the symptoms were present.

Two witnesses the State had failed to call —Cora Roberts, who assisted her grandmother, the deceased, during a portion of the day of her death, and Nathan Magoon, who had a shop overhead. These were not summoned because they would not serve the cause of the prosecution. Thus, the State ceases to be the protector of this man, and it causes the contest to be an unequal one. This defendant has been locked up for the past two or three months, with meagre opportunities to consult his counsel and prepare his defence, while the State had every facility that it chose to use. The testimony of Mrs. Paulina Roberts in regard to the condition of the body after death is not sustained by any other save that of her husband. On the other hand, all the testimony (save this) is to the effect that the hands were flexible and the features calm and peaceful.

An array of experts have been summoned and the question framed for the occasion. Not one of the gentlemen who compose this medical conclave would have dared to have gone upon the stand and answered a question prepared without any arrangement. The careless and unmethodical manner in which the remains were taken up was alluded to. Experts are very apt to appear as lawyers trying to make good their side of the case, and therefore are not impartial witnesses.

He dwelt at length upon the testimony of the experts and the doubts that might reasonably exist in reference to the conclusions that they reached. Admitting for the moment that the testimony of these experts is correct, and that strychnia was found in the body of the deceased, who put it there? A bottle nearly full of strychnine was found in Mrs. Magoon's pillow a twelve-month after the death of Mrs. M. Would the prisoner at the bar with the memory of murder in his mind add the fear of the vengeance of the law before him, have allowed this silent witness to exist any length of time when a hurried dash against a stone wall and a shovel or a hoe would have obliterated it forever. It was not until after Mary Jane Magoon had informed her father-in-law of the discovery of the strychnia that he let fall the remark hat "it is possible that strychnia may be found in the stomach, but God knows I did not put it there." There is not a particle of evidence to sustain the charge in the indictment that David L. Magoon poisoned his wife, and yet that is the question upon which your verdict must turn. If we follow the evidence we will see that everything connected with the procuring of the peppermint (which was at the particular request of Mrs. Magoon,) and its preparation was performed in the most open and unconcealed manner, so that had there been any manifestation with any improper or poisonous substance it would undoubtedly have been detected by one or all of the witnesses who were present at the time when he prepared it. It is true that the complained of its being bitter, but it is in evidence that she frequently made such complaints of the liquids she drank.

If it is true that Magoon poisoned his wife, he courted publicity. When he had such ample opportunity to put his wife out of the way, would he have embraced such a moment as that which appears. The circumstances attending the death-bed scene, together with those succeeding in the evening and prior to the funeral were detailed and argued as showing no intention of concealment.

The conduct of the prisoner after the death of his wife was next considered. There is no evidence that he betrayed any fear of exposure of crime, or that his intercourse with Mrs. Abby J. Heath was any more frequent than before.

The conduct of the defendant on the witness stand was alluded to and the jury were asked to remember the favorable bearing of the accused. The work of laying before the jury and arguing upon the evidence that had been produced was one of supererogation, as it was sufficient to leave it to their intelligence. Two hours and seventeen minutes were occupied in this plea during which time the audience, although crowded, was very quiet and attentive.

AFTERNOON.

District Attorney Lewis W. Clark delivered the closing argument for the State. He commenced his remarks by asserting that the case must be tried by what has been proved. Also that what might have been said by the learned counsel or what may be said by myself must not weigh at all in your minds unless it accords with the testimony. We did not call Nathan Magoon because he is the son of the prisoner at the bar, a forbearance that you can readily appreciate. We are here in our capacity as officers of the State to discharge an unpleasant duty—that of arraigning one of our fellow-men on a charge of murder and trying him therefor. The indictment charges that on the 31st day of August, 1874, Mehitable J. Magoon came to her death by poison administered to her by her husband, David L. Magoon. Upon the first point,—that deceased came to her death—of course, you have no doubt; on the second point I do not think, Mr. Foreman, that there is one gentleman on that panel that has any doubt that the deceased came to her death by poison from strychnia. On the third point—that the prisoner administered it—there is abundant testimony. The counsel for the prosecution then recapitulated the testimony relating to the circumstances attending the death of Mrs. Magoon, and also thereafter in relation to the rigor of the limbs and the clenching of the hand. About one year after Mr. Magoon's buildings were burned, and about that time a rumor prevailed that there was something suspicious in the manner of the taking off of Mrs. Magoon. There is no question in regard to the identity of the body of Mrs. Magoon and that it was her stomach and liver that were forwarded to Drs. Hayes and Wood in Boston. And my learned brother, right fully, it is true, has attempted to throw discredit upon the testimony of these experts and doubt the correctness of their results in the chemical analysis made by them. There is no possible way for the strychnia to have gained access to the liver as absorbed strychnia unless it had first entered into the circulation of the blood before the heart ceased to beat. The highest talent in the land has been summoned to testify in regard to the results of their learned investigations in relation to the presence of poison in the stomach and other portions of the body of the deceased. And if we are to cast aside the experience and chemical knowledge of these gentlemen then I don't know where we shall be.

There is no indication that Mrs. Magoon administered the poison herself. We do not believe that she did it, notwithstanding the presence of a bottle of strychnia in a pillow found upon his wife's bed. I believe that when David L. Magoon went to Boston, three days before the death of his wife, he purchased the strychnine, and had it with him on his way back when he stopped at Carter's Hotel with Mrs. Heath. It is contended that the prisoner and Mrs. Gardner have been guilty of criminal intimacy, a point upon which I shall not quarrel with my learned brother. But it is possible that although the witness' character and veracity has been impeached, it is possible that she might tell the truth under some circumstances; and it is for you, gentlemen, to decide by the consistency of the statements made by her whether they are correct or not.

In relation to the administering of the poison, we believe that the poison was procured in Boston three days before and placed in the pillow by Magoon himself with the hope that it might lead the public to suppose that she had poisoned herself. The manner of the defendant on the evening of the death of his wife was dwelt upon at some length to prove that he feigned his grief and other manifestations.

Counsel says that it is the wicked who flee and that the prisoner did not seek to escape. It is probable that he was waiting to get his insurance upon his burned buildings before leaving for the West, where he said he thought of going. He also applies to Mrs. Carrie Heath of Manchester to find a boarding place for Mrs. Abby J. Heath, to get her out of the way. In regard to the appearance of the prisoner upon the stand, you will bear in mind that any one wicked enough to commit murder will readily perjure himself. The testimony is necessarily circumstantial, as much evidence that is introduced necessarily is. You are not to leave your common sense behind you when you enter your seats, and applying this we believe that you will decide intelligently in this matter, according to law and evidence. In this case, disregarding whatever I have said, as well as what my learned friend has said, I fully believe that you will take into account only what has been uttered in accordance with the evidence.

The counsel for the prosecution occupied one hour and a half in his closing plea.

Chief Justice Cushing then remarked to the jury that it was too late for them to enter into consideration of the case, and therefore he would refrain from charging them until the morning, when their minds would be fresh and consequently better capable of deciding the points of evidence. The Court accordingly was adjourned until nine o'clock on Wednesday, at which hour the Judge's charge will be delivered to the jury.

The Skating Rink.

The young people are to be congratulated upon the successful completion of the Skating Rink, which though not large, is of sufficient size to accommodate a goodly number of pleasure seekers, and we are assured that it will be enlarged as soon as the patronage furnishes the necessary means. It is an immense comfort to the parents of young children to know that they are amusing themselves in a safe place with the certainty that no harm can befall them, the depth of water at the Rink not being more than two feet. They will find a place always ready for skating as soon as the weather is cold enough to make ice. The pond will be kept free from snow, and flooded to make smooth ice. There will be benches at convenient intervals around the pond to be used for the adjustment of skates.

A plank walk from the road to the pond will furnish easy access; and for the comfort of all there is to be a plain, simple structure kept warm and comfortable as a resting-place for the skaters, where warm coffee or chocolate may be procured. If experience shows that a roof or a high fence is needed, the desired additions will be made as soon as sufficient funds can be obtained. The number of tickets will necessarily be limited to the capacity of the Rink, and the tickets will not be transferable. They will be sold at $3 a single ticket, entitling the holder to visit the Rink at all hours, day or evening. Two or more tickets in one family can be purchased for $2 each. Tickets for sale at Preston's.

Jottings.

Meeting of the Board of Trade this evening at the Common Council room at half-past seven o'clock.

Luther Benson, Esq., the Hoosier orator, who created such a sensation last Saturday and Sunday evenings at the Temple, will lecture again this evening on a new subject at the same place.

"You know me, gentlemen; you know that I would not be guilty of trickery!"—Albert R. Baich, in pleading for Magoon. So glad.

Dragging Out Existence.

The nervous, weakly invalid does not enjoy life, but merely "drags out existence," as the phrase is. Unfitted for the active pursuits of life, and incapable of partaking of its pleasures, to which health alone can give a zest; disinclined to social intercourse, and a prey to melancholy, the valetudinarian is indeed an object of pity. Yet there is nothing in all this that cannot be remedied by that genial alterative tonic and nervine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which supplies deficient stamina, braces the nervous system and overcomes those bodily irregularities to which nervous weakness is most frequently attributable. Diseases of the kidney and bladder, imperfect digestion and uterine troubles are fertile sources of debility. Their eradication however, becomes a matter of certainty when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are systematically used for that purpose. The Bitters likewise annihilate and prevent fever and ague and other debilitating febrile complaints of a malarial nature.

Coughs and Colds are often overlooked. A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs or some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effectual COUGH REMEDY.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

See Deuteronomy, xii: 23. The blood being the source from which the system is built up, and from which we derive our mental as well as physical capabilities, how important that it should be kept pure! If it contain vile, festering poisons, all organic functions become enfeebled. Settling upon important organs, as the lungs, liver, and kidneys, the effect is most disastrous. Hence it behooves all to keep the blood in a perfectly healthy condition, and more especially does this apply at this particular season of the year than at any other. No matter what the exciting cause may be, the real cause of a large proportion of all diseases is bad blood. Now, Dr. Pierce does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums, by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; on the contrary, there are hundreds of diseases that he acknowledges it will not cure; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood-cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden Medical Discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases, as all forms of Blotches, Pimples, and Eruptions; also all Glandular Swellings, and the worst form of Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of the Neck, Legs or other parts, and all Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones, as White Swellings, Fever Sores, Hip-joint and Spinal Diseases,—all of which belong to Scrofulous diseases.

CONFIRMED HIP-JOINT DISEASE CURED.

DR. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—My wife first became lame nine years ago. Swellings would appear and disappear on her hip, and she was gradually becoming reduced, and her whole system rotten with disease. In 1871, a swelling broke on her hip, discharging large quantities, and since that time there are several openings. Have had five doctors, at an expense of $125, who say nothing will do any good but surgical operation.

July 15, 1873, he writes thus: My wife has certainly received a great benefit from the use of your Discovery, for she was not able to get off the bed, and was not expected to live a week when she commenced using it, a year ago. She has been doing most of her work for over six months. Has used twenty bottles, and still using it. Her recovery is considered as almost a miracle, and we attribute it all to the use of your valuable medicine. I can cheerfully recommend it as a blood-purifier and strength-restorer.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,

Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,

Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over TWENTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world.

THRILLING TALES AND NOVELETTES

are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

☞ The publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers. "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a great part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of ever receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can say that they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Gained in flesh and strength, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think she must prove a blessing to thousands and will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

SCRIBNERS' MONTHLY FOR 1876

The publishers invite attention to the following list of some of the attractive articles secured for Scribner's Monthly, for the coming year. In the field of fiction, besides numerous novelettes and shorter stories, there will be

TWO REMARKABLE SERIAL STORIES,
By American Authors.

The first of these, now complete in our hands,

"GABRIEL CONROY,"
By BRET HARTE,

Begins in the November number, and will run for twelve months. This is Mr. Harte's first extended work. The scenes and characters, which the author has chosen from his favorite field, California, are painted with character, stir, vividness and power; and the work is without doubt the most graphic record of California life that has yet appeared.

We shall also begin in the January number,

"PHILIP NOLAN'S FRIENDS,"
OR, SHOW YOUR PASSPORTS,"
By EDWARD EVERETT HALE.

The scene of this story is laid in the Southwestern territory, now forming the States of Louisiana and Texas, at the time of Aaron Burr's treason. The characters lived in a section which was now American, now French, and now Spanish, and this record of their adventurous lives makes a story of intense and unflagging interest throughout.

A SECOND "FARMER'S VACATION,"
By Col. GEO. E. WARING, Jr.

Col. Waring is now in Europe, visiting, in a rowboat ride of 1000 miles, the vine growing valleys of the most fertile and interesting of the vine growing valleys of Europe. This second series of papers promises to be even more interesting than that with which our readers are already familiar.

CENTENNIAL LETTERS,
Edited by John Vance Cheney.

A rare collection of Revolutionary Letters, mainly from stores in the hands of the descendants of Col. John Laurens. These, with other letters, will be read with a rare relish in connection with the Centennial celebration of the year.

BRILLIANTLY ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES ON AMERICAN COLLEGES,

Written respectively by their friends, will appear during the year, to revive interest in college life and these papers especially timely, and will secure for them unusual attention.

OLD NEW YORK.

Elegantly illustrated articles on Old New-York, by John F. Mines, will appear at once, and will attract the attention of all, in city or country, who mark with interest the development of the great metropolis, and delight to remember the quaint peculiarities of its olden time.

Every number is profusely illustrated, thus enabling us to give to our descriptive and narrative articles, an interest and permanent value never attained in a non illustrated periodical. Under its accustomed management the Company is to be, if it can be so devoted, as it has been in the past, to sound literature and Christian progress.

The Editorial Departments occupy over twenty pages of each number and contain Dr. Holland's vigorous and timely editorials, as well as Reviews of the latest works in Art, Literature, and science.

TERMS:

$4.00 A YEAR, in advance; 35 cents a Number. The 10 vols, complete, Nov. 1870, to Oct. 1875, bound in maroon cloth.....$20.00

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

LOCAL AGENTS
WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the purchaser a full one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back its investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is thus authority to issue bonds, and has the sanction of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have appointed its first drawing to take place in the office of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company, will feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Centennial Notes.

The Exhibition will be opened on May 10th, 1876, and remain open every day, except Sunday, until November 10th. There will be a fixed price of 50 cents for admission to all the buildings and grounds.

The Centennial grounds are situated on the western bank of the Schuylkill River, and within Fairmount Park, the largest public park in proximity to a great city in the world, and one of the most beautiful in the country. The Park contains 3160 acres, 450 of which have been enclosed for the Exhibition. Besides this tract, there will be large yards near by for the exhibition of stock, and a farm of 42 acres has already been suitably planted for the tests of ploughs, mowers, reapers, and other agricultural machinery.

The articles to be exhibited have been classified in seven departments, which, for the most part, will be located in appropriate buildings, whose several areas are as follows:

DEPARTMENT.	BUILDINGS.	ACRES COVERED.
1. Mining and Metallurgy,	Main Building,	21 47
2. Manufactures,
3. Education and Science,	Art Gallery	1.5
4. Art,	Machinery Bilding	14.
5. Machinery,	Agricultural "	10.
6. Agriculture,	Horticultural "	1.5
7. Horticulture,
	Total	48.47

This provides nearly ten more acres for exhibiting space than there were at Vienna, the largest International Exhibition yet held. Yet the applications of exhibitors have been so numerous as to exhaust the space, and many important classes of objects must be provided for in special buildings.

An important special exhibition will be made by the United States Government, and is being prepared under the supervision of a Board of Officers representing the several Executive Departments of the Government. A fine building of 4 1-2 acres is provided for the purpose, space in which will be occupied by the War, Treasury, Navy, Interior, Post Office, and Agricultural Departments and the Smithsonian Institution.

The Women's Centennial Executive Committee have raised $30,000 for the erection of a pavilion in which to exhibit every kind of women's work. To this collection, women of all nations are expected to contribute.

The list of special buildings is constantly increasing, and present indications are that their total number will be from 200 to 250. Most of the important foreign nations—England, Germany, Austria, France, Sweden, Egypt, Japan, and others—are putting up one or more structures each, for exhibiting purposes, or for the use of the commissioners, exhibitors and visitors. Offices and headquarters of this kind, usually of considerable architectural beauty, are provided by the States of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Missouri, Kansas, Virginia, West Virginia, Nevada, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Delaware; and it is likely that others will follow the example.

A number of Trade and Industrial Associations, which require large amounts of space, will be provided for in special buildings. Among these are the photographers, the carriage builders, the glass makers, the cracker bakers, the boot and shoe manufacturers, beside quite a number of individual exhibitors. The great demands for space will probably render this course necessary to a considerable extent, especially for exhibitors who have been tardy in making their applications. In the main Exhibition Building, for example, 333,300 square feet of space had been applied for by the beginning of October by American exhibitors only; whereas, the aggregate space which it has been possible to reserve for the United States Department, is only 160,000 square feet, about one-third of which will be consumed by passage ways.

Power in the Machinery Hall will be chiefly supplied by a pair of monster Corliss Engines. Each cylinder is 40 inches in diameter, with a stroke of ten feet; the fly-wheel is 31 feet in diameter, and weighs 55 tons; the horse-power is 1400; and the number of boilers is 20. This engine drives about a mile of shafting.

For the Art Exhibition, the most eminent American artists are understood to be at work, and it may be confidently stated that, especially in the department of landscape painting, the United States will present a finer display than the public has been led to expect. Quite aside from the contributions of American artists, applications from abroad call for more than four times the exhibiting space afforded by the great Memorial Hall. Provision for the surplus will be made in temporary fire-proof buildings, though all exhibiting nations will be represented in the central Art Gallery.

The Machinery Building, like the others, is already fully covered by applications. There are about 1000 American exhibitors in this department, 150 English, and 150 from other European countries—which is about 250 more than entered the Vienna Machinery Exhibition. Extra provision is being made for annexes to accommodate the hydraulic machinery, the steam hammers, forges, hoisting engines, boilers, plumbers, carpenters, etc.

The Secretary of the Navy has arranged that a United States war vessel shall call next Spring, at convenient European ports, to collect and transport hither to the Exhibition the works of American artists resident in Europe. Among the ports thus far designated, are Southampton for England, Havre for France, Bremen for Germany, and Leghorn for Italy, to which, if desirable, others may be added.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1875.

News and Notes.

Gov. Kirkwood receives the largest vote that was ever cast for a candidate for Governor of Iowa. The democratic editors in Iowa are getting discouraged, if we may judge from the following lament made by one of them: "We are inclined to think the best thing that the democrats in Iowa can do is to abandon the hope of ever changing the administration and give the State over to the Methodists for a camp meeting ground. Providence, it seems, foreordained that it should be so, and it is useless for a few faint-hearted democrats, scattered here and there, to longer stand out against a fixed fact.

Steamship City of Waco arrived at Galveston from New York on Monday and anchored outside with a fleet of vessels. At one o'clock, Tuesday morning, it was discovered that she was on fire, and the passengers, officers and crew took to the boats, but the sea was so high no aid could reach them. The steamer was burned to the water's edge and sunk in seven fathoms. It is feared all on board were lost, including seventeen passengers.

Elizabeth Allen, a widow, aged 30 years, of Bartlett, disappeared on Sunday afternoon, and was found dead on Monday afternoon a mile up the mountain, having hanged herself to a tree with a woolen scarf. She had been in an insane asylum heretofore.

The Leader, an independent journal in Wisconsin, recently ran up the republican ticket, and began its leading editorial as follows: "We will commence the weekly services by announcing the hymn:

'Backward turn backward, Oh, time, in your flight,' which you will please rise and sing. Carl Schurz and we have adopted the new style—the pull back. Carl was clear over the political fence, while we were only astraddle, so that while he was compelled to climb, we swung over our off leg, and here we are. Recent moves on the political checkerboard having convinced us that the republican party is not only in earnest in regard to reforming the many abuses that have crept into the organization, but that it also has the ability and strength to accomplish all needed reformations, we have concluded to advocate the principles of that party."

The complete official returns of Iowa show the following vote for Governor: Kirkwood (rep.,) 125,069; Leffler (dem.,) 93,324; Lozier (temp.,) 528. Kirkwood's plurality, 31,745. The total vote is 11,000 or 12,000 greater than was ever cast before, the highest vote before being that of 1872; and Governor Kirkwood received the largest vote that was ever cast for a candidate for Governor of Iowa.

The priests and politicians who endeavored to force the Catholic school question into politics in New Jersey, have afforded the people an opportunity to illustrate their loyalty to the primary American idea of the common school. The effort to defeat the constitutional amendment that guaranteed the integrity of the common school was overwhelmingly defeated, and in Newark, where the priests denounced the amendment from the altars of their churches, a political revolution swept their special friends from power. At the election, in Essex county, Patrick Doyle, the father of the Catholic Protectory bill, which caused the defeat of the democrats, was beaten by his republican competitor, Marcus S. Richard, by a majority of over 200. Mr. Doyle had a majority of 918 last year. For voting in favor of that measure, Mr. Harrington, in Gloucester county; Messrs. Cary and McDonald, in Hudson; Mr. Wyckoff, in Warren; Mr. Van Cleef, in Middlesex, and Mr. Blancke, were all permitted to stay at home. Whenever the issue of maintaining the public schools free from sectarian influences, is squarely placed before the people, it is sure to be sustained by great majorities.

The New York Sun, a virulous democratic sheet, says that the change in votes from last Fall in favor of the republicans has been 113,000. It remarks sententiously: These figures show the drift of the political tide. The philosopher who does not take them into account while attempting to forecast the results of next year's contest leaves out of the calculation a most important element.

A Denver dispatch, October 27, says additional election returns from Colorado show that the republicans have at least two-thirds of the Constitutional Convention. In 1872, the republican vote of that Territory was nine and four-fifths per cent. greater than the democratic, and the republican delegate to Congress had 1,326 majority. Last year (1874) the democratic vote was eleven and one-tenth per cent. greater than the republican, and the democratic delegate had a majority of 2,163. He had majorities in nineteen out of the twenty-six counties; the republicans in but seven counties; and now it appears that the republicans must have carried nearly two-thirds of the counties, the democrats having but one-third. Such sudden and great changes as this are rare, but they argue in favor of the intelligence of the people.

The Italian murderer Galotto and his two accomplices in the horrible murder of the four Italians at Denver recently have been captured at Taos, New Mexico, and are en route to Denver. The whole party will be speedily tried.

The election frauds in Baltimore were in part the result of the invention of a new enemy to the ballot box. The democratic roughs had a system of "shingle" tickets, or smaller tickets inclosed in larger ones. A great many of them were found in the ballot boxes. Fifty-nine more tickets were counted out of one box than was shown by the clerk's books to have been voted. In one instance two or three bunches of tickets were thrown out in the counting which had not shaken apart in the box. Besides the use of the "shingle" fraud, democratic roughs were hired to deceive and intimidate the colored voters. Altogether the exposure of the "shingle" fraud in Baltimore is not calculated to repair the dilapidated fortunes of the democracy.

The prohibition candidate for Governor received 9100 votes, drawing equally from the two parties—the first two figures from the republicans and the last two from the democrats.—Worcester Press.

Charles J. Connor, a deputy sheriff and well-known democratic politican of Concord, was arrested for setting fire to his grocery store, on Main Street, nearly opposite the Phenix Hotel, Saturday night, the 4th. The goods, which were insured for $1,500, are said not to have been worth more than a third of that amount. No great damage was done by the fire, which was confined to some boxes on the upper shelf, and was just beginning to burn up into the ceiling from which the plaster had apparently been removed. Further examination disclosed a piece of candle in one of the boxes which had been on fire. On the other side of the room another box was discovered in which there was a burning candle. The candle was set in a basket and the bottom of the box which contained it was covered with shavings. Pieces of board had been placed around the candle so as to shade the light. The next morning a spike which had been used to tear away the plastering was found, and other evidences of a deliberate attempt at arson were discovered. It was also learned that the curtains which had been left up when the store closed at 6:30 were down at eight o'clock. While it was evident that some one had entered the building, none of the fastenings of the doors or windows appeared to have been tampered with. There were two keys, both of which were in the possession of the proprietor.

As Mr. Charles A. Wiggin of Stratham was alighting from his carriage on Friday, his foot slipped, causing him to fall in such a manner that one leg caught between the spokes of the front wheel, in which position he was dragged a considerable distance, causing it is feared, fatal injuries.

Capt. Allen Young, of the steamer Pandora, which recently returned to England from the Arctic Ocean, writes to James Gordon Bennett that "the result of our expedition has not proved the impracticability of the northwest passage. A more favorable season might permit of success. The pack alone prevented our further progress. Our ship was perfectly equipped and in better condition than when she left England. We still had ninety-five tons of coal on board. Everybody was in good health and spirits, and very anxious to proceed. It was only the obstacles offered by nature that prevented the accomplishment of our enterprise. I do not, therefore, wish to protest against the possibility of making the northwest passage; on the contrary, I believe it will yet be done."

Vice President Wilson was taken suddenly ill at Washington on Wednesday, but is better.

The Oswego, N. Y., Times puts it thus: "Well, we can worry along with both houses of the legislature and a gain of 40,000 votes if the democrats can. If Gov. Tilden thinks that is an 'indorsement' he is welcome to it."

"That decides the November elections," shouted the Cincinnati Enquirer in disgust when Chandler was called to the Cabinet. The Enquirer is the seventh son of a prophet, and has the strawberry mark of prescience on his left arm.—N. Y. Graphic.

A prohibition convention of thirty-nine delegates met at Concord on the 10th and nominated A. S. Kendall of Swanzea for Governor, and J. A. Roberts of Farmington for Railroad Commissioner.

Charles Francis Adams received 2000 votes for Governor of Massachusetts. Sam. Bowles voted for him 1999 times, and the other fellow escaped into Canada.—Brooklyn Argus.

—An apparatus for washing smoke, and thus depriving it of its character of a nuisance, is in operation at a factory at Menilmontant, Paris. A fine shower of water, travelling in the direction of the smoke, and at five times its velocity, is projected into the chimney, where it mixes with the smoke, taking up the soluble gases and precipitating the impurities carried up with the smoke by the draught. The foul water is discharged into a cistern, where it is collected, and a fine black paint is got from it.

—A baby came to a family in Augusta, last week, and a bright five-year-old brother, patting it playfully under the chin, inquired, "Say, how was God when you left?"

The Way to Continued Success.

The Providence Journal closes a well-timed article on the political situation as follows:

In the history of our country, no party has ever had such burdens cast upon it, as the republican party since the fourth of March, 1861. It has crushed out a rebellion, it has reconstructed the State sovereignties of one-half of the nation, it has had to raise and to spend money to an amount which, until the unavoidable necessity made it possible, would have seemed beyond the wisdom of government to attain or the capacity of the people to furnish. It has, during most of the time, for fifteen years, been overwhelmingly in the majority, a condition, save in the time of war, neither desirable nor safe. In peace, it is better every way, for parties, and for the nation, that parties should be pretty nearly balanced. The public verdict is that the destiny of the country in the immediate future shall be committed to the care of the republican organization. The charge will be accepted with a due sense of its responsibility. The party will legislate with caution and a conscientious regard for the rights and welfare of every part, and of the whole country; if in any department there are found deficiencies they will be rectified, if incapable or dishonest men have foisted themselves into power, they will be eliminated from positions of trust and honor. Economy in expenditure will be strictly enforced, the abler and better men will have a new and more potent influence. Looking forward, the party will not hesitate to recur to the past, if, thereby, experience may teach wisdom. Claiming no infallibility in the past or for the future, it will act with the one purpose of advancing the progress, dignity and material interests of the entire country.

So much we may fairly assume. And so much it is the duty of the republican party to perform. It neither can nor should live upon what it has done. In the recent appeal to the citizens, it has been sustained not only for what it promises, but also for what it has accomplished. It has, then, to redeem its pledges. It must deal so far as it has the power, with a democratic House of Representatives at Washington, with the question of resumption; it must in its appointments and elections, put forward men who are recognized as capable both mentally and as to their integrity of serving advantageously the public. If the false and malignant accusations of its opponents will not destroy it, neither will it continue to command the confidence of the people by a careful and intelligent attention to the expectations of that great body of voters desiring nothing but the real and permanent good of all and of every section of the United States.

The Third Term Bugaboo.

[Chicago Tribune]

The elections are over. The tidal wave of 1874 has turned the other way. Finding themselves discomfited on the current issues, and aware that something must be done to stem the reflux of the popular wave which has set in again heavily in favor of the republicans, certain democratic editors are now seeking to alarm the people with the old third term humbug, which was long ago dead and buried. The third term was the coinage of the New York Herald. For the past four years Bennett has been afflicted with Cæsarism as some people are afflicted with the kleptomania and hydrophobia. The royal Cæsar has long been a ghost in Bennett's closet that will not down. If General Grant sneezed, it was ominous of Cæsarism. If he went to Long Branch, up popped Cæsar's ghost. When his daughter was married, the nuptials were in some mysterious manner suggestive of Cæsarism. When Mrs. Sartoris' offspring made his appearance, he was certainly born to the royal purple. Every Cabinet meeting was a secret conclave held for the advancement of Cæsarism. If a negro shot a white man in Mississippi, lo! the ghost of the coming Cæsar. If Mrs. Grant bought a new carpet, of course it was for a third term. Otherwise what would she want of a new carpet? If Fred Grant was allowed a day off, was it not because he was the son of Cæsar? Having the monopoly of this ghost, and, like Prof. Pepper, the faculty of summoning it at his own pleasure, it is not remarkable that young Mr. Bennett, upon seeing victory once more upon the republican banners, should whistle up the old ghost again and behold the air full of sceptres, and crowns, and royal bees, and fleurs de lis. Accordingly the Herald is at it again; again shrieking Cæsarism; again predicting a third term; again beholding President Grant on his march to a throne. This is not remarkable in the Herald, but it is a little remarkable that other democratic newspapers are catching up this stale old war cry and re-echoing it. Even the Cincinnati Enquirer pipes a feeble little plaint over third term possibilities, and the little organs are whistling away at it with all the vigor they have left after their recent rout.

If the democracy have no other hobgoblin than this with which to scare people, they are in a sad plight. Cæsarism is dead, and the tune the organs are grinding is a dirge. The republican party has disavowed it. The republican conventions have pronounced against it emphatically and unmistakably. The President himself has taken special occasion to put his foot upon it. It is dead and buried, and can do no more harm, if it ever did any. It is not creditable to democratic judgment that this "spook" is again brought into the light at the bidding of the sensational New York Herald. It had certain believers for a little time. It has none now, and the effort of these democratic organs to again thrust it upon the people shows the desperation that has seized upon them since the results of Tuesday. The people long ago stripped the hide off, and found an animal whose bray is harmless. There is no more horror in the Herald hobgoblin. Take it away. Cæsar is dead and turned to clay. Let him rest, and give us something vital and tangible. There is nothing to strike at in a ghost.

—A good story is told of an "independent" man who thought on Massachusetts' election day that he would vote for Charles Francis Adams for Governor. Not finding any votes at hand, he cut the name out of the Boston Herald and deposited it in the ballot-box. Now in so doing he accidentally cut out two thicknesses of the paper instead of one, as he intended, and so by mistake this other piece got into the ballot-box, and on it was printed in large letters the word "Cunningham." As this ballot designated no particular office, the tellers were at a loss what to do with it, but finally in making up the returns wrote "For something, Cunningham one."

—Nashville has had a smiling contest, as an adjunct to a Presbyterian church Fair. There were three competitors, young men, and a judge to decide which of them smiled most sweetly. Three trials were had, the contestants standing on a platform in full view of the assembly, with a strong light thrown on their faces. Louis Taillchet was the winner of the prize, which was the privilege of kissing any one of the girls attending the candy counter, where the prettiest daughters of the church were engaged.

—A Silver City (Nev.) young lady, who has a passion for pretty babies, to a little four-year-old angel who has a bran new sister; "I say, bub, won't you give me your baby sister? I love little babies." Young hopeful: "No, I tant." Young lady (winking at her young man): "Why sonny—why won't you give the baby to me?" Hopeful (indignantly): "Fy, he'd tarve to death: your dress opens behine." Painful silence for the next fifteen minutes.

—A Texas Judge is credited with the following decision: "The fact is, Jones, the jail is an old, rickety affair, as cold as an iron wedge. You applied to this court for a release on bail, giving it as your opinion that you would freeze to death there. The weather has not moderated, and to keep you from freezing, I will direct the Sheriff to hang you at four o'clock this afternoon."

TRIAL OF DAVID L. MAGOON,

OF RAYMOND,

FOR THE MURDER OF MRS. MAGOON,

BY POISONING.

WEDNESDAY.

The Court came in at a few minutes past nine, and after the usual preliminaries, Judge Cushing proceeded to charge the jury substantially as follows:

The prisoner, gentlemen, whom you have been trying, stands before you charged with the crime of murder. [Portions of the indictment were here read.] The question you have to try is whether or not the prisoner, by means of poison, did kill Mehitable B. Magoon. It is always said in the arguments of cases of this kind that the prisoner should have the benefit of reasonable doubt. You will not convict this man unless you fully believe him to be guilty. On the other hand you will acquit him should you fully believe him not guilty. There has been a good deal said about circumstantial evidence. As far as the law is concerned we have endeavored not to have circumstances brought before you that you were not entitled to weigh.

The knowledge that we get of the external world is by means of our five senses. We think that we have direct evidence of a the response of these senses. And when a witness tells us that he has had the evidence of either or all of these five senses, that is direct evidence. So you see, gentlemen, that this is a very small part of what we call evidence without qualifying it. We infer one fact of which we have no direct evidence from other facts that we find connected with certain circumstances. It is certain that we are all liable to be deceived by our senses. They inform us that the sun rises in the East and sets in the West. But certain circumstances make us sure that we are going round the sun and that the real motion is our motion. This will illustrate one way in which our senses deceive us.

You have seen the performances of the juggler or the ventriloquist. The voices seem to come from some other source and yet we know from circumstances where they do really come from. The law permits you to receive circumstantial evidence when it is a matter of common observation. There may be, however, matters that are not of common observation, that are pursued by certain persons who make them subjects of special study. You know by your observations how much one may acquire by the pursuit of one object or special branch of study. These, the law recognizes and permits us to summon in order to get the benefit of their special knowledge. Experts testify to you in regard to circumstances, that the common eye and common mind cannot reach or understand. Of course the amount of weight to be attached to the testimony of experts depends on their honesty, skill and experience, of which you must judge.

The first thing you should inquire is whether the crime has been committed at all. If you should find that the deceased, in this instance, died from poison, you should of course then inquire who did it. It is said by the Government that this woman died evidently from poison. The other side says, not so. You may consider whether the evidence satisfies you that there was anybody present at her death-bed who was qualified to testify in regard to death-bed symptoms. You will consider also what the witnesses said about her appearance after death; whether the extreme rigidity that is testified to was natural or not. And you will consider what those witnesses said in relation to her arms being flexible and her hands unclenched. You will also consider the testimony of these experts in relation to the finding of the poison in the stomach, the process by which they arrived at their conclusions, etc. If you should be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that there was poison found in the stomach of course you will then inquire if after all it was not this that caused her death, notwithstanding the absence of death-bed symptoms. You must next inquire how it came there. And here comes in the question of motive. In this matter, Mrs. Heath has been connected with the affair. And taking all the evidence of their adulterous intercourse into consideration, it is for you to consider whether it is entitled to weight with you as bearing upon the motive which prompted the deed; whether the prisoner was not infatuated with this woman Heath and what motives this state of mind might have prompted. Then you must consider whether any motive existed for the theory that Mrs. Magoon poisoned herself. The matter relating to the finding of strychnia in the pillow and all the circumstances thereof are matters for you also to consider. You are to consider the testimony of Mrs. Heath. She stands before you, it is true, without any claims to belief, and yet it is not impossible that she may be able to tell the truth.

It is unnecessary for me to recapitulate the evidence that is before you. The manner in which the Government alleges the poison was administered, as well as the claim of the defence that she died from some constitutional difficulty is to be carefully considered. It is for you to determine whether the questions that were put by either side respectively to the medical witnesses, covered the case in hand according to previous testimony, and whether they sufficiently understand the present case as to qualify them to reply correctly. I have thus endeavored to lay before you the main points in the case, and you are to take this matter all into consideration and to determine on the whole whether the prisoner at the bar committed the deed. You are to have the most careful regard for his rights to see to it that he suffers no wrong. If, however, it should turn out that you find the prisoner guilty, then you have a duty that you owe to society, and it would be fully as wrong for you to shrink from responsibility in this direction also.

The charge of Judge Cushing occupied just one hour, during the delivery of which the falling of a pin could have been heard, so quiet was the Court-room.

The jury after retiring were summoned back by the Court in order that they might be instructed in regard to the degrees of murder. Judge Cushing then informed them that all murder committed by poison, starving, torturing or other deliberate and premeditated killing is murder in the first degree, and all murder not of the first degree is of the second degree.

During the Judge's charge, the prisoner appeared to manifest considerable interest, and his features wore a troubled and perplexed look.

At last accounts, the jury had not agreed.

Circuit Court.

While the Court was waiting the deliberation of the jury a batch of twenty-five or more prisoners were brought up for sentence.

Ambrose Carrigan for breaking and entering dwelling house plead not con. and was sentenced to two years' hard labor in the State Prison.

John Towle plead guilty to a charge of simple larceny and was sentenced to six months in the common jail, and to pay a fine of twenty dollars and costs.

John Cross, plead guilty to a charge of simple larceny. Same sentence as that of John Towle.

Jere. O'Connor plead guilty to stealing a cow, and was sentenced to three years' hard labor in the State Prison.

George B. Nash plead guilty to a charge of breaking and entering; was sentenced to five years' hard labor in the State Prison.

Gilbert Shumway plead guilty to a charge of simple larceny; sentenced to six months in the common jail and pay a fine of $20 and costs.

Andrew L. Wilson plead guilty to a charge of obstructing a police officer while in the performance of his duty. Sentenced to one year in the House of Correction and to pay a fine of $100.

Geo. H. Brown, stealing horse and wagon at Windham; plead guilty; sentenced to five years in the State Prison.

Thomas Lancy, John Hogan, Wm. Mitchell, stealing two overcoats of Leveen & Co., of this city; were sentenced to the House of Correction six months and fined $50 each.

The following prisoners were arraigned: Charles Baker, of Fremont, stealing hens; plea, Not Guilty.

Moses Rogers and Walter West, of Kingston, aggravated assault; plea, Not Guilty.

John Rogers, of Windham, larceny of money; plea, Not Guilty.

John Brewer, of Seabrook, keeping disorderly house; plea, Not Guilty.

The popular landlord of the Imperial Hotel, Washington, is getting famous all over the land. The New York Mail's Washington letter says: The proprietor of this hotel, with the lofty sounding title of "Imperial," Col. James S. Pierce, is first cousin of the late President Franklin Pierce, and a man of large experience in his business. Of striking presence, really imperial bearing, and courtly manners, he is a popular and admirable gentleman with all the aplomb of a pilgrim of the world. He is especially a favorite with the U. S. Navy and Army, and wherever he presides in his professional capacity attracts the first people of rank in the land. Unmingled commendation accompanied him from his former establishments, the Rockingham House, of aristocratic Portsmouth, and Sagamore, of Rye Beach proximity, where Admiral Farragut, at the close of the war, was so sumptuously entertained with civic and military honors. Col. Pierce maintains the prestige of years and success in hotel-keeping, and his present "latch string" may be said to invite to a rich cuisine, finely appointed menage, and more than the average "good waiting" upon his largely patronized house and world-known guests. Among his attaches is the dignified, colored Adonis, "Racks," the night watchman, whose manly stature, six feet four, and athletic figure, would mark him among a multitude as the splendid type of intelligence and worth of his race. He was at the West End, Long Branch, all the Summer.

Mr. William H. Gardiner of this city is to teach school this Winter at Plainfield, Mass.

The Richings Bernard Opera Company, which appear in the Temple Friday night, have been received by the towns where they have played this year with a hearty welcome. In Chelsea, New Bedford, Springfield and other places, the houses were crowded. On Thursday, next they appear in Lewiston and on Monday at Lynn.

Emmons B. Philbrick, Esq., has been appointed Superintending School Committee of Rye.

Gardening for Pleasure is the attractive title of an attractive work by Mr. Peter Henderson, now published by the Orange Judd Company. Mr. Henderson is already everywhere known as the author of "Gardening for Profit" and "Practical Floriculture," the sale of which books has been unprecedented in the history of works upon the subjects of which they treat. This work is prepared to meet the wants of the amateur in in-door and out-door gardening. The work includes fruit, vegetable, and flower-gardening, greenhouses and graperies, window gardening, and Wardian cases. It will be sent, post-paid, on receipt of the price ($1.50) by the publishers, Orange Judd Company, 245 Broadway, New York.

We have received the November number of the "Cottage Hearth," a magazine of home arts and home leisure. Published by Milliken & Spencer, No. 347 Washington street, Boston. Price $1.50 per year.

Mr. Daniel Dalton was the successful bidder for carrying the daily mail between Rye Beach and North Hampton.

About 150 friends of Rev. John A. Goss assembled at his residence on Monday evening to celebrate his crystal wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Goss being in attendance at a lecture. A right merry greeting awaited them on their return home, where the evening was spent joyfully. Rev. S. A. Hutchinson of Kittery, "renewed the marriage bonds," and presents were left, consisting of money, a mirror, easy chair, glass ware and other articles, none conveying more pleasure, however, than the hearty good will and friendship displayed by the donors.

The sewing machine on exhibition at the late Fair of Rebekah Degree, Lodge, was drawn by Mrs. M. T. Betton.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week contains forty-one columns of reading matter, including a fifteen-column story, "The Two Orphans," a full report of the Magoon murder trial, thirteen columns, and thirteen columns of local and miscellaneous matter.

Mr. Edward H. Balch has recently lost three horses by the "epizootic."

—He remarked to his wife last evening, as he left home for the office: "I'll be back by ten o'clock if I don't meet with any serious pull-back." "It won't be well for you to meet any pull-backs, Daniel, serious or smiling, if I know of it," said his better half, in tones which indicated that she meant it.

A CARD.

THE SUBSCRIBER desires at this time to express her sincere and heartfelt thanks to the members of Union Rebekah Degree Lodge, I. O. O. F., and to those other generous and warm hearted friends to whom she is so greatly indebted for the elegant Dinner Set, and most acceptable Cut of Cloth, which were awarded to her at their hands on the occasion of the Odd Fellows' Fair, recently held in this city. Be assured that the remembrance of these most substantial tokens of regard will ever occasion her to remember with deepest gratitude and appreciation the many kind friends who so munificently manifested their friendship and esteem.

RATTAN WARE

MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz. a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT" PANTOSCOPIC

SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured especially for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratched.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and sure. I have not been sick a day since, and I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials you say that they are worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken one half of it I was a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages. Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute solely to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefitted. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

SCRIBNERS' MONTHLY FOR 1876

The publishers invite attention to the following list of some of the attractive articles secured for Scribner's Monthly, for the coming year. In the field of fiction, besides numerous novelettes and shorter stories, there will be

TWO REMARKABLE SERIAL STORIES,
By American Authors.

The first of these, now complete in our hands,

"GABRIEL CONROY,"

By BRET HARTE,

Begins in the November number,

and will run for twelve months. This is Mr. Harte's first extended work. The scenes and characters, which the author has chosen from his favorite field, California, are painted with characteristic vividness and power; and the work is without doubt the most graphic record of California life that has yet appeared.

We shall also begin in the January number,

"PHILIP NOLAN'S FRIENDS,"

OR, SHOW YOUR PASSPORTS,"

By EDWARD EVERETT HALE.

The scene of this story is laid in the Southwestern territory, now forming the States of Louisiana and Texas, at the time of Aaron Burr's treason. The characters are in a state of transition between American, now French, and now Spanish, and this record of their adventurous lives makes a story of intense and unflagging interest throughout.

A SECOND "FARMER'S VACATION,"
By Col. GEO. E. WARING, Jr.

Col. Waring is now in Europe, visiting, in a row-boat-ride of two hundred and fifty miles, some of the most fertile and interesting of the vine growing valleys of Europe. This second series of papers promises to be even more interesting than that with which our readers are already familiar.

CENTENNIAL LETTERS,
Edited by John Vance Cheney.

A rare collection of Revolutionary Letters, mainly from stores in the hands of the descendants of Col. Joseph Ward. They are full of interest, and will be read with a rare relish in connection with the Centennial celebration of the year.

BRILLIANTLY ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES ON AMERICAN COLLEGES,

Written respectively by their friends, will appear during the year. The revived interest in college life makes these papers especially timely, and will secure for them unusual attention.

OLD NEW YORK.

Elegantly illustrated articles on Old New York, by John F. Mines, will appear at once, and will attract the attention of all, in city or country, who mark with interest the development of the great metropolis, and affectionately remember the quaint peculiarities of its olden time.

Every number is profusely illustrated, thus enabling us to give to our descriptive and narrative articles, an interest and permanent value never attained in a non illustrated periodical. Under its accustomed management the magazine will in the future be devoted, as it has been in the past, to sound literature and Christian progress.

The Editorial Departments occupy over twenty pages of each number and contain Dr. Holland's vigorous and timely editorials, as well as Reviews of the latest works in Art, Literature, and Science.

TERMS:

$4.00 A YEAR, in advance; 35 cents a Number.
The 10 vols, complete, Nov. 1870, to Oct. 1875, bound in maroon cloth.....$20.00

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its

are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unrivalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the hurrying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local care) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, and investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a $20 Bond will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter received by the State of New York; is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,800 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

A Corn-Shelling Match.

[Raleigh cor. Vicksburg Herald.]

The tar-heeled conventionist knows a thing or two besides making constitutions. He can beat all creation shelling corn. The other evening a strolling peddler had a newly patented corn-sheller hawking about Raleigh, and was showing a crowd on the street how fast it could shell, when an old member from the mountains walked up, dressed in blue jeans, and a cob-pipe in his mouth, and he said to the peddler:

"I can beat that thing shelling corn myself."

"Well, sir," said the peddler, "I'll give you a machine for nothing, if you do it."

"Good as wheat," says the conventionist, and he searched over the pile for a red cob, made a boy take it to a fire and burn it a little, and then, squaring himself on the sidewalk, he seized the red cob with a regular old plantation grip in one hand, while he held the ear of corn between both legs with the other, and waited for the word "go" from a little man in the crowd, who held the watch to time them.

"Go!" cried the fellow, and at it they went.

But the little peddler was so excited in the start that his sheller got choked, and while he was scuffling to unchoke it the old member coolly got up and pitching his half-shelled ear into the pile, said to the peddler:

"I ain't got the time to shell against that thing, mister; it would make me slow-motioned for life," and he stepped away lively, the crowd shouting and the peddler mad.

"I Love an Honest Poy."

[Keokuk Constitutionalist.]

There's a German who keeps a corner grocery in Keokuk, and he had a call from a little boy the other night who had been sent to get a two-dollar bill changed. The boy received the change and walked home with it, when it was discovered that there was a quarter which was rail or ragged, though good, in the change, and also that the quarter was just twenty-five cents more change than the folks who sent the bill were entitled to. The boy was sent back to return it, and of course the ragged "fractional" was sent with him. Entering the store and holding the ragged money, the boy said: "You changed a two-dollar bill for me, here's a quarter——." Our German friend, seeing the ragged money, and fancying he would have to take it back, interrupted the boy by exclaiming! "Shanged nedinks! I shanged no pills mit you!"

"Yes, you did, and here's a quarter——,"

"Mein Gott, you vas a liar; Nefer in my life did I see sich poys. I dells you, you nefer schanged me mit any pill."

"Why, I was in here not half an hour ago, and you gave me a quarter——,"

"Gif you some quarters—gif you some quarters! Dunderwetter, young fellow! You dink I bin gone crazy mit my brains? I don't gif you some quarters. Now make yourself seldom, ride away, before I put shoulders on you head!" and he commenced to move out from behind the counter.

"Oh, you didn't give me no quarter, hey! All right, squire, I'm just a quarter ahead!" and he started to go out.

"Now," said the German, putting himself in an attitude of admiration, "dot is what I like to see petter as nottings else. I lofe an honest poy, and I shoost pin trying you, sonny. Yaw, it was me what makes schange mit der pill, and I know it; all der same, put I was trying you. Yu peesh a cheney poy, and I gifs you a nice big apples for your honesty," and pocketing the quarter he led the boy back to the rear end of the store, and selecting an apple about the size of a marble, he presented it to the boy, and patting him on the head, said: "Now, run along home, sonny, and dell your folks vot a nice, p-e-a-u-t-i-f-u-l old shentleman it was who gif you dot nice apple."

A Connubial Controversy.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The bolt on the back door had needed replacing for a long time, but it was only the other night that Mr. Throcton had the presence of mind to buy a new one and take it home. After supper he hunted up the tools, removed the old bolt, and measured the location for the new one. He must bore some new holes, and Mrs. Throcton heard him roaming around the kitchen and woodshed, slamming doors, pulling out drawers, and kicking the furniture around. She went to the head of the stairs and called down:

"Richard, do you want anything?"

"Yes, I do!" he yelled back. "I want to know where in Texas that corkscrew is?"

"Corkscrew, Richard?"

"Yes, corkscrew, Richard! I've looked the house over and can't find it!"

"Why, we never had one, Richard!"

"Didn't, eh! We've had a dozen of 'em in the last two years, and I bought one not four weeks ago. It's always the way when I want anything."

"But you must be out of your head, husband," she said, as she descended the stairs. "We've kept house seven years, and I never remember of seeing you bring a corkscrew home."

"O, yes, I'm out of my head, I am!" he grumbled, as he pulled out the sewing machine drawer, and turned over its contents. "Perhaps I'd better go to the lunatic asylum right away."

"Well, Richard, I know that I have never seen a cork-screw in this house."

"Then you are as blind as an owl in daylight, for I've bought five or six! The house is always upside down, anyhow, and I never can find anything!

"The house is kept as well as any one of your folks can keep one?" she retorted, growing red in the face.

"I'd like my mother here to show you a few things," he said, as he stretched his neck to look on the high shelf in the pantry.

"Perhaps she'd boil her spectacles with the potatoes again!" answered the wife.

"Do you know who you are talking to!" he yelled, as he jumped down.

"Yes, I do!"

"Well, you'll be going for York State, if you don't look out!"

"I'd like to see myself! When I go this house goes!"

"Look out, Nancy!"

"I'm afraid of no man that lives, Richard Throcton!"

"I'll leave you!"

"And I'll laugh to see you go!"

Going close up to her he extended his finger, shook it to emphasize his words, and slowly said:

"Nancy Throcton, I'll apply for a divorce to-morrow! I'll tell the judge that I kindly and lovingly asked you where the gimlet was, and you said we'd never had one in the house, which is a bold falsehood, as I can prove!"

"Gimlet!" she gasped.

"Yes, gimlet!"

"Why, I know where there are three or four. You said corkscrew!"

"Did I?" he gasped, sitting down on the corner of the table; "Well, now, I believe I did!"

"And you went and abused me like a slave because I wouldn't say a gimlet was a corkscrew!" she sobbed, falling on the lounge.

"Nancy," he said, tenderly lifting her up.

"Oh, Richard!" she chokingly answered.

"Nancy, I'll go right out doors and kill myself!"

"No, you needn't—I love you still! only—only—you know a gimlet is not a corkscrew!"

"It ain't—it ain't, Nancy; forgimme and he's be happy!"

And that household is so quietly happy that a canary bird would sing its head off if hung up in the hall.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1875.

The Prohibitionists.

As they term themselves, did not show up well at their Concord convention. For five years they maintained an independent organization which accomplished nothing but the betrayal of the republican party by withdrawing from it the support of several hundred voters. If the thirty-nine delegates who participated in a ballot for a candidate for Governor had taken a second thought, their conduct and attitude must assuredly have appeared ludicrous, even to themselves. In 1871, they polled 1000 votes, and it gave New Hampshire a Weston for Governor; in 1872, they polled 500 votes, which availed them nothing; in 1873, they polled 1200, with similar result; in 1874, they ran up to 2100, and again gave New Hampshire a Weston, who usurped powers not belonging to him and deliberately appointed two Senators not elected by the people, for the purpose of retaining control of the State Senate. In 1875, the "prohibitionist" vote dwindled to 900 and the republicans secured the election of Gov. Cheney.

Looking over the varied experiences of the past five years, the "prohibitionists" can hardly boast of any creditable achievement. Obstinacy and pride may cause some of them to retain their organization, but they no longer have a hold on any large number of voters. Certainly, they have power for mischief when sufficiently numerous to indirectly aid in the election of a Governor who will violate his oath of office for a temporary political advantage; or when the editor of their only "organ" will deliberately accept a nomination for an office to which he is ineligible, and will aid in disfranchising those who thought they were voting for a man and not a dummy. Assassins always have a great power for mischief, but that neither produces respect nor admiration. The assassin when detected loses the confidence of even his most intimate friends, although a few (perhaps a majority of thirty-nine) may seek to protect him by their influence and for mutual benefit. No lover of temperance can boast of aiding such a man as Weston to be Governor, or of being an associate political schemer with a person so destitute of the qualities that men delight to honor, that he willingly and eagerly betrays them. If the "prohibitionists" are indeed prohibitionists they will remember that it was solely through their agency that the democratic members of the legislature were able to threaten the repeal of the prohibitory law; and they will not forget, too, that while nine-tenths of the democratic members voted to repeal it, nine-tenths of the republican members voted to retain it. If the present law, which was enacted in 1855, does not prohibit, how would they better the situation by aiding its repeal? It is vastly easier to retain it on the statute books than to re-enact it or any other than a license law, after its repeal. It is evident, then, that the leaders in the present "prohibition" movement have personal schemes to advance, or are bereft of any considerable quantity of common sense. They do not care for a prohibitory law or are blind to reason. A majority of those (or at least a large minority) who have at times voted with them honestly favor prohibition. They see that by their five years' action they arouse but antagonism in the ranks of the party which enacted the present law, while they realize that no considerable element of the party which always opposed it has been converted to their belief. Further following in that direction is therefore useless and fraught with great risk and little satisfaction. Hence the ticket nominated at Concord, unexceptionable though the candidates may be, will have a slim support at the polls; its only intent being to waste votes and to as practically disfranchise those who cast them as if they were at home quietly asleep from the opening to the closing of the polls.

News and Notes.

Several days ago the family of Charles Massey, Sr., who live in Hordsville, Ky., were taken suddenly ill. Physicians pronounced the sickness the effect of poison, and, despite their efforts, the son, daughter and wife died. The well used by the family has been found to be filled with poison, either strychnine or arsenic, but how it came there is not known. No person is suspected, but all things indicate that the poison was put in by human hands. The others of Mr. Massey's family, as well as he, are in a fair way to recover.

Kansas election returns so far show there are but seven districts in which democratic members are elected, and the eleven members who are classed as reformers will most of them in strict party divisions vote with the republicans. There are eighty out-and-out republicans elected.

United States revenue steamer Oliver Wolcott, picked up one of the crew of the foundered steamship Pacific on a raft, thirty miles inside the Straits of Fuca. He says Capt. Howell was drowned from the same raft, and that the Pacific was struck by a vessel under full sail. The steamer California passed in plain sight of the raft while several were surviving. Other vessels also passed in her vicinity. Two boats did get away from the wreck. The Wolcott recovered one or two dead bodies. The steamer Gussie Telfair reports seeing a vessel in distress outside of the Cape, with a Union flag down and her bowsprit gone, which was undoubtedly the vessel colliding with the Pacific steamer. The Telfair recovered three bodies.

The Iowa papers are suggesting the appropriation of a portion of the superabundant corn crop produced the past season as fuel. They say that the corn possesses only a nominal value; that there is no market for it; that it makes a very good substitute for wood and coal, which command a moderately high price; and that the farmers, having such vast stores of it on hand, would save by burning the corn, instead of buying wood and coal at prices now demanded.

The English steamer Abdiel was anchored directly to leeward of the City of Waco. Her mate reports that the fire was discovered about 12:30 o'clock, and the ship appeared to be one mass of flames. The officers of the Abdiel immediately ordered the steam up and their small boats in readiness for assistance. The mate states that he heard cries of distress from five or six persons in the water. One was the voice of a woman or child, clinging to what appeared to be a spar or a piece of one of the vessel's masts. The sea was breaking over the Abdiel. The mate went aft and saw the spar again, but every soul had been washed off. As soon as steam could be made, the Abdiel moved alongside the burning ship as near as her officers dared to go. They state that not a person was to be seen on her, and they do not think it possible for one of her small boats to have been launched. The Waco was rolling fearfully in the storm. Sparks and cinders were flying over and past the Abdiel. The officers of the Abdiel placed lights in their small boats and had them in readiness to launch. Her crew were on the watch for any of the Waco's people, but none were seen or heard. The mate states that the fire on the Waco seemed to spread over the entire vessel in a few minutes. He thinks she was first struck by lightning, which ignited the oil on board, and burned everything on the upper decks before the passengers and crew could have left their berths and reached the small boats.

Providence, Rhode Island, is one of the most reliable republican cities in the United States, and is therefore well governed. Hon. Thomas A. Doyle, republican, was elected Mayor for the eleventh time on the 10th inst., receiving 2287 votes to 846 for Thomas Davis, democrat, and 241 for William H. Barron, "reform." Mayor Doyle received a majority in every Ward of the city, and the city council is largely republican.

Mrs. Polly Champin, while visiting her sister at Centre Effingham, fell down stairs recently, and breaking her neck, died instantly.

The Commercial Bulletin, an unpartisan journal, says: "It is becoming more apparent every month that, though the revenues do not come up to expectations, the expenditures are being reduced below the estimates to a most gratifying extent. In no other way can the steady reduction in the debt that is shown every month be accounted for. For a while it might be explained by merely formal changes on account of funding operations, etc., but the steady continuance of this feature forbids any other supposition than that a system of economy has begun to materially reduce the expenses in every department. The payments by warrants, when compared month by month with those for the corresponding period of last year, lead to the same conclusion. It is probable that Secretary Bristow will have a very gratifying exhibit to make to Congress this Winter."

RATTAN WARE

MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz, a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

E. G. PIERCE, JR., P. M.

TRIAL OF DAVID L. MAGOON,

OF RAYMOND,

FOR THE MURDER OF MRS. MAGOON,

BY POISONING.

The court came in at nine o'clock on Thursday morning, the house being filled with those anxious to hear the result of the deliberation of the jury, who had been locked up for nearly twenty-four hours. It was well known that they had not agreed, but there were rumors afloat of all kinds relative to their standing, one being that they were largely for conviction, another that the majority were for acquitting the prisoner. It was also currently related that the respondent had confessed, and again that new evidence had been found that would, if introduced, convict beyond a doubt; all of these stories being without a shadow of truth. At half past nine, the sheriff walked up to the desk, at the request of the Court, and after a whisper or two stepped back and tapped upon the door of the jury room, which was immediately opened, and in marched the twelve jurymen, having upon their faces a mingled look of dissatisfaction and weariness. After being seated Judge Cushing remarked that as it had come to the knowledge of the Court that the jury had failed to agree, it was proper to inquire if they desired further instruction on points of law, or whether there existed in their minds any matters of doubt that might be dispelled by any enlightenment or explanation by the Court. Upon this, the foreman, James H. Wilkinson, arose and replied that he was uncertain in regard to whether any explanation that the Court might give would aid the jury in agreeing upon a verdict, but perhaps the elucidation of what is implied by the words "reasonable doubt," and "belief," together with a little further knowledge as to what shall be taken of circumstantial evidence, might possibly help them to an agreement. Judge Cushing then proceeded to give them the required information respecting what is implied in the term "belief," and illustrated what is indicated by the phrase "reasonable doubt." He then explained at some length the matter of circumstantial evidence, charging the jury to fully weigh every circumstance by connecting it with other circumstances, and after grouping them together, to consider whether they proved a point beyond a reasonable doubt. He illustrated the case of a person taken from the water, dead, who, it would be concluded had come to his or her death from drowning. But an experienced surgeon or medical man examines the body and finds that the deceased reached his or her death by some other means, and was afterward thrown into the water. This would be taking the evidence of some person who, by having made a certain branch of science a special study, had attained superior intelligence and skill. It would be proper to regard this intelligence and skill, coupled with honesty and freedom from bias, as good evidence that the conclusion was correct that the party did not die from drowning.

We do not give the language of the Judge, but this is substantially the information the jury received. At the close of the remarks of the Court, they immediately withdrew to their room to again discuss the question and endeavor to reach an agreement. The Court then stated that a recess would be taken until the jury had agreed or utterly failed to agree, and when that took place, it would be announced by the ringing of the bell.

At precisely eleven o'clock, the summons was given by the usual dull twanging of the Court bell, and there was a general scrambling for the Court House. The room was filled in much less time than is consumed in penning these lines, and in five minutes after it was so densely crowded that standing room was not obtainable. While awaiting the arrival of the Court and jury, the crowd, (or that portion of it who had opportunity) employed itself in scanning the prisoner, who sat in his lonesome seat in the dock "waiting for the verdict." He looked terribly haggard and worn. His features were of a livid paleness, as though the usual warmth of his life's blood had forsaken him, and he was left cold, and desolated even of physical comfort. He had hitherto indulged in a strong hope of acquittal, and being made aware by his counsel that his hopes must be deferred by waiting for the result of another trial, his disappointment was plainly manifest. At length the Court came in, and shortly after, the twelve tired but conscientious jurors entered and took their seats. They were asked if they had been able to agree upon a verdict, to which the foreman replied they had not, and that they could never agree.

Judge Cushing then remarked that while it was a matter of considerable regret that so much time had been expended and so much expense involved with no satisfactory results, he believed they had considered the case candidly and conscientiously, and would therefore relieve them from further duty. "Shall we consider ourselves at liberty?" asked the foreman. "You have your liberty to go where you please," replied the Judge, a privilege of which they were not slow in availing themselves.

The jury, upon the first ballot, were unanimously of the opinion that the deceased came to her death by poison. In regard to the guilt or innocence of the accused they stood six for conviction, three for acquittal, and three doubtful. There were six ballots taken, the last being at eight o'clock on Thursday morning, which stood eight for conviction and four for acquittal; Gardner J. Greenleaf and Oliver Tucker of this city, Henry C. Chase of Seabrook, and Benjamin Mathes of Newmarket voting for acquitting the prisoner. The material of the several members of the jury was such that it was impossible for them to have agreed, after having fully settled the matter differently in their own minds. They were men of an intelligence rarely obtained upon a panel of that kind; men of strong individuality, conscientious and clear-headed, but who did not chance to think alike. Those who deemed the prisoner guilty were James H. Wilkinson, Foreman, South Newmarket; Josiah Bachelder, Exeter; Henry H. Ham, Jr., Charles C. Jones, Martin Hoyt, Portsmouth; Levi E. Lane, Hampton Falls; William F. Knight, Atkinson; and John J. Leavitt, Hampton. The jury were unanimously of the opinion from the first that strychnia caused the death of Mrs. Magoon.

Magoon Interviewed.

In order to ascertain the hopes and fears or the condition of mind of the man who has figured so prominently before the public during the past week or ten days, we sought an interview with Mr. Magoon at his quarters in the Portsmouth jail on Tuesday. High Sheriff Rowe courteously consigned us to the care of Deputy Sheriff Smith of Newmarket, who proved to be the man who had the custody of the jury during the week of the trial, and whose name with them is a synonym for all that is gentlemanly and pleasant. With this conductor, we visited the jail and were soon at the cell door of Mr. Magoon. The sheriff called to him through the grated wicket and informed him that a person wished to have a private interview with him. Mr. Magoon readily assented and after the manipulation of ponderous iron bolts and bars, the little narrow door swung open and we entered the apartments of the prisoner. A chair was kindly offered, and after being seated we told Mr. Magoon the object of our visit, and inquired what his feelings were in relation to the result of the trial. He assured us that he never felt better in his life, and that he had great hopes of being able to proove himself an innocent man beyond a shadow of doubt. He alluded to a number of points of evidence in his trial, and endeavored to show the weakness or the strength of the testimony, as it chanced to be. He regarded the assumption of the State Attorney that he procured the strychnine in Boston at the time of his visit to that city, a week or more before the death of his wife, and placed it in the pillow just before the disinterment of his wife, as unsustained by evidence of any kind. Mr. Magoon thinks he will be prepared at his next hearing, to clear up this point to the satisfaction of any reasonable mind. He spoke of the relations that he sustained toward the woman Heath as unfortunate, particularly because they misled the public mind and caused people to think that they were criminal and therefore had much to do with the poisoning of his wife. In this matter, however, there was a wrong impression prevailing to the effect that he wanted to marry Mrs. Heath, which he characterized as absurd and unfounded. He declares that he can bring abundant proof from competent witnesses that he was indifferent to the claims of the woman in question and that he can show that his motives were not controlled by any desire for her society, much less her hand.

After talking in this strain for ten or fifteen minutes, he remarked that his counsel had worked hard for him, and expressed the belief that he would be able to furnish them with more material to labor with next time. He assured us that he did not rely upon the evidence to aid him, any more than he did upon his God, who is on the side of the right and who will never allow an innocent man to be punished. As he said this, tears filled his eyes and his voice broke a little, but he soon rallied and controlled himself.

Whatever may be the facts regarding his guilt or innocence, it is due to him to say that his appearance is honest, and well calculated to make a favorable impression upon an unprejudiced mind. We assured him that it would give a great deal of satisfaction to the minds of all who had attended upon the recent trial should he be able to show himself innocent of the terrible crime with which he is charged. He replied that he was "confident of doing it, next time."

Burning of the Oceanic.

At about half-past two o'clock, Thursday morning, a bright light out at sea awoke many of our citizens, the city being lighted up by the flames, which proved to be at the Shoals, ten miles off. Quite a number were confident at first that some building in Portsmouth was in flames, so bright was the light. At daylight, by the aid of marine glasses, it was discovered that the Oceanic House at Star island and a half-dozen or more other buildings had been destroyed.

The hotel contained 147 sleeping rooms, capable of accommodating 300 guests; a dance hall 40 by 80 feet; and the dining hall was 40 by 100 feet. The house was furnished throughout, and the furniture and bedding remained the same as at the close of the last season, and ready for opening next Spring. Unusual care has been taken to protect the building from fire and intruders. A watchman slept in the Oceanic reading room. The island was under the care of Mr. Reuben Puffer. A reservoir capable of holding 300,000 gallons of fresh water has just been finished, and men were employed in blasting the ledge in front of the Oceanic and filling up the wharf at the landing. The outside of the hotel has recently been painted, and presented an improved appearance.

It had connected with it a large building, used as a store, a billiard hall, bar and card rooms, and a bowling alley. At the rear of the Eastern end of the Hotel was the house owned and occupied by Mr. John B. Downs and his son, Levi. This building was burned, as were also the Union House, (formerly owned by Mr. William Robinson,) a small barn in the rear, a small house occupied by Henry B. Caswell, and one situated on the North-western part of the island, formerly owned by the late James Randall, and occupied by the workmen employed by Mr. Poor. The Hotel was handsomely furnished and it is probable that little if anything was saved. The grand piano was one of the finest to be had, being nearly new. The bakehouse and the laundry had all the modern conveniencies and improved machinery.

A day or two before the fire, Mr. Poor came down from Boston, bringing with him a dozen or more workmen, whom he took to Star Island, returning to this city and to Boston on Wednesday. The plans for further improvement were stayed by the fire-fiend the same night, and the stately Oceanic, the scene of so much enjoyment the past season, lies in ashes, from which it may or may not arise.

In December, 1872, Messrs. John R. Poor, of Boston, and Nathan F. Mathes, of this city, having purchased nearly the whole of the island for between $53,000 and $54,000, commenced the erection of the Oceanic Hotel, which was finished in time for the season of 1873, at a cost of $65,000. Mr. Poor soon after became the sole owner and it is said has nearly $300,000 invested on the island. During the seasons of 1873 and 1874, the business was conducted at heavy loss on account of lack of patronage. Last Winter and Spring, Mr. Poor improved the property greatly, by the addition of a wharf costing $30,000 or thereabouts, by blasting away ledges, macadamizing a street, creating a lawn and removing old buildings. With the pleasure season came renewed patronage, and at the time of the ocean yacht race the Oceanic and cottages were crowded to overflowing. For the first time, the business paid the interest on the investment and taxes. Mr. Poor had a loan of $50,000 from the Amoskeg National Bank of Manchester, covered by insurance policies, and was about to negotiate with another bank for an additional loan of $30,000 and the transfer of credit and polices from the Amoskag, his intention being to further improve the property for the season of 1876.

The question of rebuilding the Oceanic is generally discussed. The location is one of the best, and there is no doubt that a hotel properly kept by experienced men in the business, would remunerate the investor. The insurance on the Oceanic, its furniture and the cottages was $125,000, of which probably $100,000 was on the hotel and furniture. Mr. Poor's actual loss on the hotel, furniture and machinery must be in the neighborhood of $125,000, perhaps more, but $100,000 would probably erect a commodious hotel and furnish it at present prices. The improvements at the wharf and about the island are of course not injured by the fire, and the island and the original buildings as they now stand are probably valued as high as $90,000. It was reported a year or more ago that there was a prospect that the hotel would change hands (when it was being run at a loss) if the proprietor would accept about sixty per cent. of his investment for the property. Whether it will be Mr. Poor's intention to build or to sell to some person who will make Star island as popular a resort as the Appledore is of course a matter of doubt, but it seems probable, where there is so much opportunity for a development of the hotel business, that the Oceanic will be eventually rebuilt.

Mr. Poor says the total amount of his investments in the hotel and other buildings is about $325,000.

The Baring Bros. are contemplating a loan to the Eastern Railroad.

The Opera "The Rose of Tyrol" has proved a "hit". The Boston Advertiser says of it: Anybody who has that musical apprehension which is commonly called "an ear for music," or who is wont to be "pleased by concord of sweet sounds," will be delighted with this opera, and they to whose natural taste study has added knowledge, will be further delighted, because to them will be clear the meaning of a hundred bits of skillful writing. The character of the music is generally pastoral,—and with the exception of the ballad, "It was a gallant warrior," recalls in thought and rhythm the musical expression which is known as Tyrolean; not the burlesque stuff of the negro minstrel, but the genuine, beautiful music which is indigenous to Tyrol, Bavaria and some parts of Switzerland. The melodies are original and lightsome; they flow freely and in spite of their difficulties, are such as singers like, because they are worth the trouble it costs to master choruses. Miss Richings sings with great spirit and judgment throughout. The sale of tickets promises a good house, this evening, which this superior company certainly deserves.

Surgeon Fred. M. Dearborn, U. S. N., has been ordered to the U. S. training ship Sabine, for duty.

Schooner Lacon of Calais, Me., Captain Kilpatrick, from Weehawken, with coal, in going over the Newburyport bar on the evening of the 10th, struck, and, falling off, was carried on to the North Breaker. The sea broke over the vessel, making her a complete wreck and carrying away the yawl boat, which was again secured, and in it the captain and crew succeeded in reaching the shore at Salisbury Beach. The vessel and cargo will prove a total loss; vessel insured.

Gunner Geo. L. Albro, U. S. N., has been detached from the U. S. training ship Sabine and granted three months' leave.

Gen. Humphries asks for an appropriation for fortifications, the next fiscal year, of $36,000 for battery on Gerrish's island, and $24,000 for battery on Jeffrey's Point.

Surgeon Geo. F. Winslow, U. S. N., has been detached from the U. S. training ship Sabine, (on the reporting of his relief,) and placed on waiting orders.

A Well-Merited Success.

As contrasted with fortunate charlatanism, well-merited success is less frequent than it ought to be. Puffery, blatant assertion and coined recommendations, too often, for instance, give an ephemeral popularity to medicinal compounds intrinsically worthless at the expense of really deserving remedies, and to the grievous detriment of the sick. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a tonic alterative which has achieved one of the best merited and most signal successes of the nineteenth century, has never relied upon such methods of manufacturing a reputation, nor has the competition of counterfeit tonics ever affected its reputation in the slightest degree. That it is the best remedy for malaria, and the surest safeguard against it; that it eradicates dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, disorders of the kidneys and bladder, and the various causes which produce weakness, are implicit and well-founded beliefs with the great body of the American people.

Coughs and Colds are often overlooked. A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs or some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effectual COUGH REMEDY.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

See Deuteronomy, xii: 23. The blood being the source from which the system is built up, and from which we derive our mental as well as physical capabilities, how important that it should be kept pure! If it contain vile, festering poisons, all organic functions become enfeebled. Settling upon important organs, as the lungs, liver, and kidneys, the effect is most disastrous. Hence it behooves all to keep the blood in a perfectly healthy condition, and more especially does this apply at this particular season of the year than at any other. No matter what the exciting cause may be, the real cause of a large proportion of all diseases is bad blood. Now, Dr. Pierce does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums, by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; on the contrary, there are hundreds of diseases that he acknowledges it will not cure; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood-cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden Medical Discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases, as all forms of Blotches, Pimples, and Eruptions; also all Glandular Swellings, and the worst form of Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of the Neck, Legs or other parts, and all Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones as White Swellings, Fever Sores, Hip-joint and Spinal Diseases,—all of which belong to Scrofulous diseases.

CONFIRMED HIP-JOINT DISEASE CURED.

DR. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

July 15, 1875, he writes thus: My wife has certainly received a great benefit from the use of your Discovery, for she was not able to get off the bed, and was not expected to live a week when she commenced using it, a year ago. She has been doing most of her work for over six months. Has used twenty bottles, and still using it. Her recovery is considered as almost a miracle, and we attribute it all to the use of your valuable medicine. I can cheerfully recommend it as a blood-purifier and strength-restorer. J. M. ROBINSON.

nent employment as the "hired help" of Eben Bacon, one of the wealthiest men of the town, a prominent member in the councils of his church, and influential in his town affairs. Bryant served with Mr. Bacon for a number of years. He superintended the stables, acted as coachman, and did duty as porter in the store. Everybody used to say that Bryant was the "likeliest young man in town." But one day a sudden change came upon Bryant's relations with his employer. The old gentleman had three daughters, and one of them, claimed to be the handsomest of the three, had looked too deep into the bright eyes of the handsome young man. And his own heart beat more rapidly whenever he met Miss Ellen. The young people soon began to understand the nature of their feelings toward each other, and from understanding the step was an easy one to confessing it—unknown of course, to the old folks. They thought their secret well kept, but a mother's eye is sharp, especially when she has a marriageable daughter, with a "likely" young man about the house. The "sweet converse" between Bryant and the young miss was soon detected by the watchful Mrs. Bacon, who at once pressed her daughter into the confessional. The dismay of the parents was great; that a "hired man" with nothing but his bare hands to rely on for a living should lift his eyes to the daughter of one of the first men of Barnstable was an outrage not to be tolerated, and Bryant was dismissed and ordered to leave town, and Miss Bacon was told that she must never see the "fellow" again, but—the hoyden!—she did see him, nevertheless, accompanied him to the house of the nearest minister, and there Bryant and the late employer's daughter were speedily married. The old folks refused to see the young couple, and when Bryant wrote a letter to say that he wanted nothing from his wife's father, as he was bound for California to seek his fortune, and young Mrs. Bryant wrote to her mother asking merely to be allowed to bid her good-by, both letters were burnt by the irate parents and a verbal message sent back that the two might go to the hottest place known to sacred history, but should never return to Barnstable again. Years rolled on, and old Eben Bacon relented not. But the mother's love for her daughter grew warm again, and when a letter came from San Francisco, in which Mrs. Bryant informed her mother that she was happy, and that her husband was advancing in fortune, and that she too, had been twice a mother, the old lady wept many tears of joy—secretly, though, since old Eben would listen to no mention of his daughter's name. The crisis of 1873 arrived, and Mr. Bacon was near bankruptcy. Mrs. Bacon remembered her son-in-law on the Pacific, and took heart to apply to him for advice. In return, the telegraph placed an amount to Bacon's credit in New York sufficient to carry him over the abyss. Now even the old man was ready to forgive, and last year Mr. Bryant and his family paid their first visit to the home in Barnstable. Mr. Bacon has since died, but old Mrs. Bacon is now the proudest woman in that Massachusetts town, since she can say, as she does every hour of the day almost, that her son is Mayor of San Francisco.

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1875.

Letter from Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 11.

In the contest in Massachusetts, one of New Hampshire's sons, noted for his eloquence and ability, took a prominent part in the republican campaign—exercising his influence at the convention at Worcester for Mr. Rice's nomination and after his nomination speaking nearly every night in various parts of the State. I refer to Hon. N. B. Bryant, formerly Speaker of the House of Representatives of New Hampshire—and now a successful lawyer of this city.

The republican majority in Massachusetts should have been much larger, and if the same attention and care had been given, to get out the republican vote here, that is exerted in New Hampshire, viz.: a thorough school district canvass, a proper distribution of circulars from the State committee, and an earnestness on the part of the local committees to see that all the voters in their respective precincts had their ballots deposited, the majority would have been thirty thousand instead of barely one sixth of that. There are 68,000 voters in Boston and only about 40,000 of them were qualified voters, and less than 28,000 of this latter number voted. It is a well known fact that democrats always vote, (and a recent verdict of the U. S. Court in the New Hampshire District indicates that they "vote early and often") and it is to be inferred that Boston alone could have increased Mr. Rice's majority at least 10,000.

The following is from the Saturday Evening Gazette:

"The season at the Kittery Navy Yard has been an unusually quiet one, and devoid of any brilliant fete or noteworthy event. Indeed, it has been pronounced as 'intensely flat' by those who know."

The very next item in the same paper may not only be of some interest to some parties in Portsmouth, but perhaps may serve as a key to the author of the above bit of attempted sarcasm. It is as follows:

"Prof. Casimir Ladreyt and family have returned to this city after a protracted sojourn in Portsmouth, N. H., and are at present located at No. 27 Union Park street."

Mr. Charles F. Sise, a native of Portsmouth and now manager of the Royal Canadian Insurance Co., in this city, has been poisoned by wearing stockings dyed with aniline colors, and can hardly walk. Striped stockings are at a discount.

It is said that John Morrissey, who went into the Senatorial fight in New York with a determination to beat Fox, and who lavished his money on "expenses" in a most reckless manner, has more than recouped himself by taking the odds that were so freely offered on Fox to the amount of thousands of dollars. Morrissey has not only defeated "Boss" Kelly's right hand man and gained himself a seat in the New York State Senate, but has made all his "expenses" and several thousands beside. The writer knew Morrissey when he was a boatman in the harbor of San Francisco. From there he went up the California coast, and when George Thompson, the English teacher of the "manly art of self-defence," went to San Francisco in 1853, Morrissey was sent for by the admirers of this art, (of which there were a great many in California then,) and a prize fight was arranged between Morrissey and Thompson, which took place at Mare Island on the very spot where the navy yard is now situated. Morrissey was backed by the New Yorkers, and the fight was declared in his favor on account of a "foul blow." This was his "first appearance in public" to my knowledge.

The grand jury has presented the name of Martin Van Buren Stimson of Kittery, among the list of indictments. His doings have been chronicled at some length recently. The indictment charges that he falsely represented himself to be the owner of certain land and two saw mills in Vermont, and upon the promise to Dennis P. Leonard that he would convey to him a portion of this property, he obtained by these false pretences a promissory note for $500, signed by Leonard. It is but justice to Mr. Stimson and his friends to state that he denies in toto any intention of defrauding any parties, but claims that he was himself deceived and disappointed in this undertaking. There is not the slightest doubt but what quite a number of persons were pecuniarily damaged by Stimson's representations. This he admits and says so far as is in his power he is willing to reimburse them.

The "New England Church," which is the new congregation presided over by Rev. W. H. H. Murray at Music Hall, is in full tide of success. The order of service is something after the form of the Vesper service at the Unitarian in Portsmouth, as follows: 1. voluntary, organ and choir; 2. invocation; 3. choir; 4. psalm; 5. choir; 6. scripture; 7. choir; 8. prayer; 9. hymn, choir and congregation; 10. sermon; 11. prayer; 12. hymn, choir and congregation; 13. benediction;—the entire service lasting about an hour and three-quarters. The sittings in the audience room are not free, save such as are reserved by the Society in Christian courtesy for the poor and strangers. The rental prices for the sittings are however fixed at a low rate, varying from $20 to $5 for the year, and thus the privilege of this sanctuary is brought within the reach of all. Mr. Murray recently preached from the following text: "I am the way, the truth and the life." He alluded to the various ways laid out by different sects for attaining Heaven; discoursing particularly upon what he thought the true and only way, which was through the life and teachings of Jesus. In one of his allusions he spoke of a class who believed in emotional changes, and made one of his characteristic remarks as follows: "They felt that a volcanic eruption or an earthquake or two was necessary for a change of heart." He said that not only the church needed reform but the preachers also.

The choir consists of 200 singers conducted by Professor Tourjee. The solos and quartettes are excellent and the choruses grand. So much for Murray and his new enterprise for an independent church. K.

News and Notes.

There were ten jury trials at the recent term of the Circuit Court in Carroll county, and no jury failed to agree.

Mrs. Joseph Boyle, while going down cellar in St. Albans, Vt., tripped and fell. A lamp she was carrying broke and saturated her clothing with kerosene. She was burned nearly to death. Her husband used snow to quench the flames, but her arms charred, and her face, mouth, back and legs blistered. It is feared that she cannot live.

The house and farm buildings of Webster Greeley at Nashua were burned on the 11th. Loss probably $10,000.

We have in this State 3,342 mechanical establishments, which are engaged in turning out about 140 different kinds of manufactured products from a locomotive to a shoe peg. Is there any reason why all these products should not be on exhibition at Philadelphia next year?—Nashua Telegraph.

A Guelph, Ont., dispatch says: White, convicted for the murder of his wife, has made a confession. He says he struck her on the head with a stick during a quarrel. She fell to the floor, and notwithstanding her entreaties, he struck her again repeatedly. She groaned, but did not articulate anything distinctly. He picked her up, carried her to the well, and threw her heavily into it, head downward. She breathed heavily before he threw her in. He afterward threw a tin pail into the well with a view to make people think she had fallen in.

The democratic majority in Maryland in 1873 was 19,983; in 1874, 14,137; in 1875, 12,921.

The New York Tribune says: "To-day, the republican prospects are bright. It is everywhere perceived that if that party is wise, it may elect the next President."

A short time since some mysterious boxes were taken to the Brooklyn Navy Yard. They remained there, under close surveillance, until Wednesday the 10th, when two strange men arrived and took charge of them. The boxes awakened the curiosity of the workmen in the yard, which was increased when the strangers opened them and disclosed to their gaze new, crisp greenbacks to the amount of $10,000,000. The workmen were more astonished, however, when the men took the greenbacks to the foundry and burned them in the furnace. They were the production of celebrated counterfeiters and were destroyed by order of the Government.

Although Mr. Henry C. Bowen still retains his pew in Plymouth Church, he says that neither he nor any member of his family will occupy it. Mr. Bowen is determined to hold his membership in Mr. Beecher's church for reasons of his own. He says that if any attempt is made to drop his name from the roll for non-attendance, as in Mrs. Moulton's case, he will fight the church and pastor to the bitter end.

The Lawrence Eagle shows good taste when it copies our editorials, but if it gave due credit its good sense would be just as apparent.

The steamship Gussie Selfair has returned from a cruise in the neighborhood of Cape Flattery for the survivors of the Pacific. She found no living persons, but picked up the body of a woman identified as that of Mrs. Heller of San Francisco, the body of Mr. Vining, of Steilacoom, Washington Territory, and the body of a stoker of the lost ship. All these bodies had life-preservers on. The Oliver Wolcott picked up the body of an assistant steward named Richard Jones, dead.

The disaster to the steamer City of Waco seems to have been caused by kerosene, which was carried as a portion of the cargo against orders.

The British bark Senator, from Philadelphia for Panama with coal, took fire, Sept. 14th, off the Straits of Magellan, and burned until the 17th, when she was abandoned. The people on board, among whom were the wife of the captain, and his two daughters and the wife of the cook, to the number of nineteen, got into the boats. On the seventh day the wife of the captain died from hunger and cold. On the 25th the boats arrived at Freshwater Bay, and thence reached the colony at Sandy Point.

New Hampshire citizens paid a revenue to the National government, for the last fiscal year, amounting to $298,812.80.

"M. H. B." writes thus of George L. Fox: "Some weeks ago, I wrote you of his paralysis. That paragraph was widely denied and his health pronounced perfect. I happen to know of what I write, and if you could see the famous clown to-night, you would not recognize him. Out of his make-up his condition is very evident. One side of his face is drawn and set; there is a weary, empty look in his eyes, and a numb, helpless action of the jaws in speaking."

The jury in the famous Ward will cease in Detroit have terminated their long siege by disagreeing.

The Concord People says nothing new has transpired since our last publication relative to what further evidence has been secured to convict La Page of the murder of Josie Langmaid; and it is the expressed opinion of some of the best lawyers that the circumstantial evidence against that individual, heretofore published, will not be sufficient to convict him in the minds of any intelligent jury. However, it is fairly presumable that all data in possession of the criminal authorities have not been published.

Preparations for the Centennial.

To the Citizens of New Hampshire:

The Grand Centennial Exhibition to be held at Philadelphia in 1876, to commemorate our National birth and illustrate our wonderful growth and progress, is close at hand. If New Hampshire is to participate in a manner worthy one of the "original thirteen" and creditably to our citizens, the work of preparation must not be delayed. The magnitude and importance of the exhibition as projected are all understood by the public, and your committee deem it only necessary to say that its complete success seems already assured.

It is sure to be not only the largest, but the grandest display which the world has ever seen of the triumphs which have rewarded human industry, ingenuity and energy, and in it will be contrasted the skill and genius not only of the different nationalities of the globe but of the several States of our Union. We therefore appeal to every citizen of our own State who prizes her reputation and is proud of her people and industries, to do what he can toward her honorable and liberal representation.

Your committee have appointed Col. George W. Riddle of Manchester a commissioner, who will furnish all necessary information in regard to securing space, transportation, furnishing the blank applications therefor, and will render exhibitors all the assistance possible. Applications for space must be be made at once or it cannot be obtained. Correspondence is solicited in cases where a personal interview is impracticable.

The Committee respectfully asks the Press of New Hampshire to urge upon the people of the State the great importance of having the State honorably represented in this great Centennial of the Nation.

—At Atlanta, Ga., an honest old granger approached the affable young man who adorns the general delivery window of the post-office, recently and asked: "Is there any letter for the Griggses here?" The young man shuffled through "G's" deck, and said: "No, sir!" "Any for the Stebbinses?" The young man counted the "S" deck, and said; "No, Sir!" "Well any for the Bunces?" and the old man put on his specs to see for himself. The young man fanned the "B's" out, and again said: "No, sir?" "Then, who in thunder is all them thar letters and pigeon holes for, anyhow, by gum?" ripped out the indignant old man; and before the young man had time to reply, the old granger was shuffling down the street swearing that "this here post-office is a blamed mernopoly, like everything else these days!"

How a Baby Talks to Itself.

Dear horse, whoa! and don't rock on my toes. Rock on the cat. She's a scratch cat. Her tail is too short. I can't reach it. She bites. I want to bite, but can't bite. They haven't come,—I mean teeth. But they're coming. They've been heard from.

I want to get up, but I can't get up. I tip over easy. Please turn round your tail this way. I want to get hold. There I go. I'm rolled over. You didn't hold still. I'll cry, for I'm not a well baby. Grandma says so; says no wonder; says I ought to have clear milk, with sugar in it, and gingerbread crumbled in.

Why don't somebody jingle my playthings? I've done with the candlesticks. I don't want the button-bag tied up. I want the door handle. I want the tin. I want a pile of it. Make a house. Knock it over. Hurrah! Clap your hands. Drum on a pan. Rattle-te-bang. Make a racket. Dance me, trot me, shake me, cuddle me. Throw me up to the wall. Hurrah for a great stir!

I don't want to tell what the sheep says. Why does everybody wish to know? Nor the cow, nor the rooster. They don't want it told of. The cat's got a secret. (P. K. Keep it private.) She's going to change her boarding-place, if they don't stop giving her sour milk. She thinks it hurts her voice. Likewise, if she can't have a night-key. P. K.

No, I don't want to rock-a-by. I want to put sand in my mouth. I want all of my clothes off. I want to spat in the water. Give me the poker. No, I shan't shake a day-day. I want to go myself. Bring out my hat and feather. One day I went to a party. Ten babies. They set us in a row. We all wore our best bibs, and toward night we all sang the same tune. Then the bottle was passed round.

They told me to lay my little heady downy, and go s'eepy. But I thought I'd rather pull hair.

One little girl baby sat upon the floor. She was a pretty baby. Her eyes were blue as skim-milk, her skin as white as a cotton-flannel rabbit, her hair curled up like a snarl of silk. I pulled it; I picked her eyes; I grabbed her. I hauled her, I fisted her, I cuffed her, I crawled over her. But next day I was sorry.

—A correspondent of the New York Graphic, writing from Boston about social, musical and theatrical matters, refers as follows to the great dramatic success of the season: Our Boys, at the Globe Theatre, holds on with a tenacity which shows its real merit. The newspapers go on generally about Mr. George Honey, the English comedian, in more enthusiastic terms than they bestow upon most actors. Mr. Honey is inimitable in his part, but he is no better than Warren. The real genius of the piece as it is now cast, I do not hesitate to say, is Mr. Marlowe, who takes the part of the baronet's son. It is as perfect a piece of original conception and presentation as that of Dundreary or Raymond's Col. Sellers. It does not make the immediate impression upon the general public that Mr. Honey's part does, because it is so finely realistic. It is the very soul of humor, while the character which Mr. Honey represents is rollicking comedy, where a little exaggeration seems all of a piece with the whole. All the critics unite in saying, however, that a play was never put upon the stage more perfectly in every way than this. As for Lillian Conway, who is the heiress of the piece, our boys of Boston, and indeed all New England, are entirely captive to her dark eyes and golden tresses. "Her own, you know, every bit of it," they will tell you, with admiring, adoring glances at those tresses as they sit eagerly bending forward at the Globe. There is a pretty little story that young Murdoch who plays with her is a good deal in earnest in his love making. I dare say it's all a story, however. Some of our infatuated boys who look on nightly are not disposed to give it the benefit of this doubt. "Look at him now sitting on the arm of that chair," growled one of these boys the other night to a sympathetic friend. "What in thunder does he keep his head down in that way for if he doesn't mean it, I'd like to know? That other fellow doesn't do it." No, you can't convince these young gentlemen that a fellow "who keeps his head down that way" when he sits on the arm of a chair in which sits a pretty girl like Miss Lillian Conway doesn't mean it. In the words of the other fellow, "he's gone" in their estimation. One thing, however, is very certain, that young Murdoch in either capacity, sham or earnest, must be a most excellent actor. And so we take leave of him sitting in his delightful position "on the arm of that chair," where every masculine observer would no doubt give his eyes to be.

—A simple rule to get rid of a great nuisance is given as follows in an exchange; An innocent method of destroying cockroaches is to place a bowl or basin containing a little molasses on the floor at night. A bit of wood, resting one end on the floor and the other on the edge of the vessel, serves as a bridge to conduct the insects to the sweet deposit. Once in the trap, its slippery sides prevent retreat, and thus cockroaches may be caught by thousands.

—She was plainly but richly dressed and walked straight up Fifth Avenue, never turning to see what other ladies had on. She had an intellectual face with a somewhat "persimmon" expression. People said she was a Boston girl, here on a visit.—N. Y. Mail.

—"What arrangements have you made for extinguishing fire?" said Mr. Timidity to the landlord of a hotel out West where he proposed to spend the night. "There's a pitcher of water in every room, sir," responded Boniface.—N. Y. Mail.

The Star Island Fire.

Mr. Ephraim H. Downs, son of Mr. John B. Downs' came in from the Shoals on Friday, and gave the only particulars we are able to obtain. The first knowledge that the Downs family had of the fire was when the outside of their own dwelling was in flames, catching from the burning hotel. They barely escaped in their night clothes, saving only a feather bed and a gun. The Oceanic was in flames in the centre to the roof, and it is said that the watchman escaped by jumping from the window. Nothing was saved from the Oceanic. Mr. Downs' barn was burned, but he saved his cow and hog. His insurance is about $1800. The houses occupied by Henry B. Caswell and the Oceanic workmen were not burned, as reported.

Aldermanic.

On Thursday evening, leave was granted Charles Locke to encumber Rock street for building purposes.

The petition of M. B. Vennard and others for a gas light on Vaughan street was referred.

The petition of Nathan Jones and others for a cross-walk on Fleet street was referred.

The petition of John Ellison and others for the extension of Dennett street was accepted, and a hearing ordered on the petition, Dec. 2d.

The committee on School Houses to whom was referred the petition of J. C. Butler and others for a new school-house asked for further time to report.

The same committee recommended that the room lately fitted up in the State street ward room for a primary school be changed to a grammar school, and that the primary school occupy the room at the Academy.

The report was accepted and the committee authorized to change the seats, if approved by the School Committee.

The petition of the Woman's Temperance League in regard to the desecration of the Sabbath was referred to the City Marshal. Adjourned for three weeks.

Jottings.

The Portsmouth artillery company has been accepted by the Governor as a part of the State militia.

Rev. Mr. Hebbard's subject for to-morrow evening's lecture is "The Navy Yard."

The Portsmouth Masonic Lodges are the largest in the State. St. John's, John W. Dame, Worshipful Master, has 312 members, and St. Andrews, John Pender, W. M., has 239 members, a total of 551.

It is said that some $100,000 of Eastern railroad stock is held by residents of Rye.

In the case of engineer Theo. Deverson vs. the Eastern Railroad, referred to Wm. J. Copeland of Great Falls, Jewett Conner of Exeter and Frank P. Cram of Hampton Falls, the referees have reported for the plaintiff, $5,300 damages.

The Winter term of Smith's Academy begins next Monday.

Some obdurate creditor was so anxious to collect a debt of one of the jury in the Magoon case as to trustee his wages as a juryman while he was deliberating upon the verdict.

The Eastern Railroad promptly paid the interest on its bonds Nov. 1. The sum paid out was $103,000, and it has money left to meet similar liabilities.

Rye is probably the banner town on potatoes. Jedediah Rand has raised, the past season, 1000 bushels on four acres of land, which was formerly an alder swamp and is manured with sea-weed, hauled on in the Winter and allowed to rot. Mr. Rand is one of the progressive sort of farmers, and is improving his land by tile draining.

It is expected that Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Lambert of Charlestown, Mass., will officiate at St. Johns Church to-morrow.

Schooner Emma A. Cutting, Hinckley, loaded with wood from Bath for Boston, ran ashore near Fort McClary, in the lower harbor, on the night of Nov. 10th. She was towed off by the tug Clara Bateman, has sunk to the water's edge, and will have to unload and go on the railway for repairs.

Mrs. Annie Smith, a missionary in New York, will preach Sunday in the Advent chapel.

A Love Tragedy.

The suicide of Betty Roane at her home on Fifth avenue, New York, opens a startling tale of city social life. Thomas B. Whitney, with whom she lived, it appears, is a rich young brewer of that city. Miss Roane, who was a young lady of twenty-one, a brunette endowed with a pretty face and a remarkably fine figure, hailed from South Carolina, where her parents still reside. She is described by those who know her as a well-educated woman, with a superficial knowledge of music, singing, French and other accomplishments. She went to New York some three years ago and lived in a very retired manner—how does not precisely appear, but can easily be guessed from the events that have transpired. Some nine or ten months ago she made the acquaintance of young Whitney, who was greatly struck by her prepossessing appearance. He became so deeply enamored of her that he induced her to live with him, and in February last he rented apartments on Fifth avenue, consisting of a spacious drawing room, bath room, dressing room, dining room and bedroom, fitted with all the luxury that money could purchase. Costly pictures adorn the walls, and numberless choice articles of virtu and domestic ornaments of the most expensive kind are scattered everywhere, and denote the elegant tastes of the occupants. They had one servant, a colored woman, who describes their life as having been entirely unruffled, each seeming to be devoted to the other. They seemed to have lived very happy together, although her excitable and nervous temperament occasionally showed itself whenever the name of another woman with whom Whitney was acquainted chanced to be mentioned. Tuesday night, the 9th, Mr. Whitney, having fallen asleep on the bed in the centre of one of their spacious rooms, was awakened by the report of a pistol in the adjoining room, and hurrying in, he found Miss Roane lying on the lounge, her hand pressed to her breast, from which the blood was flowing. A large navy revolver lay on the floor beside her. She tried to reply to his inquiries as to what had happened, but was unable to speak. He called the servant to watch her while he ran to the Fifth Avenue Hotel and summoned a physician, but when he returned to the rooms with the physician the girl was dead. The servant said she died within a few minutes from the time he left her, after vainly struggling to speak. The story of the suicide can best be learned from the testimony taken at the inquest held that evening. The first witness called was Mr. Whitney. He said that he was lying on the lounge, as was his custom after dinner. He was almost asleep when Miss Roane spoke to him twice and asked him to talk with her. He replied, "Don't bother me now," and went to sleep again. He was soon awakened by the report of a pistol, and jumping from the bed, he found her lying on the sofa. A pistol was on the floor beside her. He ran to her side and said: "My God, have you shot yourself?" She did not speak; she was struggling violently and gasping for breath. He tore open her robe and saw where she had shot herself in the left breast. The powder had blackened her skin and part of her clothing was burned. He rang for the servant and ran for a physician, who went to the house, and on feeling her pulse said it was too late. She was of a very excitable nature, and on Whitney's evincing the slightest neglect toward her would burst into tears. During the giving of his evidence Mr. Whitney cried continually, and seemed utterly broken down. The servant corroborated Whitney's testimony, as did also the doctor. The case was then placed in the hands of the jury, who rendered a verdict that the deceased came to her death by a pistol shot wound, self-inflicted. It was quite evident that on Whitney refusing for the second time to arouse himself and talk to her she at once determined to commit suicide. She took from her wardrobe and put on a silk wrapper which Whitney had brought from Turkey, and attired in which, he had often informed her, she appeared to most advantage. She then dressed her hair in a fashion most admired by her lover, and lying down on the lounge shot herself. By order of Whitney the body of the unfortunate young girl was placed in a magnificent rosewood casket, mounted in solid silver, and having on the plate this inscription: "Betty Roane, died Nov. 9, 1875, aged 21 years." She was buried in Greenwood Cemetery.

—The annual reports are beginning to come in. The Washington Star, noting the transactions in the Small Potato Bureau, says in the division for the dotting of i's the work has largely increased, chiefly on account of the egotistical nature of the business transacted. The number of i's dotted during the fiscal year was 713,867,524 3-4. In the division for the crossing of t's there has been a falling off of 58,762 as compared with last year. This serious omission will be remedied in the future, because a t uncrossed looks like l.

RATTAN WARE
MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East Indian Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere on an at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz, a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

Daily Chronicle.

—The Yokohama, Japan, Herald relates a remarkable occurrence which shows that some of the Japanese have an extraordinary capacity for withstanding the effects of fiery potations. An Osaka man offered a prize to any one who would drink one sho —one quart, one pint, and one-half a gill— of a certain native liquor about as strong as spirits of wine. A coolie performed the feat, but died the same day from the effects of it. They buried him in a shallow grave, and about midnight the next day the earth absorbed the liquor from his well-soaked body, and he woke up from his debauch. Pushing off the light soil that covered him, he rose from his grave in a white shroud, and startled some robbers near by who were counting and dividing their money. They took the strange appafition for a ghost, and ran off in dismay. The coolie picked up the cash and reported to his wife the same night, a sadder but richer man than he was before his spree.

—A few days since a little three-year old girl, living in this city, was given permission to visit a lady, upon the condition that she should not cry while she was away. To this she consented, and went on her visit with a smiling face. In the course of the day, while attending to her household duties, the lady chanced to scald or burn her hand, and as she was dressing it the little girl looked on in silence. "Are you not going to cry when I have burned my hand?" asked the lady. "The child looked at her and then replied, "No; my mother told me not to cry while I was over to your house, but if I was at home I would yell for you good."—Lynn Reporter.

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among these will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to secure early and advance sheets, stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its

are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual variety of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will frequently be given. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I present one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir.—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have suffered so low and though I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up a pin, afflicted from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

NEW CINCINNATI SUGAR CURED

HAMS AND BACON

FOR SALE BY

CHARLES E. LAIGHTON & SON.

SCRIBNERS' MONTHLY for 1876

The publishers invite attention to the following list of some of the attractive articles secured for Scribner's Monthly, for the coming year. In the field of fiction, besides numerous novelettes and shorter stories, there will be

TWO REMARKABLE SERIAL STORIES,

By American Authors.

The first of these, now complete in our hands,

"GABRIEL CONROY,"

By BRET HARTE,

Begins in the November number,

and will run for twelve months. This is Mr. Harte's first extended work. The scenes and characters, which the author has chosen from his favorite field, California, are painted with character-istic vividness and power; and the work is without doubt the most graphic record of California life that has yet appeared.

We shall also begin in the January number,

"PHILIP NOLAN'S FRIENDS,

OR, SHOW YOUR PASSPORTS,"

By EDWARD EVERETT HALE.

The scene of this story is laid in the Southwestern territory, now forming the States of Louisiana and Texas, at the time of Aaron Burr's treason. The characters lived in a section which was now American, now French, and now Spanish, and this record of their adventures and lives makes a story of intense and unflagging interest throughout.

A SECOND "FARMER'S VACATION,"

By Col. GEO. E. WARING, Jr.

Col. Waring is now in Europe, visiting, in a rowboat ride of two hundred and fifty miles, one of the most fertile and interestidg of the vine growing valleys of Europe. This second series of papers promises to be even more interesting than that with which our readers are already familiar.

CENTENNIAL LETTERS,

Edited by John Vance Cheney.

A rare collection of Revolutionary Letters, mainly from ancestors in the hands of descendants of Col. Joseph Ward. They are full of interest, and will be read with a rare relish in connection with the Centennial celebration of the year.

BRILLIANTLY ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES ON

AMERICAN COLLEGES,

Written respectively by their friends, will appear during the year. The revived interest in college life makes these papers especially timely, and will secure for them unusual attention.

OLD NEW YORK.

Elegantly illustrated articles on Old New-York, by John F. Mines, will appear at once, and will attract late attention to old city or country who must with interest the development of the great metropolis, and affectionately remember the quaint peculiarities of its olden time.

Every number is profusely illustrated, thus enabling us to give to our descriptive and narrative articles, an interest and permanent value never attained in a non-illustrated periodical. Under its accustomed management the magazine will in the future be devoted, as it has been in the past, to sound literature and Christian progress.

The Editorial Department occupy over twenty pages of each number and contain Dr. Holland's vigorous and timely editorials, as well as Reviews of the latest works in Art, Literature, and Science.

TERMS:

$4.00 A YEAR, in advance; 35 cents a Number. The 10 vols. complete, Nov. 1870, to Oct. 1875, bound in maroon cloth.....$20.00

do. do. bound in half morocco, 30.00

Vols. begin in November and May. Any of the earlier volumes (I to VIII) will be supplied separately to parties who wish them to complete sets at this rate, i. e., cloth, $2 00; half morocco, $3.00.

Booksellers and Postmasters will be supplied at rates that will enable them to fill any of the above offers.

Subscribers will please remit in P. O. Money Orders, or in Bank Checks or Drafts, or by registered letters. Money in letters not registered, at sender's risk.

SCRIBNER & CO., 743 Broadway, New York.

☞ All NEW Subscribers for 1876, paying in advance after November 1, 1875, WILL RECEIVE THE PAPER WEEKLY, from receipt of remittance to January 1st, 1876, WITHOUT CHARGE.

COMBINED PAPERS—FORTY-SIXTH YEAR.

The Country Gentleman

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1876.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $4; TWO COPIES, $7; THREE COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN possesses an unequaled Corps of Correspondents, regular and occasional, among the Best Farmers of All Parts of the Country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United States and civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives in its Horticultural Department a continuous variety of information and suggestions, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce and disseminate Improved Stock of every kind through the country; and commands to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains unusually full and trustworthy Market Reports, and devotes special attention to the Condition and to the Prospects of the Crops, in throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN embraces numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Wine-yard, and so on, and weekly presents a column or two for the Housewife and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well edited Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

In the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

$100,000

GIVEN AWAY!

The Union Pocket Book Co.

having secured by cash purchase the entire bankrupt stock of Messrs H. Morland & Co., consisting of 400,000 Portmonies,

(POCKET BOOKS,)

of the best manufacture and superb quality, each pocket book being made of Real Morocco Leather; to effect a speedy clearance sale and having in view the old motto of the house, Certain Profits with Quick Returns, the company have decided on giving each individual purchaser the full benefit of this remunerative bargain by giving away One Hundred Thousand Dollars, in 2818 MONEY PRIZES!

THE FIRST PRIZE BEING $20,000 CASH.
" SECOND " " $10,000 "
" THIRD " " $5,000 " and 2815 other money prizes as follows, viz.:

25	PRIZES OF	$1000	CASH, EACH.
40	"	500	" "
50	"	100	" "
100	"	50	" "
200	"	20	" "
2000	"	1	" "

The above prizes with the cost of advertising and other incidental expenses, paying the purchase two-thirds of the profits that accrue on the entire sale, and to enable every one to have an equal share in the profits, with the certainty of receiving treble the value for their small investment and the further opportunity of surely gaining a share in the distribution of $100,000, and this too by the riskless outlay of $1 only.

The Union Pocket Book Co. will deliver free to any address on receipt of One Dollar, a GENUINE MOROCCO LEATHER POCKET BOOK, together with a COUPON TICKET, entitling and giving the holder a share in the drawing of 2818 CASH PRIZES, of the aggregate value of ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS CURRENCY. The Company guarantee to return to each purchaser at least treble the value for his money.

How can this be accomplished? is a question many will doubtless ask themselves, and foreseeing this we offer the following lucid explanation.

The Trade assigned over, anxious to dispose of and realize on the entire stock of the bankrupts in one sale, accepted our offer of $100,000 cash for the lot; after advertising same for sale for one month, and not receiving a single offer, which in the present depression of business and almost total stagnation of trade is not to be wondered at; notwithstanding that our offer was one third less than the actual cost of the manufacture of the Pocket Books. The assignee having to at once realize the effects of the bankrupts, in the interests of the creditors of, had no alternative but to accept this offer and sell us the lot at our own price, thereby enabling us to distribute in prizes $100,000 amount of the purchase, and at the same time retain a fair marginal profit for ourselves; thus you obtain fully double the value of the amount you forward us and it depends on your luck what amount you gain of the One Hundred Thousand Dollar Money Prizes.

THE SALE WILL POSITIVELY CLOSE ON

and orders for pocket books should therefore be forwarded to us at once—no application by letter after Saturday, November 20th, can be entertained, 1000 of the Pocket Books are of the patented manufacture, superior in value to the remainder, the retail price of the same being $8, and these will be forwarded to early purchasers until disposed of.

Therefore those who send immediate orders will reap the advantage of receiving a superior article.

Remittances may be made per order per registered letter by Post Office orders and drafts to be made payable in favor of Frank Starr, Cashier, the Company's Manager. Post Office orders to be drawn on General Post Office, Philadelphia, and drafts on the First National Bank.

The Drawing of Prizes will take place at the Company's Principal Offices, 530 Locust Street, Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, on and the winning numbers will be advertised in this Journal and the principal Philadelphia and New York newspapers of Saturday, November 27th.

The Prizes will be forwarded in drafts, greenbacks or by post office order per registered letter by Monday's morning mails, November 29th, or if preferred prizes can be sent by express, or in any other manner purchasers may select, providing same is pre-paid by them when forwarding orders for pocket books.

Remember this is no lottery, but a bona fide business system founded on a true financial basis which enables the Company to convert into money an otherwise surplus stock, and this too with a good profit to both the purchasers and themselves, effecting a speedy clearance stock which in the present dull times is the great desiderata that in no other way can be successfully attained.

We guarantee each pocket book to be of the best manufacture; of pure morocco leather and internally worth in retail trade at the lowest rate of from $3 to $4.

This is an opportunity that should not be let pass by; one and all should embrace this chance; We afford every one an opportunity of realizing a share in $100,000 at the insignificant outlay of $1 (one dollar) for which they receive value three fold and those who let this fortune chance escape them will have only themselves to blame.

All letters replied to same day as received. We advise intending purchasers to forward orders immediately and thus prevent disappointment and receive prompt attention.

Remember, every one who sends ONE DOLLAR before November 20th, 1

Outlived his Peers.

He lately entered a store in Detroit, and after warming his hands at the stove, he inquired of the proprietor:

"Will you give me a little advice?"

"I guess so; what is it?" was the cheerful reply.

The stranger backed up to the stove, wiped his nose on his hand, and after a moment continued:

"If you wanted to die would you jump into the river or take pizen?"

"Well, I don't know about that. I guess I'd rather live on than do either one. Why, do you feel like dying?"

"I do, mister!" said the man in a deep-toned voice. "Yes, I've stayed around long enough."

"What's there to live for?" demanded the sad man. "There hain't no such times as there used to be—no such men as there once was."

"Well, the times are a little hard, but there's lots of good men left, I guess."

"Purty good, may be," said the old man, as he felt of the stovepipe, "but I can't 'sociate with 'em! After a man has knocked around with Daniel Webster and Henry Clay he can't come down on a level with these everyday plugs and feel good."

"Did you associate with those men?"

"Did I! I've shaken hands with Clay, Calhoun and Patrick Henry more times than you've got hairs on your head!"

"You have, eh?"

"And I knew General Lafayette and all those fellers, and now to have to come down on a par with these no-accounts is killing me by inches. I don't care if I die to-night."

"I guess you could get along if you tried hard," said the sarcastic merchant.

"You're a brazen image!" exclaimed the old man, spitting on the stove with great vigor. "I am as far above such sunflowery men as you are, as the eagle is above the chipmunk."

"You get out of here!" said the merchant. "You are an ignorant old drunkard!"

"I am, eh?" shouted the old man, and he backed the merchant over a box of palm-leaf fans. The clerks hauled him off and threw him out doors, and, as the police took him, the old man said:

"I'm ready to die! Daniel Webster is up there with the angels, and I heard him calling me to get out of this one-horse crowd."

The "Rights of Women."

From Col. Russell's H. Conwell's new book entitled "Woman and the Law," we extract the following concerning the law in regard to wives and husbands:

Marriage is a contract into which no woman need to be drawn against her will, or without a full knowledge of the bargain she is making. She gives up none of her rights in property which she holds, but may do with it as she pleases, free from his control.

He may agree before his marriage to give her a fortune in consideration of the marriage, and he can pay that debt after marriage, although he contracts reckless liabilities in doing so. He may deed property to his wife through a third person, and she may hold it against any of his subsequent creditors. She may be worth a million, and he have nothing but his labor; yet he must support her in good style and supply the needs of the family from his wages, without assistance from her. If both together commit a trespass or assault, or any like misdemeanor, he is punished and she excused. Worse than that is the law whereby the husband is punished for any wrongful act of the wife in his presence, although it might have been beyond his power to prevent it. If she strikes a man, the recipient of her blows has no right to strike back unless to save his life, and her husband must pay for the damage by fine or imprisonment.

Whatever wrongs he does at her command do not make her liable to punishment. She is not compelled to support him if he starve, although she may have a competency; neither is she under legal obligation, before or after her husband's death, to supply the wants of her children.

He may be compelled to pay her debts, contracted before he ever knew her, out of his own capital. She cannot be put in prison for an act less than felony, unless he is put in confinement, too. She has all her own, all its accumulation, all her wages, and at his death, one third of his real estate, and usually one half of his personal property. She may insure his life at his expense, and the payment will go to her, free of any liability on account of his debts; but not so with his policy on her life.

She may commit adultery and live with another man, but he is compelled by law to pay her "pin money." She is not bound by law either to love, or to honor, or obey him. She may abuse him all she pleases; but he must not strike her or return the compliment with any show of force. If he ill-treats her she can place him under bonds to use her kindly. He has no such remedy. She may be a vicious virago, and drive him from the house; yet he must leave her in possession of it, if he is strongest, and go to work and provide a decent living for her. So long as she does not leave him he must provide for her.

If he makes an agreement with her to give her a settlement in lieu or dower, he must pay her, even though her paramour brings the actions to compel him. She may act as his agent in some matters against his will. She may run him in debt to a considerable amount, but she is not forced to pay any of his contracting. If he is mean, or cruel, he must pay for her separate maintenance; while she may act as hateful as a witch, and rich withal, and yet be free of any claim from him for separate maintenance. He is liable for her slanderous talk, even though he tries, on the spot, to prevent her from speaking. She can refuse to do any kind of labor. She can waste his goods, and even burn his house before his eyes, and he is powerless. She can do business on her separate account and devote her whole time to it, as much as he does to his occupation and more; and taking all the profits, leave the home and children to his sole care and expense. She is responsible for nothing, not even for herself; he is for everything, even for acts and mishaps beyond his control. He cannot sell his real estate without her signature, while in many of the States she can buy and sell real property, wholly unrestricted by his wishes or his autograph.

The Pacific Disaster.

The Revenue steamer Wolcott has returned from her cruise after the survivors of the Pacific. Steaming up Barclay Sound, the first Indian village was hailed and a canoe came off containing a white man, who went aboard and introduced himself as the first mate of the ship Orpheus. He stated that she had been run into the Thursday night before by a steamer, and was wrecked on the following Saturday morning on an island near Copper island. The captain and crew had got ashore safely, and were encamped further up. Proceeding in the direction indicated, another canoe approached, in which was Capt. Sawyer of the Orpheus.

He gave the following account of the disaster; Thursday evening he was approaching the Cape, by his reckoning about twenty miles off, with a fresh south-east breeze, and steering about north-west. The man at the wheel first saw the steamer's headlights off the port bow, immediately after straight ahead. Could see neither of her side lights. Could not make out which direction she was coming. Put up his helm. The light came nearer. He continued to starboard his helm until his vessel had turned around with the sails flat aback. The steamer, by this time, had got very near him, blew one whistle, and in less than half a minute her bow struck his ship just abaft the forechains, crushing in the rail and breaking down the planking to near the copper. She surged alongside of her, striking and grating along the starboard side, carrying away all the starboard braces and rigging on that side; also the foretopmast. Capt. Sawyer states that he hailed the steamer as she surged past and called to them to lay by him and send a boat, as he then supposed his ship to be in a sinking condition; but no one answered his hail; neither did he see any one on deck. She drifted or steamed away, he was not certain which. He afterward saw a dash of a light, which he took for a signal. He thought they had heard his hail and would lay by him. He saw her no more. His ship at that time demanded all of his attention. He lay to the remainder of that night and nearly all day Friday, repairing his rigging. That forenoon he got underway again and made sail for land. Soon after dark he made a light, which he took for Cape Flattery, not knowing there was a light on the coast further north. He allowed five miles clearance for Duncan Rock, and considered himself safe for entering the Straits of Fuca, when, about five o'clock Saturday morning, his ship scraped over a reef, immediately after struck her bow on a rock, stuck fast and filled. The light he mistook for Flattery was Cape Beale, at the entrance of Barclay Sound, thirty-five miles north of the former. The ship will prove a total loss. Capt. Sawyer got all the valuables, etc., he could get out of her, and encamped on the shore with his wife and the crew, in tents made of sails; had hired a canoe of the Indians and started his mate to Victoria for help, but the weather was so bad the Indians would not venture out on the voyage. When the Wolcott arrived, Lieut. Harwood took all of them aboard of his vessel, with the most valuable portion of the goods saved, leaving the first mate of the Orpheus in charge of the wreck until the owners could be consulted. All were safely landed at Fort Townsend on Friday morning.

Nothing was heard of or seen in Barclay Sound of anything pertaining to the Pacific. Capt. Harwood and pilot Peter Thompson went to the wreck of the Orpheus and examined it carefully. They say the ship was undoubtedly struck by a steamer just abaft the forward rigging. There is no expectation of rescuing any more of those on the Pacific. There has been heavy weather most of the time since the wreck, and after a thorough search no hopes are entertained of further discoveries.

News and Notes.

Mrs. Moulton sent a letter to Plymouth church Friday night, reiterating her reasons for not being present at the meeting, protesting against the action of the church in dropping her name from the rolls and asking that this wrong be righted by joining with her in calling a council of churches, before which they may state their reason for their action and she can state hers, the said council to judge impartially between them. If they do not join with her in calling this council in four weeks she will proceed herself to ask a council of the churches in order to vindicate her Christian character and name.

A "Rock-Rooted" Article.

The result of the November elections in four of the great Northern commonwealths marks another stage in the progress of the inevitable extinction of that effete political superstition which goes by the name of the democratic party.

New York, whose huckstering politicians started the idea and began the impossible work of resurrecting that defunct political carcass, has been carried by the republicans, or so nearly so, at all events, that the meaning of the result is the same. Pennsylvania, too, where the democratic rag baby gave such promise of survival, the republicans still hold. Massachusetts, whose protest against Grantism was so astonishingly emphasized by the election of the democratic Governor, Gaston, has gone back to the republican party flag. And Wisconsin, where the old red sandstone politicians scratched out their name and got behind a screen long enough to engage in an incestuous liaison with the "granger" communists, the offspring of which was "Farmer Taylor" and the iniquitous Potter law, has done likewise. These four States, all of which the resurrected graveyard mold which goes by the name of democracy expected to carry, and three of which, at least, the "democrats" must have carried in order to give them the smallest ground of hope in the coming Presidential contest, have all, pinching their nostrils to keep out the bad smell, turned their backs upon the ancient political corpse, saying, "We will have none of it!"

The democratic party departed this life in the year 1860. The election of Abraham Lincoln was its death-knell. The guns of Beauregard at Fort Samter were minute-guns fired over its grave. Dead and buried, nothing remained but its memory, fossilized in the hearts of the mourners, who kept on voting for the corpse by sheer force of habit. Just as it is said of the Bourbons in Berks county that they vote for General Jackson even to this day, so do certain American citizens, in most other respects sane people, continue to vote for a long-since departed thing called the democratic party.

They think it will come back to life again if they keep on voting for it long enough, and they wait even as the denizens of the Black Forest waited for the coming of Barbarossa. The legend ran that the emperor of that name was not dead, but sat enthroned in a cave surrounded by his knights, in the Hartz mountains. Thence he was to come forth to reunite his people and lead them again to victory. So long had he sat there, motionless, in a sleep like death, which yet was not death, that his beard had grown down to and become a part of the rock at his feet. He was literally rock-rooted, even as the mythical democratic party is. When a century or so had passed, a crow would enter the cave and utter its hoarse cry. Barbarossa would start from his seat, grasp his sword and ask "Is it time?" "It is not time!" the crow would reply, and Barbarossa and his knights would then go to sleep again, to be aroused in the same way, after another century or so had passed, by another crow, to ask the same question and to receive the same answer. And so on, until a crow should come and say, "It is time!" when the mountain would be rent asunder, and Barbarossa and his knights, alias the democratic party, would leap forth and do things prodigious. Since the democratic party retired to its cave, only one crow has put in an appearance. It was in 1872. The rock-rooted old fossil started up, thinking its time had come; but the response was unfavorable, and the rock-rooted old party went to roost again. But its superstitious relicts still wait in expectancy that a crow will arouse it from its stony cavern by the call of "Time!" and that then great things will happen. How long they will yet wait in this stupid belief depends on how long the Lord shall let men of average intelligence be governed in their political actions by a superstition that is perfectly idiotic.

Whoso imagines that a political combination known as the democratic party stands the ghost of a chance to choose the next President, is simply infatuated with his own folly. That party and the purposes for which it existed are among the things of the past, to which the people of this country are not going back. Its dogma of State sovereignty, on which African slavery was upheld, is a delusion that can never be revived. No interest exists in the present stage of national evolution, or is ever likely again to exist, to which that dogma and its corollaries can find a practical application. It is a mere obsolete theory. The living issues of the time have no possible relation to it. They are questions around which new political formations must and will take place, and from which the superstition called the democratic party is as widely removed as the immobility of a dead body is from the activity of a living one.

Why should living men persist in an impossible attempt to bring back the dead to life? Can Mr. Tilden, or any other so-called "democrat," give a rational reason for this preposterous project of turning back the inevitable?

—The Cincinnati Commercial describes the improved process of hog slaughtering in Porkopolis, by which in the space of two and a half minutes a hog loses his place in the world as a portion of the vitalized creation and becomes so much bacon, so many spare-ribs and such a quantity of lard. The porcine grunters are driven up the gangway to the slaughter pen, where an able-bodied colored gentleman claps a chain around his hind legs, and the pressure of a steam lever jerks the struggling and loudly squealing pig into the air, and before he fairly comprehends the situation another man, gory to his very armpits, plunges a knife into his throat and taps the life current. There is a constant line of stuck hogs passing down an elevated bar, and when they get to the end of it they are dead and are plumped into an enormous tank of boiling water. The great personal pride of a pig-sticker is to have very little if any squealing on the part of a hog. The hogs take their post-mortem warm bath, into which they are plunged from the iron rod, eight and ten at a time, and, by means of a revolving iron skid operated by steam at one end of the tank, are thrown out singly upon a long wooden table, of which they are scraped by twelve or fifteen men. They start in rough, shaggy and dirty at one end of the table, and reach the other end as clean and white as may be. Then they are cut up into all the various forms of pork—hams, shoulders, middles, etc.,—and the men who do the cutting use their knives and saws with the skill and precision of anatomists, cleaning a bone when it is to be thrown away so perfectly that a hungry dog would pass it by in disgust. To cut up a thousand hogs is now considered only a fair day's work for one man.

—"You see," said one in San Francisco, "I don't take a back seat to no man in this town in landing a paper just where it is wanted. Up on Stockton street there is a little French woman who hangs a parrot out in a cage from her window every afternoon, and when I sling the paper up it falls on the ledge above the cage, and the parrot grabs it with its beak. She can't read a word of English, but she takes the paper because she likes to see me sling it around so lively. I never missed but once, and that was one foggy day last Winter, when I suppose I didn't make a proper calculation for the condition of the atmosphere." "Pshaw! that ain't nowhere," chimed in another; "I've been serving a morning newspaper all along to a man who's never left his bed for seven years. Got the rheumatism. There's a hole busted in one of the windows about two inches wide, and it's two stories high. I shoot it up through that slit at 5.20 every morning, and it strikes him in the face and wakes him up. On these dark mornings, when there's a high wind, it takes some mighty lively calculation to hit the place just right. One morning I dropped it on the foot of the bed and didn't wake him; so he stopped the paper the next day."

—Friday is always a "fish day," and no dessert is so well liked with either salt or fresh fish, as plain or steamed rice, eaten with sugar and butter or sugar and cream. Wash the rice well, let it soak about an hour in lukewarm water, stir in a teaspoonful of salt, set the dish in the steamer over a kettle of boiling water and steam one hour. Stir two or three times: and add no water after it begins to cook, but when put in the steamer let there be as much water in the dish as will cover the rice to a depth of quarter of an inch. If properly cooked, this rice will be light, dry, and no two kernels will stick together. Housekeepers who are in the habit of placing a doughy, sticky paste on the table, try this once, and hear husband and children asking for rice twice a week instead of once a fortnight.—Country Gentlewan.

"A REPOSITORY OF PASHION, PLEASURE, AND INSTRUCTION."

Harper's Bazar.
ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the Journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of the first excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, short stories and essays, its poetry and squibs, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

Board of Trad. Meeting.

School Committee.

A meeting of the school committee of this city was held in the council rooms Saturday evening. The recommendation of the Board of Aldermen that Mr. Durgin be removed from the Academy building was discussed at some length by several members of the board and also by Mr. Durgin the principal of the Jones school, and Dr. Stevens of the Board of Aldermen, both of whom had been invited to be present for that purpose. The recommendation was rejected by an almost unanimous vote; Mr. Goodrich of ward six being the only member in favor of transferring Mr. Durgin. A large number of bills were approved and ordered to be paid. The resignation of Miss Franklin was accepted and a committee was appointed to visit the schools and report to the board the progress which has been made in music, and whether it was advisable to hire another teacher. Mr. Pender of ward two introduced a resolution, requesting that the city councils immediately erect a school building at the west end, which was at once adopted. It was stated as an argument for this project that the material for a school house can be purchased at least twenty per cent. cheaper now than one year ago.

The sub-committee of the Woodbury school recommended Miss Ellen Newton for teacher. A vote was taken which resulted in a tie. Mr. Jones of ward four moved that all the schools in the State street building be placed under the charge of Mr. Durgin or Mr. Buzzell. Mr. Nowell offered as an amendment that the matter be left to the chairmen of the sub-committees. Mr. Jones accepted the amendment and the motion was carried.

The subject of furnishing substitutes by the teachers was then brought up and discussed at considerable length, some of the members being of the opinion that teachers take advantage of the privileges granted them by the committee. Before a vote was reached Mr. Nowell moved an adjournment, which was carried.

"The Rose of Tyrol."

Twice have the Richings Bernard Opera Company given Portsmouth audiences most delightful entertainments,—last year in the shape of a costume concert, and last Friday evening by the production of a comic opera, in two acts, "The Rose of Tyrol." It is entirely needless to assure those who have once heard Mr. and Mrs. Bernard that the opera was finely rendered. Mrs. Bernard's voice was as flexible and pure-toned as ever, and the ringing melodies that she sang were in turn powerful or sweet. The choice selection of the evening was the "romance:" "It was my dearest friend," which deserved and obtained a hearty encore. Mrs. Bernard seems always absorbed in the character she assumes, and her assumption of "Gritlly" was dignified, self-respecting and perfect in every way. Her glorious voice and charm of musical expression are by no means her only accomplishments. Few actresses of the present day appear to better advantage or more natural.

The chorus, consisting of a dozen excellent singers, produced a fine effect in "Fond dreams of the past," "In your gay village," and "All trials are o'er." Mr. Bernard and Mrs. Drayton, with voices trained to a high degree of musical culture, are indispensable to the success of the opera, and their personations of "Franz" and "Mrs. Schreckenwald" gave exhibitions of high dramatic art. Mr. Bernard's tenor is simply magnificent in volume and tone, while Mrs. Drayton's contralto is rich and melodious. Mr. Holmes, in the character of "Schreckenwald," sang "When a man too much enjoys" in a manner highly suggestive of Barnabee, and the audience would have been pleased with a repetition. "The Rose of Tyrol," is unexceptionably enjoyable and as unexceptionably cast with Mr. Benitz as "Berthold," and in a resume of the characters named none can be selected who could be easily spared from the representation. The grand choruses were inspiring and thrillingly sung, the solos were fine and the duos lively and laughable, especially that of Mrs. Bernard and Mrs. Drayton. Rarely has a Portsmouth audience been so well pleased, and the return of the Company at an early date is universally desired.

Jottings.

The total loss by the burning of the Oceanic House, will reach the sum of $100,000. The general opinion regarding the fire is that it was the work of an incendiary, as there have not been fire or lights used in the hotel for several weeks. Two watchmen slept in the house and boarding at the Atlantic Cottage. Mr. Poor has not decided whether or not he will rebuild the hotel.

Special meeting of the Board of Trade tomorrow evening.

The Boston Herald says Martin V. B. Stimson of Kittery did not appear at the adjourned examination on the charge of attempt to swindle, Friday, thus forfeiting $2500 bonds.

Mr. George Hackett, clerk at the American House, Boston, has been appointed chief clerk of the St. James hotel, Jacksonville, Fla.

Capt. Wm. M. Shackford was one of the oldest residents of Portsmouth. For many years he was a very successful and popular merchant-shipmaster. Retiring from this profession he became connected with the Piscataqua Savings Bank in its direction, and until within a few years was its president. As a savings institution it has been one of the most prosperous in New England. He was a member of the Unitarian church and a constant attendant up to the time of his death. As a disciplinarian and systematic man he had few equals and, in gentlemanly bearing, no superior; an estimable citizen and most excellent neighbor. His only son is Rev. Charles Shackford, formerly of Boston and now professor at Cornell University, New York. A grandson, Capt. William W. Shackford, is in command of one of the large steamers of the Pacific Mail line on the Pacific coast. Capt. Shackford leaves a fortune estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000.

The Nashua Telegraph, in commenting on the failure of the Magoon jury to agree, says: "If conviction could not be procured in a case so plain as this, there is little prospect that a conviction can be had in any of the several cases now pending in this State. This conclusion raises the serious question, if there is to be no punishment for poisoners in this State. Notwithstanding the certainty that strychnia or other poison causes a death, is society to have no protection from the person who administers the deadly drug? A few more failures to convict, and murder by poisoning will be attended with little danger of exposure and punishment." It is said that one or more of the minority of jurors in the case referred to think it more than probable that Magoon was guilty, although they could not satisfy their consciences unless they gave Magoon the full benefit of the doubts. It is reported that one of the four, in arguing the case said Magoon at best would not live many years, and he did not believe the prisoner would hurt anybody between now and the time of his expected demise.

DIED.

GOSS.—In this city, Nov. 13th, Henry W. Goss, only son of Rev. John A. and Martha J. Goss, aged 6 years, 11 months, and 25 days.

☞ Funeral Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Court street Christian Church. Friends are invited without further notice.

A Well-Merited Success.

As contrasted with fortunate charlatanism, well-merited success is less frequent than it ought to be. Puffery, blatant assertion and coined recommendations, too often, for instance, give an ephemeral popularity to medicinal compounds intrinsically worthless at the expense of really deserving remedies, and to the grievous detriment of the sick. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a tonic alterative which has achieved one of the best merited and most signal successes of the nineteenth century, has never relied upon such methods of manufacturing a reputation, nor has the competition of counterfeit tonics ever affected its reputation in the slightest degree. That it is the best remedy for malaria, and the surest safeguard against it; that it eradicates dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, disorders of the kidneys and bladder, and the various causes which produce weakness, are implicit and well founded beliefs with the great body of the American people.

Coughs and Colds are often overlooked. A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs or some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effectual COUGH REMEDY.

From the New York Tribune.

A WANT SUPPLIED.

The American mind is active. It has given us books of fiction for the sentimentalist, learned books for the scholar and professional student, but few books for the people. A book for the people must relate to a subject of universal interest. Such a subject is the physical man, and such a book "THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER," a copy of which has been recently laid on our table. The high professional attainments of its author, Dr. R. V. PIERCE, of Buffalo, N. Y.,—and the advantages derived by him from an extensive practice, would alone insure for his work a cordial reception. But these are not the merits for which it claims our attention. The Author is a man of the people. He sympathizes with them in all their afflictions, efforts, and attainments. He perceives their want—a knowledge of themselves—and believing that all truth should be made as universal as God's own sunlight, from his fund of learning and experience he has produced a work in which he gives them the benefits of his labors. In it he considers man in every phase of his existence, from the ...oment he emerges "from a rayless atom, too diminutive for the sight, until he gradually evolves to the maturity of those Conscious Powers, the exercise of which furnishes subjective evidence of our immortality." Proceeding upon the theory that every fact of mind has a physical antecedent, he has given an admirable treatise on Cerebral Physiology, and shown the bearings of the facts thus established upon individual and social welfare. The author believes with Spencer, that, "vigorous health and its accompanying high spirits are larger elements of happiness than any other things whatever," and accordingly has introduced an extensive discussion of the methods by which we may preserve the integrity of the system and ofttimes prevent the onset of disease. Domestic Remedies—their preparation, uses, and effects—form a prominent feature of the work. The hygienic treatment, or nursing of the sick, is an important subject, and receives attention commensurate with its importance. Nearly all diseases "to which flesh is heir" are described, their symptoms and causes explained, and proper domestic treatment suggested. To reciprocate the many favors bestowed upon him by a generous public, the author offers his book at a price ($1.50) little exceeding the cost of publication. Our readers can obtain this practical and valuable work by addressing the author.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All needful for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their application in form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability in his part leads me to recommend him as having a right to apply to him for professional services, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COMBINED PAPERS—FORTY-SIXTH YEAR.

The Country Gentleman

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1876.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN possesses an unequaled Corps of Correspondents, regular and occasional, among the best Farmers of all Parts of the Country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United States and civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives in its Horticultural Department a continuous variety of information and suggestions, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the mon hly numbers of most magazines devoted to the same topics.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce and disseminate Improved Stock of every kind throughout the country, and commands to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains unusually full and fresh Market Reports, giving special attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN embraces numerous independent branches of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and so on, and weekly presents a column or two for the Household and Fireside Interests, under the Fireside Reading. It contains a well edited Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a 24x30, large sized steel engraving, "Washington at the Head of the Army," or "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among these will be a series of illustrations of the objects on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to expend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., than any rival. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its

are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I first benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said there were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do with out them. In this please find $1.5c for three more packages for my friends. H. L. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered very badly from Neuralgia, Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see one of your advertisements in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money could buy them. I think the must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

SCRIBNERS' MONTHLY for 1876!

The publishers invite attention to the following list of some of the attractive articles secured for Scribner's Monthly, for the coming year. In the field of fiction, for the conclusion of numerous novelettes and shorter stories, there will be

TWO REMARKABLE SERIAL STORIES,
By American Authors.

The first of these, now complete in our hands,

"GABRIEL CONROY,"
By BRET HARTE,

Begins in the November number, and will run for twelve months. This is Mr. Harte's first extended work. The scenes and characters, which the author has chosen from his favorite field, California, are painted with character istic vividness and power; and the work is without doubt the most graphic record of California life that has yet appeared.

We shall also begin in the January number,

"PHILIP NOLAN'S FRIENDS,
OR, SHOW YOUR PASSPORTS,"
By EDWARD EVERETT HALE.

The scene of this story is laid in the Southwestern territory, now forming the States of Louisiana and Texas, at the time of Aaron Burr's treason. The main characters are a Spanish officer, who has become an American, now French, and now Spanish, and this record of their adventurous lives makes a story of intense and unflagging interest throughout.

A SECOND "FARMER'S VACATION,"
By Col. GEO. E. WARING, Jr.

Col. Waring is now in Europe, visiting, in a row-boat ride of two hundred and fifty miles, one of the most favored districts of the world, the vine valleys of Europe. This second series of papers promises to be even more interesting than that with which our readers are already familiar.

CENTENNIAL LETTERS,
Edited by John Vance Cheney.

A rare collection of Revolutionary Letters, mainly from stores in the hands of the descendants of Col. Joseph Ward. They are full of interest, and will be read with a rare relish in connection with the Centennial celebration of the year.

BRILLIANTLY ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES ON AMERICAN COLLEGES,

Written respectively by their friends, will appear during the year. The revised interest in college life makes these papers especially timely, and will secure for them unusual attention.

OLD NEW YORK.

Elegantly illustrated articles on Old New-York, by John F. Mines, will appear at once, and will attract the attention of all, in city or country, who are interested with interest the development of the great metropolis, and affectionately remember the quaint peculiarities of its olden time.

Every number is profusely illustrated, thus enabling us to give to our descriptive and narrative articles, an interest and permanent value never attained in a non illustrated periodical. Besides the accustomed management the magazine will in the future be devoted, as it has been in the past, to sound literature and Christian progress.

The Editorial Departments occupy over twenty pages of each number and contain Dr. Holland's vigorous and timely editorials, as well as Reviews of the latest works in Art, Literature, and Science.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Richest Men in The World.

The firm of Flood, O'Brien, Mackey & Fair, is the proper subject of watchful observation and comes properly within the scope of newspaper criticism. Its wealth is so vast and its undertakings so intimately connected with the public interest that the members who compose the firm may not plead their sensibilities to escape an honest discussion of their acts. The "Bonanza" firm, as it is popularly designated, is, by its wealth, clothed with a power that may be wielded to the promotion of the public interests, or it may be exercised to the great injury of the community. If we are to credit the well authenticated estimate of the value of their mining property we must place it in the hundreds of millions. If we can rely upon the bonanza mines to produce as in the last twelve months, and give to their yield a continuance indicated by the present dimensions of their ore deposit, we may safely say that the firm in question is the richest in the world.

The wealth of the Hopes, of Amsterdam, the Rothschilds, of Frankfort, the corporation of the Bank of England, will, in brief time, be overshadowed by those men's millions. Not only are they so rich in their own right, but they stand as trustees for each individual shareholder, and they are pledged to the faithful and intelligent discharge of their trust. The press is the only institution that can supervise their conduct and hold them to the moderate exercise of their power and the faithful discharge of the duty. The press is the only intelligent tribunal that can not be deceived, overawed or swerved from the performance of its duty. Here and there will be found some poor fawning mendicant newspaper which will kiss the foot of the golden calf, but the great body of honest journalism will watch this growing Colossus and fearlessly combat it when it shall endeavor to imperil the best interests of the community. We do not say that it has, and we do not mean to hint that it will, act other than generously and justly. The Consolidated Virginia mine produces $2,000,000 per month. The California promises, after January, to yield the same amount. The ownership of the Gould & Curry, the Savage, Best & Belcher, the Andes, and other of the Comstock mines is accredited to the same firm. Five millions per month is not an improbable yield in the immediate future from these mines—sixty millions per annum! not in railroads bonds, nor stock of corporations, nor in paper securities, nor vague promises to pay—but the ores go from the mine to the mill, from the mill to the mint and from the mint to their vaults in bags of golden double-eagles.

In the face of so startling a fact, and in contemplation of such immense power, is it surprising that intelligent persons watch its development with something of jealous fear? The continuance of such an income for a generation would suffice to pay the national debt. It is equal to the revenue of a kingdom; it gives a power that Emperors do not enjoy. One year's income would build a transcontinental railroad, another would purchase the American Navy, and ten years would buy the real estate, the lands and houses of San Francisco. The men whom accident has elevated to this dizzy height must accept, with their wealth, the responsibilites of their position; they have a right to demand honest criticism and not toadying subserviency. Such an opportunity to achieve an honorable reputation is seldom offered as is now presented to the members composing this firm. The mode of procedure is exceedingly simple. The community only asks for just and generous conduct commensurate with their great wealth and great power.

On The Chemung.

[N. Y. Tribune.]

The place after all to buy and own land, and live and have mills, and be flooded and devastated and all that, and get paid handsomely for it, is on the banks of the Chemung Canal. It used to be profitable to live in the neighborhood of Mount Vesuvius and have your property destroyed, and all your family overwhelmed by an eruption, and then go around with a subscription paper informing an eager and sympathetic public all about it, and offering an opportunity to the philantropic to make good the losses. That was a business, too, which did not require any talent except that of silence. A great many persons were engaged in it who never saw Mount Vesuvius and never had been visited by any eruption other than cutaneous, but they professed to speak nothing but the purest Italian, and they shoved the subscription paper with an energy worthy of a better cause; and report said they found it an easier and more lucrative pursuit than carrying a hod or driving a mule. But that is of the past. The thing to do to-day is to own a bit of property on the line of the Chemung Canal and pray for rain. A little rain makes a freshet on the line of that commercial artery, and a freshet breaks down the banks and inundates the land, and makes a few bushels of corn with which it is planted worth a great deal more than the original cost of the estate. And you don't have to go around with a subscription paper to get it, either. You just make an arrangement with a statesman or a firm of statesmen of the sort that do business in the lobby one year and in the Assembly the next, agreeing to give him or them a half or a third of the gross proceeds, and he or they go right to the legislature and get just as much money out of the State as you can stretch your conscience to swear to as actual damages. And you need not go to any trouble to hunt up the statesmen. The chances are five to one that they will call on you to talk business before the freshet has subsided.

Now there was "Jim Locke;" he owned land along the Chemung. There came a rain and a freshet, and his land, especially twelve acres, with corn on it six inches high, was flooded. Two statesmen named Hill and Smith went to the legislature and got out of the State Treasury $11,445 65 damages, which, according to the testimony, was a great deal more than the land was ever worth. The statesmen took over five thousand dollars of the amount as fees, and gave "Jim" the rest. "Jim Locke," we regret to say, behaved painfully bad about it, and Mr. G. L. Smith of the firm of the statesmen remarked to him, in the letter inclosing his check for $6,130 43, that he would never have got a cent had it not been for himself and the other statesman, Mr. Hill. And then said Mr. Smith, with a severity of manner which it must be confessed "Jim" partly deserved, "I should have thought Jim Locke would have been grateful to us." Among Jim Locke's losses by this devastating flood were six tons of iron spikes, etc., and the fearfulness of the disaster may be imagined from the fact that when the waters receded there was never a spike recovered. The State of New York, however, under the advice and counsel of the statesmen referred to, paid "Jim Locke" for every spike and every pound of iron. There is nothing mean about the State of New York when she listens to the advice of statesmen like Hill and Smith, or has in hand the case of a man whom unfortunate disaster followed fast and faster with a Chemung freshet. "Jim Locke" was $6,000 richer for the freshet, and the statesmen who procured the award bettered their fortunes to the extent of over $5,000.

And so we say to any person who thinks of being overwhelmed by an eruption of Mount Vesuvius, Don't do it. Rather buy land on the Chemung. Twelve acres of land planted with corn in a good season for freshets, and with a fair number of statesmen in the Assembly, will be enough to keep any family above want.

The Ossipee Murderer.

A Boston Globe correspondent has been interviewing Lemuel T. Abbott, who murdered his wife and is now in jail at Ossipee Corner. He is a mild looking, pleasant faced man, in general appearance strongly resembling the campaign portraits of Horace Greeley. He was born in Ossipee, is fifty-eight years old, and has been twice married, having two children by the first wife and three by the second. He represents the murdered woman as a rum drinker, and a common scold who made his home anything but enjoyable. On the day of the murder she repeatedly requested him to buy her some rum, which at first he refused to do, but finally concluded to purchase it, thinking it would stop her scolding for a while. When he suggested that she might wash the floor, she swore at him and told him to do it himself, but finally commenced, but declared she'd be d——d if she would finish it. Abbott says he was feeling good natured and had no idea of murdering her. She charged him with giving a wagon to his son-in-law, and a sewing machine to a daughter, his first wife's. He denied it and she called him a d——d liar. He asked her if she didn't believe him to go over and see for herself, but she replied that she "would be d——d if she would." Further talk of the kind ensued and Abbott says: "She madded me. She said I bought the wagon and machine, and that's all I remember. It seems to me I must have been out of my head to have done so. Why I done it I don't know. How I got the weapon you know as well as I. I don't know as I have any recollection of it. I went into the entry for the hatchet. Couldn't say as I killed her with a single blow. I have been in so much trouble that I didn't know where I was. There has been three days at a time that I wouldn't speak to her. She'd howl after me, jaw me, rave at me, till I got out of sight. I made no attempt to conceal the body. I wanted to die and get out of the way. After the murder I tried to kill myself. I hanged myself once by a rope; it broke and I tried a chain. Guess I feel the effects some yet."

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 13.

The October elections have cast a gloomy shadow over democratic hopes. It is not that the vote is so decidedly republican as to make a reversal impossible, but the diversions and hatreds which have been made incurable prevent democratic union and concentrated action to accomplish that result. The Presidential contest has been fought and lost so far as the democracy are concerned. They come together in the present Congress, imbued with that feeling, and notwithstanding their heavy majority in the House, have no great amount of harmony in feeling.

The main contest at the opening will be over the Speakership, and I venture the prediction that the Ohio and Pennsylvania ideas will predominate. The candidates are somewhat numerous, especially for the minor places." Fernando Wood, with his long experience, self-possession and deportment, has an an ambition to fill the chair from which he has been reprimanded. He has entertained and feted the leading democratic members freely in the past, but never got far inside their jackets. He is able, sagacious, calculating and unscrupulous, but too cold and hunkerish for present use. Sam. Cox has experience, ability, wit, good humor and geniality, which make him a favorite with all sides in the House. He is not large enough and has too much love of fun to make a dignified Speaker. But he is for hard money and free trade and comes from New York, which bars him out. New York will be punished for its influence on Ohio. Kerr, of Indiana, will get considerable support on account of his locality and because of his hard money sentiments. He is a man of ability, great industry and unexceptionably good habits; and against him no charges or suspicions have ever existed of favoring extravagance or jobs. But he is too cold and unsympathetic to draw around him warm friends. The proposition to give him the hard money votes of the democracy and the republican vote would be a failure if attempted. The probabilities are that Sam. Randall will be Speaker, though opposed by the free trade and hard money men, and having the jealousies of Western democrats somewhat against him, lest the leading committees be not put under their control. He has seen a dozen years of service in the House, is an unmitigated and uncompromising partisan, of good temper, and full of kindly feelings. He is industrious, a good parliamentarian, has never been suspected of jobbing of any kind, and would be more likely to fix committees up fairly than a more narrow-gauged man. He has always been opposed to the issue of bank currency and for substituting greenbacks in their place, confining the business of banks to discounts and deposits. This will weaken him considerably, but not enough to seriously damage his chances. About two years ago, he abandoned the use of liquors, and in the famous fillibuster session of thirty-six hours over the civil rights bill, he led on the democracy with tea for his stimulant. It was an unnatural beverage for a leader with that kind of following, and shows he must have been the master spirit of the occasion or there would have been a revolt.

The candidates for Clerk seem narrowed down to two ex-members: Archer of Maryland and Adams of Kentucky. If Randall is Speaker, Adams will most likely be Clerk; but if the Speakership goes West, the Clerk will more likely be from the East.

The candidates for Sergeant-at-Arms are numerous. Columbus Alexander, who made himself famous in fighting the Board of Public Works before the investigating committee and against whom the safe burglary job was put up, is more generally spoken of than any one else. As an untiring fighter he is a natural successor to Ordway.

The Door-keeper of the House has more patronage to dispose of than all the rest, and the candidates count by scores. Each one who fails will want a place under the successful candidate. This democratic House being a body of reformers, if you should chance to hear there was any log-rolling or corrupt combinations, or any carpet-baggers around, set it down to the innocence and simplicity of the crowd. EXE.

News and Notes.

The steamer Albert, of Pictou, from Magdalen Islands, reports that the ship Calcutta, from Quebec for Liverpool, deal laden, was wrecked on Grosse Isle, on Sunday week. Twenty-two men of the crew and a lady passenger were drowned. The captain, three men and a boy were saved.

Harvard has beaten Yale at foot-ball.

The writing-desk which Charles Dickens used while in New York on his last lecturing tour is kept in the private office of the Westminster Hotel. Over it hangs a large portrait of Dickens. Near by is a large photograph of the Chinese Embassy, all of whom stopped at the Westminster during their stay in the city. A Boston paper perpetrated a joke at the expense of the hotel on their account. Knowing the reputation of the Westminster for procuring the best of everything to suit all tastes, this newspaper man gave out that Mr. Ferrin, the proprietor, had disappeared on the advent of Celestials. After a tedious and prolonged search, the article gravely stated, he was found in Central Park, gathering bird's-nests to please the palates of his Chinese guests.

The New York Times announces that Geo. L. Fox, the well-known actor, has become insane.

The official returns of the Nebraska election show a republican majority of over two-thirds. The republican candidates for Judges of the Supreme Court received from 31,226 down to 27,767 votes; and the vote for the republican candidates for regents ranged between 29,744 and 27,053. The democratic vote on regents ranged between 13,448 and 11,684. The republican majority is therefore about 16,000. The new constitution was adopted by a vote of 30,202 for it to 5,474 against it. The total vote was nearly 45,000, against 22,141 for Grant in 1872. As a harbinger for 76 this is quite agreeable.

Out of the dozen men who have been in trade at Moultonborough Corner since 1830 one-half have become common drunkards and gone to fill drunkards' graves. Only one accumulated any property.

The Cincinnati Enquirer declares that William Allen is "the choice of the people of Ohio on an honest vote," and it calls upon Governor Hayes to resign. Why not get up a fourteenth of September and shoot him out of office? A committee of citizens, a white horse, a mob, and the thing is done. Democratic pork packers, have you no spirit about you?—N. O. Repub.

A Cuban woman commands a detachment of the rebel army. She leads the insurgents in person, dressed in a riding habit, and mounted on a fine horse, and is as brave as a lion.

Senator Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware, who is at this time the most prominent and available candidate for the democratic nomination for the Presidency, has been making a tour through the South and says that "everywhere and from all classes I heard expressions of satisfaction that the institution of slavery was at an end. The superior economy of free labor was admitted on all sides. The colored people everywhere in the South recognized the social inferiority of the whites, and seldom endeavored to avail themselves of the opportunities offered by the various clauses of this bill for claiming higher social privileges." Mr. Bayard, like all the democratic politicians, seems possessed of the idea that President Grant desires a third term.

The Commissioner of Education says we spent $74,000,000 for education last year.

Judge Kelley has been as dumb as Gen. Cary since the November elections. If he has been telling the truth, the defeat of the soft-moneyites leaves the country in a terribly dangerous condition. If this is so, he should speak up and tell us how it can be rescued.—Tribune.

The Riverside hosiery mills at Laconia have started up.

The prohibitionists would have shown good sense and a better appreciation of the situation, if they had nominated Governor Cheney as their candidate. He is a temperance man and an honest and capable one, and every vote thrown for a third candidate is a vote for the democratic candidate. So long as the "prohibitionists" insist upon throwing their influence against temperance men and in favor of brewers and distillers, so long will Brother Deering be compelled to sell the ballots he prints to the rag men at two cents a pound.—Manchester Dispatch.

On account of the state of the markets the Amoskeag Company at Manchester has given its operatives notice of a cut down from five to fifteen per cent., beginning December 1st.

Upon the eve of a Presidential election the democratic party is burdened with a large majority in the Lower House of Congress; a contest for the Speakership; a general war upon Presidential aspirants within its ranks; a dispute as to whether the rag baby is dead or alive; a general set-back in the State election; and other troubles too numerous to mention.

The Boston, Barre and Gardner Railroad, running from Worcester to Peterboro, reports an increase of $39,568 for the year ending September 30, of which $26,000 comes from the Monadnock road, indicating a large increase of business since leased by the above road.

The conviction of Moeller, the United States gauger indicted at Milwaukee for conspiring to defraud the Government of the tax on spirits, is looked upon at the Treasury Department as a great victory over the North-Western branch of the Whisky Ring. The case against Moeller was weaker than that against any one else who was indicted in Milwaukee, and the Whisky Ring made common cause with him, knowing that his conviction would insure that of others.

Bessie Turner says her book is founded on facts that are stranger than fiction.

A soldier named Bernhardt, reported killed in the fight with a band of Cheyenne Indians, near Fort Wallace, Kan., two weeks ago, was found wandering on the prairie by a party of soldiers out hunting. He lost his horse in the fight and hid himself in the grass, but was afterward found by two Indians, whom he kept at bay ten hours with his rifle. They then left, and from that time till found by the soldiers he had wandered about the prairie without food and was almost famished when discovered.

Florida papers report an almost total failure of the sponge crop.

The second trial of Moses B. Sawyer for the murder of Mrs. Alma Emerson at Piermont, which was to have begun at Plymouth, Monday, is postponed on account of the sickness of two important witnesses, John Emerson and Mrs. Manson. The trial will probably occur at the March term at Haverhill.

On account of its heavy debt the town of Berwick, Me., on Saturday, voted five to one against building an iron bridge between that place and Great Falls, though it was voted to rebuild at a former meeting.

The Allentown Democrat thus picks its flint for next year: "Our pickets and outposts have been driven in. The long roll, the call for battle, has already been sounded, and the democracy, as in '76,' will respond. As to the final result we know the God of nations will not forsake us, and we cannot fail." As He hasn't been with you for the last quarter of a century, we can't exactly see how He is going to desert you. You must be connected with a thing before you desert, you know.—Washington Republican.

Thomas P. Pulsifer, sixty-four years old, who has kept a provision store at the corner of Prince and Salem streets, Boston, for the past twenty-three years, was attacked, beaten and fatally injured, Saturday night, while going home, by two ruffians. A fellow named William Kelly has been arrested on suspicion of being one of the murderers.

The well-informed Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald writes: There seems to be some mysterious face which keeps the President from falling into the disregard which has usually been meted out to presidents in the last years of their administrations. In spite of all his mistakes, and his blunders, the moment has never yet arrived when any one has had the right to say that Grant's political fortunes are on the wane. His is a marvellous personality, which withstands all the shocks of criticism or assault. The newspapers which attack and enrage him are his best friends. Such has been the torrent of abuse heaped upon the President that if he were proved to be dishonest now I doubt if the people could be induced to believe the fact during the present generation. His worst foes are those of his own household—those friends who resemble him chiefly in the lack of tact, and the pretended friends, who use his faith in them as a bulwark behind which to feather their nests. Whatever developments may come out of the whiskey frauds, Grant will come out substantially unharmed, and but for the single fact that a third term of the presidency by one man is unprecedented, I do not see why on the whole he will not be as strong in 1876 as he was in 1872.

Secretary Chandler has begun a good work by removing Chief Clerk Grimwell, a friend of Senator Dawes. Grimwell is a democrat and the clerks under him, who are also removed, were well known secessionists. Several removals are to be made in the pension office for conspiracy to defraud the Government by pension frauds, and for being on too intimate and profitable terms with contractors.

Prof. Lister, the astrologist, has been lecturing in New York. The Herald says the lecture was concluded by casting the horoscope of President Grant. On the wall behind the platform was stretched an enormous chart, on which was delineated a large stellar figure, liberally peppered over with mysterious signs. In the centre was a square, inside of which was inscribed, "April 27, 1822, 6 A. M." This chart, the lecturer explained, showed the precise position of all the heavenly bodies that make or mar men's fortunes at the time named, which was the hour when President Grant was born. From the relation of the planets to each other, as indicated on the chart, the Professor foretold a great many interesting things, but, perhaps, the most startling of all was the prediction that from the 4th day of March next the power and influence of General Grant will begin to dwindle.

A jealous husband named Owen S. Marshall, a music teacher residing in Stoughton, Mass., endeavored to murder his wife on Saturday night, from jealousy, shooting her in the nose. She will recover, and has her senses. She declares that he had no reason to be jealous and that she deems him insane or partially so. He purchased a pistol recently and has been practicing at a target, intending to kill her at the first shot.

Detective Hildreth of Suncook, in whose hands Attorney General Clark has now placed the task of working up evidence for the State in the Josie Langmaid murder case, has started for Canada on important business connected therewith. He has recently found fresh evidence pointing to La Page as the murderer, which he is unwilling to make public. La Page has made another desperate attempt to escape. He sawed one of the iron bars nearly off before his work was discoverd. The jailer could not find the saw he used, so he put an entire change of clothes upon him and placed him in another cell.

John J. Burroughs, a Brooklyn plasterer, murdered his wife, of whom he was jealous, on Saturday, and then walked to the police station and surrendered himself and the pistol with which he did the deed. His child, who in her fright hid herself in the bed during the alteration, gives the following version of the bloody deed:

"Papa came to the house this morning and stopped a good while. He asked mamma to come back and live with him again; mamma said 'No;' papa then said 'Yes, you will;' she said 'No, I won't;' mamma then told him to go out, but he would not, and then mamma struck papa with a stick; then papa and mamma began to fight, and papa threw mamma down, and then papa shot mamma dead." "When papa shot mamma," added the little girl, "I was afraid, and I went into the bed and covered my head with the clothes."

An Educational Report.

By the favor of the Superintendent, Hon. G. W. Symonds, the report for the present year has been received. A law in some form, requiring such a report, has been in operation twenty-nine years. The reports contain an amount of matter relative to the progress and condition of our retail system in this State, nowhere else found.

This is the longest of the reports, consisting of 400 pages, and as a whole is among the most valuable. The first part contains extracts from the reports of superintending committees. These embrace particulars as to defects in the schools as to poor teachers, lack of interest in parents, and many other matters; also what is favorable and good. In this part of the work, extracts are found from lady superintendents, as in Rockingham County, Mrs. Peaslee of Danville, Mrs. Hooke, Fremont, Miss Webster, East Kingston, Miss Noyes, Hampstead, and Mrs. Reynolds, Kingston.

There is a very full account of the State Teachers' Association, held at Whitefield in October, 1874; and of the State Normal School; then follow questions of the State Superintendent and variety of important subjects, connected with educational interests, with very many of the answers of their superintendents; and questions to prominent educators, with their answers; their valuable suggestions; and their very full statistical tables of the schools in the several towns. No reports of superintendents in Derry and Sandown in our County were received as the law requires.

We have named only a part of the subjects in this report. The mechanical execution as a whole is worthy of the educational enterprise. One thing, however, is new to us. That is the use of small letters where capitals are usually, and so far as we know invariably used. The following are specimens: The words superintendents, government, state, legislature, etc., begin with small letters, as we have put them.

The rules of grammar relative to this are not considered arbitrary, so are not rigidly applied. In works printed in the highest style of the art, capitals are used where grammatical rules do not require them. We simply name the subject to call attention to it. The matter is important for consideration. If any change is necessary, let it be understood. J. F.

[Our correspondent probably has not observed the tendency of newspapers of late to use as few capital letters as possible, the practice being to use small letters ("lower case" in printer's parlance) for matters of general mention, as cited above, and "caps" only when referring to persons individually, as President Grant, Gov. Cheney, Mayor Goodrich, Alderman Bryant, Councilman Laighton, etc. —Ed. Chron.]

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS TO-DAY

Half House to Let.
Portsmouth Artillery Co. Meeting.
Harper's Weekly.
Piano Tuning—Eduardo de Anguera.

Jottings.

There was an unavoidable delay in getting out the tickets for the Skating Rink, but now they are ready for sale at Preston's. A snug little shelter for the skaters is going up and will be completed before freezing weather. It will be provided with a stove and other accommodations. The tickets are selling so rapidly that those who have it in charge have projected several additional improvements, a very important one being the erection of lamp posts round the Rink, thus enabling those who are busy during the day to enjoy skating in the evening. From the appearance of the long list of subscribers seen at Preston's, the Skating Rink must be pronounced a grand success.

Mr. Edwardo de Auguera will be in this city for a few days to tune pianos. See advertisement.

The Apollo Club Ball comes off on Thanksgiving evening, and the young gentlemen who have it in charge will endeavor to make it as great a success as that of last year, when they showed themselves capable of management satisfactory to all who participated. Tickets are selling rapidly. Supper will be served in the banquet hall. Harlow's full orchestra is practicing new music for the occasion.

Meeting of Board of Trade this evening on important business.

Carl Schurz has promised to lecture before the lyceum course on Thanksgiving night, positively.

Meeting of Portsmouth Artillery Company this evening for choice of officers.

On Wednesday evening of last week, as the 6:20 train from Dover to this city arrived near Ford's crossing at the Point, the engineer saw an ice-car coming toward them at the speed of seven or eight miles an hour. The engine was reversed and the engineer, fireman and conductor (who happened to be on the engine) jumped off into the sand. The car kept on, crashed against the engine and was thrown off the track. It had been left standing on a side-track, had been started across the switch and over a steep grade by the wind, aad was on an excursion to Dover on its own account!

The Charlestown (Mass.) Advertiser says the light of the Oceanic fire was distinctly seen in that city, a distance by airline of fifty-five miles.

By way of consolation to Mr. Downs of Gosport, who saved from his burning house only a gun and a feather-bed—he may be reminded while nearly all else in the dwelling left him, the faithful gun would not go off; and in the case of the feather-bed, he certainly has got a soft thing.

Measures of Prevention.

Now that the Acqueduct Company has increased the supply of water, would it not be a decided advantage for the City to avail itself of its advantages? There are a number of ways suggested that would be of great importance in case of fire; one for instance to lead a four-inch pipe from the main on State street to the reservoir on Market Square, which is the most centrally located, and is of the most importance. With the present flow of water, it would be inexhaustible. At present, we are informed, it can be pumped dry in a short time by one steamer. Stops along the main pipe at certain distances for the suction hose of the steamers could be placed where there are no means of procuring water handily, and at a small expense.

The long talked of fire alarm is not in operation yet, although the matter has been referred twice to the committee on fire department. The large conflagrations in other places and the fact that Portsmouth buildings are largely wooden and liable at any time to suffer from the fire fiend, should spur the city government to take these and other suggestions into consideration, and to use all means available to strengthen and assist the fire department.

New Publication.

West India Pickles is the spicy title given by W. P. Talboys to a humorous book in the press of Carleton & Co., being the diary of a yacht cruise last winter among the West India Islands.

Mrs. Marie Darrington Deslonde, a well-known New Orleans society belle, is about to publish, with Carleton & Co., a novel, entitled The Miller of Silcott Mills.

Augusta Evans' new novel "Infelice" bids fair to rival "St. Elmo" in advance orders. Carleton & Co., the publishers, are negotiating with a large dealer for the enormous number of 50,000 copies, including "the market."

The Nursery for December, published by Mr. John L. Shorey, comes laden with many a sparkling story, sketch and song to open still wider the bright and eager eyes of the reader in pinafores. Each article is admirably selected and prepared with reference to the appreciation of the youngest readers, and the lessons that it inculcates are healthy as well as interesting. No child can read this little monthly carefully without becoming more gentle and more deeply interested in all that is good and attractive about him. It is highly important that the early literature of the child should be of a natural and wholesome character, and a pretty present for the child pets would be the Nursery for 1876.

—Father Henning, of St. Louis, in a recent address, said that Protestantism, as a religion, would soon be swept from the face of the earth.

—Two and a half acres of rock, at Hell Gate, are to be lifted, next Fourth of July, with 50,000 pounds of nitro-glycerine.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

RATTAN WARE
MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz, a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

A FRAGMENT.

Her's was a face
Whose occult charm no limner's art
Could steal; whose nameless grace
Elusive was, as light that falls
Where waters part;

A face so fair,
So haunted with sweet mysteries,
It seem'd a face astray from heavenly scenes,
And not of one who e'er
Had breakfasted on buckwheat cakes,
Or dined on beans.

A Centennial Carnival.

The New York Graphic says:

Some time ago the Daily Graphic expressed the belief that it would be a good thing if, during the coming centennial exhibition, we should have some such extravagance as the Mardi Gras day of the South and the carnival as it is celebrated in Italy. The suggestion has met with much favor, but there seems to be a prevalent belief that in the North, and at such an immense gathering as the centennial exhibition, it would not be easy to organize such a festival and have it free from rowdyism and disgraceful exhibitions. We do not think that this objection is well grounded. An efficient police, such as will then be in force in Philadelphia, would obviate all danger of violence of any sort, and, indeed, the character of the gathering and of the festival itself forbids it. Nevertheless it is perfectly true that in the North we are not well informed in regard to the minutiæ of a carnival, having, with very few exceptions which from their character have no weight, no acquaintance with such matters. The magnificent spectacles which have been got up on occasion in the South have made Southerners thoroughly familiar with all their matters of detail, and if at the centennial the arrangements for the affair should be placed in the hands of competent Southerners we might easily have the finest exhibition of the sort ever witnessed in any country. It would be an excellent thing if the proposition could be carried into effect, for at the centennial, where all the world is gathered, nothing could be more picturesque or in better keeping.

—An exciting scene occurred off North Point, San Francisco, as the French corvette La Volta was leaving for Tahiti. During the time that the Volta remained in the harbor, one of the men, it seems, utilized his "liberty days" in lavishing his attentions on a young French woman residing in Frisco. The attachment was reciprocated, and when the day of parting came it went hard for both. As the vessel got under weigh, the love-stricken sailor, with a bound, cleared the bulwarks and headed boldly for the shore. The corvette was instantly stopped, a boat lowered and manned, and his capture speedily effected. But he was no sooner placed on deck than he sprang overboard again, only to be captured in the same manner as before. Among the witnesses of his plucky attempt to escape, who stood on the dock at North Point, was the object of his devotion. Her face was the very picture of despair when she saw her lover captured the second time.

—A Marion girl went into a drug store by mistake, and asked for a breast pin. The smiling apothecary immediately showed her an assortment, of glass tubes with rubber attachments, and was explaining how the old things worked when he heard a whizzing sound, and looking up was astonished to see the store empty. He went to the door and saw all the by-standers gazing suspiciously at him, and wonderingly at a flying figure a mile and a half down the street, and asking each other, "Wonder what makes her run so?" And then they gazed so intently at the innocent apothecary that he felt uncomfortable.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—It is reported that a new tail is growing out on a Connecticut dog that had been deprived of its joy indicator.

—The tickets to Moody's meetings are issued "For Sinners." Then we can't go.—Chicago Times.

—It is not surprising to learn that Brick Pomeroy advocates the repudiation of the national debt.

—The manufacture of plate glass in Missouri is an important and increasing industry.

—The steamship Great Eastern will bring ever heavy goods for the centennial.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I Lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have used only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent for you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pains; can stoop or work as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels and Constipation, and I want to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Lowest Premium is $2.10.

Each Fraction must draw this sum.

All Fractions will be good with $15.00 to purchase a whole $20.00 Bond.

This is a chance for a fortune, and no chance for loss.

A $20 Bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn one of the following premiums.

$21, $50, $100, $200, $300, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $35,000, $100,000.

The Bonds issued by the Industrial Exhibition Co., are a copy of the European Government Loans.

The Bonds are a safe investment.

On December 6th - - - - On January 3rd.

PURCHASE NOW.

How to Purchase.

In person, or by certified Check, or Express, or Postal Order, or Draft, or enclose greenbacks in a registered letter, to, and made payable to the Industrial Exhibition Co.

The funds raised by sale of these Bonds, will be applied to the erection of a Crystal Palace, which every American will be proud of.

Recollect, this Industrial Exhibition is a legitimate enterprise, chartered by the State of New York.

Its Directors are the best citizens of New York.

It has hat seven drawings since July, 1874, and paid out in principal and interest, $750,000.

Any one obtaining a premium, the company pledges itself not to make public.

This enterprise is simply a new form of bond; in no sense can it be considered as a lottery.

There are no blanks. Be sure and purchase at once.

$5 will buy a Fraction for December 6th, 1875.

$50 " " Quarter Bond for Jan. 3rd, 1876.

$10 " " Half Bond " "

$20 " " Whole Bond " "

All Bonds are exchangeable into city lots in the suburbs of New York City.

Each Bond-holder is regarded as an honorary member of the Industrial Exhibition Co., and is welcome at the Parlors of the Co., No. 12 East 17th St.

Agents Wanted

All communications and remittances to be made to the Industrial Exhibition Co., 12 East 17th Street, between 5th Ave., and Broadway, New York City.

For the purpose of giving the Bond-holders of the Industrial Exhibition Co., full and complete information as to the progress of the Company, and a complete list of the drawings, an Illustrated Journal will be published, viz:

The Industrial Exhibition Illustrated,

Subscription One Dollar per Year.

Anyone sending a club of 15 subscribers, with $15, will be given a Premium of one Fraction or Bond, club of 27 subscribers, a Bond; club of 50 subscribers a whole Bond. Address,

"The very best ladies' magazine published."—Seneca Falls (N. Y.) Courier.

☞ CHEAPEST AND BEST! ☜

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originality for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

SAVED BY HIS WIFE.

At the Methodist preachers' meeting at the Methodist Book Concern in Cincinnati a few days ago, Rev. Dr. Fisher, of the Pittsburgh Conference, was introduced as "the man who was wonderfully saved during Quantrell's raid by the heroism of his wife." Methodist preachers always have time to relate or hear "an experience," and such an introduction, of course set a dozen or more of them calling for the story, which the Doctor relu tantly consented to tell. The Cincinnati Gazette thus reports it:

After some preliminary remarks, Dr. Fisher began the story. Said he: "I was always an anti-slavery man of the most 'anti' kind, and after I moved to Kansas I found myself the object of the most vindictive hatred of the pro-slavery party of the region where I resided. My life was sought several times. When the war broke out I went as Chaplain. Most of the male members of my church went to the war, and I went as one of Jim Lane's Chaplains. The news of my connection with the army and my being put in charge of contrabands who were sent to Kansas, got abroad, and the rebels hated me worse than ever. They got my photograph and distributed it throughout the country, and it was fixed among them that I was to be shot whenever met. Once when I was sent up the river with a body of contrabands, not being well, I went home for a little rest. I was living at Lawrence. The town had a few guns in the armory, and there was an understanding with the farmers of the surrounding country that upon the ringing of an alarm, they should come in and defend the town, but the coming of Quantrell and his men was a complete surprise. When the a arm was rung, the arsenal was already captured and on fire. I was in bed, and heard about three o'clock in the morning horses galloping very rapidly away, and I woke my w fe, telling her that it was singular that horses should be galloping so fast so early in the morning; but she said she guessed it was some farmers who had been to a railroad meeting the evening before, and were hurrying back to their work. We layed and talked for some time. The children were going out that morning to get some grapes, and my wife thought she would call them earlier than usual, and therein, brethren, I see the hand of Providence. It was not yet day light but the day was dawning. Having called the children, she went and looked out of the front door, and instantly called me: 'Pa, the rebels are in town.' I said that could not be, but, nevertheless, I sprang from the bed and ran to the door.

There they were, just across the green, and just then they shot the United Brethren preacher as he was milking his cow in his barn-yard. I rushed back into the house; my wife caught up the babe. I have four boys; one was on my wife's breast, another was by her side, and the two oldest were twelve or fourteen years old. We all rushed up the lot in which our house stood. Then I left my wife, and with the two oldest boys ran up the hill; but something seemed to tell me that I was running away from safety. So I told the boys to run on and I would go back to mother. It was then in the gray light of morning, and the rebels had divided into little squads, and were ransacking the town, killing every man they found, and burning houses. My boys separated, the oldest going with a neighbor's boy, Robert Winton, and while the two were running for life, the soldiers saw them and fired a volley, killing poor Bobby, and frightening my boy almost to death. He ran in and hid among some graves in the graveyard. My younger son ran off on the prairie.

In fixing my cellar I had thrown up a bank of earth near the entrance, and I crept down there and laid myself between the mound of earth and the wall in such a way that the earth would partially screen me. I layed up close to the kitchen door. I had not been there long when four of Quantrell's men rode up to the house and demanded admittance. My wife went to the front door and let them in. They demanded whether I was not in the house or in the cellar. She replied: "My husband and two older boys ran off as soon as the firing began." The leader swore that he knew I was in the cellar. My wife replied that she had two young children by her, and that she did not want any more oaths uttered before them. "You have doubted my word," she replied, you can look for yourselves." I lay so near the floor that I could hear every word that was said. The men called for a candle.

My wife replied that we didn't burn candles. Then they wanted a lantern, but she said we hadn't any. They asked then, with an oath, what we did for a light. She replied that we burned kerosene in a lamp. Then they called for a lamp, and my wife had to get it, but the men, in their eagerness to light it, turned the wick down into the oil. Failing to light it themselves, they called on my wife to light it.

"Why, you've ruined the lamp," said she, "it can't be lighted with the wick down in the oil."

"Haven't you another lamp," said they.

"Yes, there's another one up stairs," said she, and then they ordered her to go and get it.

"Gentlemen", said she, "I can't do it. Your rudeness has so frightened me that I can scarcely hold my babe."

One of the men then offered to hold him for her, and took him from her arms. My poor wife then went and got the lamp, which they lighted and started on the search. They all cocked their revolvers and passed the word to kill at sight, and started for the cellar. I laid myself just as flat as could be and turned my face to the wall, for I knew my face was thinnest from ear to ear. The light came to the door. I tell you brethren I just quit living. You have heard it said that when a man is drowning all his past life comes up before him.

The speaker's voice trembled, his eyes became suffused, and his whole frame shook with suppressed emotion as he continued: "I sat then before the judgment seat. I was a dead man. My heart ceased to beat. I already stood before my Judge. Brethren, what could I do, but just trust myself to the Lord? The man who carried the light was tall, and providentially stooped so low in entering the cellar that the light shining against the bank threw a shadow over me.

"They searched the cellar but did not find me, and went back up stairs. My wife afterward told me that when the men went down cellar, she took her babe and went into the parlor, and stood there holding her hand against one ear and her babe against the other, expecting every moment to hear the report of revolvers in the cellar announcing the death of her husband. The soldiers set fire to the house in several places, and leaving one of their number to prevent my wife from putting it out, departed. The man seemed touched with pity, and told her that if she wanted to save some furniture he would help her. My wife thinks that holding the babe in his arms had touched his heart. She pleaded with him if he had any consideration for her or her helpless children to leave the house and let her put out the fire. He consented, and left. My wife then came to me and asked me whether it was all right between me and God. 'I am afraid they will come back, and kill you yet, and it will be the greatest comfort to know that you are prepared to die.' I told her I felt that I was prepared to die.

Telling me to pray, she left me. It was not long before another party of Quantrell's men came, and in drunken tones—for the marauders had become intoxicated by this time—demanded whether I was in the house.

'Do you suppose,' said my wife confidently, 'that he would stay here and you shooting and burning all over the town? No; he left this morning as soon as the firing commenced, and unless some of you have shot him and killed him outside, he is safe. Some of your men were here this morning and searched the house. However, you may look for yourselves.'

In this way she bluffed them. They set fire to the house, and left one, who drew his revolver on my wife, and said he would kill her if she attempted to put it out. He stayed till the house was so far consumed that there was no possibility of saving it. My wife pulled up a carpet, and in taking it to the yard dropped it accidentally by the door.

My wife was afraid, and so was I, that I would be burned alive; for I had no thought of doing anything but what my wife told me. The floor was on fire almost over me, and the flames were creeping nearer. My wife stood and threw water, pail after pail on the floor and was doing this when a neighbor, a Catholic woman, came and said:

'Why, Mrs. Fisher; what are you doing? What good will it do to save the floor? Beside you can't save it.'

'I don't care what good it will do,' replied my wife, 'I am going to keep on wetting the floor.'

But finally when she saw she could not save it, she asked the neighbor whether she could keep a secret. She then swore by the Virgin Mary never to reveal it.

'Well Geo,' said my wife, my husband is under that floor.'

The soldiers were still everywhere shooting and burning, and the air was filled with the shrieks of wounded and dying men, the wailings of widows and orphans, and the sound of falling buildings. My wife then called me to come out, and threw a dress over my shoulder. The two women picked up the carpet, and I crawled under it between them, and so we three proceeded to a small bush about four feet high out in the yard. There my wife saw four soldiers ready to fire. They were not a hundred yards off. Then, for the first time, the poor woman despaired. A pang shot to her heart, and she gave up all for lost. Nevertheless, I slunk under the bush and they threw the carpet over me.

"Save the chairs!" cried my wife; and they rushed to where the chairs were piled, close to the burning building, and ran with them and flung them carelessly upon me, and piled up all that was saved of our household goods about me. The soldiers evidently thought the pile only a lot of household furniture and left it unmolested. I stayed there two hours after they had left, and then gathered my wife and four children—for the two boys had come back—and in the garden we knelt and thanked God for deliverance. Brethren, you don't know what it is to be thankful."

—"Is this the doctor's office?" inquired a man who popped his head inside the sanctum door. "No, sir—the next flight of stairs." "Well, I am too tired to go any further," said he sadly; "but if you see the doctor any time this morning, I wish you would tell him that my step-mother is dying and we'd like to have him call in if he gets time."—Norwich Bulletin.

News and Notes.

The Ministerial Council has, after careful consideration, agreed upon a reply to the second official note received from the United States Government, concerning the rights of Cuba. The Spanish reply is written in friendly terms, and amicably denies the right of the United States to intefere in any question relating to the Spanish Government of the island of Cuba. The Government is willing to observe the treaty of 1705. No intimation is conveyed of any intended change in the present Spanish policy on the island.

From Brownsville to the Pecas river, a distance of 600 miles in length and 100 miles in width, to the Nueces river, all American rancheos have been ordered to leave their homes by the Mexican raiders, on pain of death, and 100,000 head of stolen cattle are driven to Mexico annually by Mexican marauders. Numbers of Federal officials have been assassinated, post offices burned, custom houses robbed, mail carriers and inspectors of customs killed while in the discharge of their duties, and the perpetrators of these crimes have gone unpunished, and general insecurity of life and property prevails on the border. The jury found eighty indictments, and urge decisive action on the part of the State and General Governments to punish the criminals and protect the inhabitants against Mexican banditti.

Rev. Dr. Budington says Mrs. Moulton was justified in calling for a Congregational Council to settle the difficulties between herself and Mr. Beecher, and he believed such a council would be called. Of course it will be ex parte, as Plymouth Church will refuse to join the call. He expresses the belief that Plymouth Church has forfeited the right of fellowship by its recent course, and he cannot see how the churches which joined in the previous call could adopt any other course than to refuse its fellowship.

After a bitter and protracted fight, the reform movement in Rochester seems to have succeeded in closing all the bar rooms, and if liquor is now sold it is only in dark places and by-ways. An effort to obtain some alcohol to use on a corpse last Thursday developed the fact that there was not a drop in town which could be bought. The contest has left some bitter feuds, and some men who have been prominent in the crusade against dealers have been assaulted in the streets and otherwise made to feel the wrath of the keepers of liquor shops.

Britise ship Aristida, from London for the United States, is lost off Andresselles, near Boulogne. Nine of the crew were drowned, and the vessel has gone to pieces.

The youngest bride ever published in Lowell is Grace N. Merrill, 13 years old, whose intention of marriage to a groom of 22 has been recorded at the Lowell City Clerk's office. Her parents reside in Concord, N. H.

It is estimated that the damage done in London and the neighborhood by high tides, on Monday, will reach fully $5,000,000.

Orders from the Secretary of the Treasury to reduce the force in the custom houses, in order to curtail expenses, will be issued this week, as the appropriation for the collection of customs is deficient $1,000,000.

The Louisiana sugar crop this year will be larger than any year since 1861. It will come up to 190,000 hogsheads, an increase of 73,133 hogsheads over the product of 1874.

The majority of Carroll, democrat, over Harris, reform, for Governor in Maryland, is 13,821. Outside of Baltimore, Harris has a majority of 2,174, and there is little doubt but he was elected, but is counted out by the frauds in Baltimore.

Prominent republicans of Virginia are now engaged in an effort to reorganize the republican party in that State by a combination of republican and independent conservatives who in the late election acted with the republicans.

Orrin Marshall, who shot his wife at Stoughton, Mass., was found dead at No. 82 Pleasant street, Boston, Tuesday morning, where he had engaged a room. He left a note stating that he had taken morphine; and then shot himself through the head.

GEORGE L. FOX.

The New York Times says: "In the acting of George L. Fox, who has for so many years been a New York favorite, there has been for a considerable time past a change which is apparent to those who have only seen him a few times, while to his friends and to those who have been accustomed to see him frequently, his stage performances are mournful instead of mirthful. It is a sad fact that he has entirely lost the wonderful pantomimic ability which characterized him for seven years, and that his career has come to a most melancholy end. A paragraph appeared some weeks ago, which went the rounds of the press, that Mr. Fox had been stricken with paralysis of the face. The disease was attributed to the cosmetics and ointments which he has used during his professional career for the purpose of keeping the muscles and skin of the face mobile. In these preparations bismuth was said to be a prominent ingredient, and to this drug was attributed the mischief. This story, although contracted, was true, although the affection of the optic nerve, which accompanies or is a part of the paralysis, was, it is said, produced by an entirely different cause. The statement is made by one of Mr. Fox' most intimate friends that while he was playing in a Western city, some months ago, he met with a curious accident. In the production of what is called the Freedmen's Bureau he received a violent blow on the nose. In the scene a number of negro boys jump from the inside of a bureau near which the clown stands. Mr. Fox was standing rather nearer the bureau than usual, and the last boy who jumped out was a substitute, and larger than the one whom Fox expected to see. The boy in jumping struck his head against Mr. Fox' nose, fairly driving it in so as to strain the optic nerve. The blow felled him to the ground, and he has not yet recovered from its effect. Within a month there have appeared symptoms which have developed into a marked case of softening of the brain, and there is no doubt that the fine mind of the actor is now a wreck.

THOMAS NAST.

[Parton in Harper's Mag. for Dec.]

Few readers need to be informed that it was the war which developed and brought to light the caricaturist of the United States, Thomas Nast. When the war began he was a boyish-looking youth of eighteen, who had already been employed as a draughtsman upon the illustrated press of New York and London for two years. He had ridden in Garibaldi's train during the campaign of 1860, which freed Sicily and Naples, and sent sketches of the leading events home to New York and to the London Illustrated News. But it was the secession war that changed him from a roving lad with a swift pencil for sale into a patriot artist, burning with the enthusiasm of the time. Harper's Weekly, circulating in every town, army, camp, fort and ship, placed the whole country within his reach, and he gave forth from time to time those powerful emblematic pictures that roused the citizen and cheered the soldier. In these early works, produced amidst the harrowing anxieties of the war, the serious element was of necessity dominant, and it was this quality that gave them so much influence. They were as much the expression of heart-felt conviction as Mr. Curtis' most impassioned editorials, or Mr. Lincoln's Gettysburg speech. This I know, because I sat by his side many a time while he was drawing them, and was with him often at those electric moments when the idea of a picture was conceived. It was not till the war was over, and President Andrew Johnson began to "swing round the circle," that Mr. Nast's pictures became caricatures. But they were none the less the utterance of conviction. Whether he is wrong or right in the view presented of a subject, his pictures are always as much the product of his mind as they are of his hand.

Concerning the justice of many of his political caricatures there must be, of course, two opinions; but happily his greatest achievement is one which the honest portion of the people all approve. Caricature, since the earliest known period of its existence, far back in the dawn of Egyptian history, has accomplished nothing else equal to the series of about forty-five pictures contributed by Thomas Nast to Harper's Weekly for the explosion of the Tammany Ring. These are the utmost that satiric art has done in that kind. The fertility of invention displayed by the artist, week after week, for months at a time, was so extraordinary that people concluded, as a matter of course, the ideas were furnished him by others. On the contrary, he can not draw from the suggestions of other minds. His more celebrated pictures have been drawn in quiet country places several miles from the city in which they were published.

A CURE FOR INTEMPERANCE.

[Medical and Surgical Reporter.]

Mr. C. O. Groom Napier read a paper upon this subject. He said that more than twenty years ago he read, in Liebig's "Animal Chemistry," how the use of cod-liver oil had a tendency to promote the disinclination for the use of wine, and how most people found that they could take wine with animal food, but not with farinaceous or amylaceous food. He was at that time a vegetarian, and he felt in his own person the truth of this statement of Liebig, as did also some members of his family who, after becoming vegetarians, had no inclination for alcoholic liquors, although brought up to their moderate use. He was induced thus to inquire whether vegetarianism might not be a valuable cure for temperance. Having applied it successfully to twenty-four cases, he would briefly give the results. One person, aged 61, of a Scotch aristocratic family, had contracted habits of intemperance in India. His habit was to eat scarcely any bread, fat or vegetables. His breakfast was mostly salt fish and a little bread; his dinner consisted of joint and very little else; and he consumed during the day from a pint to a quart of whisky, and was not sober more than half his time. He was induced to return to the oatmeal porridge breakfast, and adopt a diet for dinner of which boiled haricot beans or peas formed an important part. About this time his wife became so alarmed as to the consequences of the cattle plague that all the family were put upon a vegetarian diet. The husband grumbled very much at first, but his taste for whisky entirely disappeared, and in nine months from the time he first commenced eating largely of beans, and two months from the time he became an entire vegetarian, he relinquished alcoholic liquor entirely, and had not returned to either flesh or alcohol. The author also instanced the case of an analytical chemist, aged 32, who was given to intemperance, but who, on having his attention drawn to Liebig's statement, was induced to adopt a vegetarian diet, and, following up this, before six weeks he was a total abstainer. As other instances, he mentioned a lady of independent means, a clergyman, a country gentleman, a girl of 19, a man and his wife and sister (all over 40 years of age), a bedridden gentleman (cured in 36 days), a captain in the merchant service, half-pay officer, a clergyman and his wife, both of intemperate habits, who were cured by a diet mainly farinaceous. A gentleman of 60 had been addicted for thirty-five years to intemperate habits, and his constitution was shattered. After an attack of delirium tremens he was induced to adopt a farinaceous diet, which cured him in seven months. He was very thin, but his weight increased 28 lbs. Two sisters, members of a family noted for intemperate habits, adopted vegetarianism, and were cured in about a year. A clerk who had lost several situations through intemperance was cured by vegetarianism, and was taken back by an employer at a higher salary than he had ever received. A governess, aged 40, lost her situation through intemperance, and was cured, by adopting farinaceous diet, in nine weeks. Two military pensioners were cured in six months. Three old sailors were cured in like manner in the same period. The author then mentioned various articles of diet which he regarded as specially antagonistic to alcohol. These were: macaroni, haricot beans, green dried peas and lentils, soaked for twenty-four hours, well-boiled with onions and celery; rice, and highly glutinous bread. The author stated that he had himself found his health benefited by a vegetarian diet, and all whom he had induced to adopt it had received similar benefit. After pointing out the increased economy of this diet, he recommended those who had a distaste for it to try seaside or mountain air. He then alluded to the increase of national wealth which would arise from the employment of land now growing barley for other purposes; and added that nations living on a farinaceous diet are less given to drunkenness than meat-eating populations.

WANTED PIZEN.

The other day a thin-waisted woman with a snap to her eyes entered a Detroit drug-store, and without any fooling around she asked:

"Do you keep pizen here?"

"Yes'm—all kinds," replied the young clerk.

"You've got pizen in powders and pizen in liquids, have you!"

"Yes'm."

"Well," she said, looking around at the many bottles, "I want something powerful strong—something to lay him right out, without any fooling!"

The young clerk drew back a little and said:

"I fear we can't sell you any poison, madam."

"You can't? What's the matter you can't?"

"You—you might not make good use of it," he tremblingly said.

"What do you mean?" she slowly asked, kind o' reaching for him across the counter.

"Why—family trouble, perhaps—your husband—you may be a little deranged," he stammered.

She gave him a look of lofty contempt and said:

"You needn't be afraid of me, bub! My head has brains enough in it to run four drug-stores like this, and my husband and I get along about as well as any pair. When he gets high-nosed and tries to boss around, I p'int to a chair, give him one look, and he drops. No, bub, I want that pizen to lay out a dog, and you needn't be afeared of being looken up for tragedy."

It was put up, handed her, and paid for, and she remarked:

"Thought I was deranged, eh? I own up that I don't know anything about your old drug-store Latin, but if I can't tumble housework around with the whole pile of your relatives for two hundred years back, I'll get in the way of a one-hoss locomotive afore dark!"

—A story started about a year ago, to the effect that Director General Goshorn had made a request for the remains of Washington for exhibition at the Centennial was received with mingled disgust and indignation, and the report was afterward declared to be unfounded. Some two-legged jackall revives the unpleasant subject in the Philadelphia Press, and soberly suggests that the remains of both Washington and Lincoln be brought to the Centennial, and that a fee should be charged for viewing them, the proceeds to be devoted to completing the Washington Monument. "What a great pleasure and satisfaction it would be to every one to behold the real genuine, honest face of the immortal Washington!" exclaims this correspondent. General Goshorn ought to secure his fellow for the big show, and label him as the greatest fool in America.—Washington Star.

—"Jennie, you're my sweetheart," said a nine-year-old suitor, as he sat alone with his heart's idol, recently.

"How can I be your sweetheart," asked the little Miss, "when I am thirteen years old, and you only nine?"

"Are you thirteen?"

"Ofcourse, I am."

"Well," answered the juvenile beau, after reflecting a little, "I'd a been thirteen, too, if I hadn't been sick so much when I was little."

Daniel Kane of Portsmouth plead guilty of simple assault. Sentence: $10 fine and costs.

John Merchant of New Market plead guilty of simple larceny of $18. Sentenced to 100 days in jail and to pay $20 fine and costs.

John Martin of Londonderry was then brought to trial for breaking and entering a dwelling house and larceny of household goods. He plead not guilty and was defended by Messrs. Towle and Leavitt. Without concluding the trial, Court adjourned until Wednesday morning at nine o'clock.

At a meeting of the bar, Tuesday noon, it was voted to try only the criminal cases at this term and then adjourned till January.

Jottings.

It is reported that the Eastern Railroad will soon change the time of running its morning train from Boston to Portland, from 8:30 to 7:15—which will be a great accommodation to people all along the line.

Dr. George E. Hanson invites the public to get their prescriptions, drugs, chemicals and toilet articles at his neatly kept apothecary store, No. 41 Congress street, corner of Fleet.

The funeral of the late Capt. William M. Shackford was largely attended, Tuesday, the banks being closed and merchants generally paying the last tribute to a citizen so generally esteemed.

It is said that Congressman Frank Jones is to dwell at the Imperial with mine host James S. Peirce during the session.

The U. S. S. Marion is being fitted for sea with all possible dispatch, orders to have her ready for sea December 1st having been lately received.

Conductor True W. Jones is to leave the P. & D. R. R., and will be succeeded by brakeman Albert Pickering. Mr. Jones will engage in business in Boston.

The concert next Friday evening by the Boston Philharmonic Club will be a fine one. Seats may be secured at Preston's.

The U. S. S. Lancaster, now lying at quarantine in the lower harbor, will probably be towed to the navy yard during the present week.

—A lady put her watch under her pillow at night, but couldn't keep it there because it disturbed her sleep. And there, all the time, was her bed-ticking right underneath her, and she never thought of that at all.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON.
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."
Boston, Jan. 1, 1875. 1y

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT" PANTOSCOPIC
SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured especially for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratched.

☞ The "BRILLIANTS" are unrivalled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped F L B., and can be procured only from Resident Agents

☞ A full assortment of sizes, set in GOLD, STEEL, RUBBER and SHELL, of the FINEST QUALITY, and warranted not to break from any imperfection in the manufacture, can always be obtained of

PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

An Irreplacable Position.

Among American remedies, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters occupies what may not inaptly be termed an irreplacable position. The foundations of its popularity are laid so deep in the public confidence, its excellence has been so frequently and conclusively demonstrated under the most trying circumstances, and it has been so long known to the public as a standard article, that neither the slurs occasionally cast upon proprietary medicines, nor the attempts of certain inalcoholic no-trum venders to create a prejudice against a preparation with a spirituous basis, can affect it. The public recognize in it a safe, agreeable and comprehensive alterative and an invaluable general tonic, a speedy remedy for malarious disorders, and their most reliable preventive. Its reputation is founded, as it were, upon a rock.

From the New York Tribune.

A WANT SUPPLIED.

The American mind is active. It has given us books of fiction for the sentimentalist, learned books for the scholar and professional student, but few books for the people. A book for the people must relate to a subject of universal interest. Such a subject is the physical man, and such a book "THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER," a copy of which has been recently laid on our table The high professional attainments of its author, Dr. R. V. PIERCE, of Buffalo, N. Y.,—and the advantages derived by him from an extensive practice, would alone insure for his work a cordial reception. But these are not the merits for which it claims our attention. The Author is a man of the people. He sympathizes with them in all their affections, efforts, and attainments. He perceives their want—a knowledge of themselves—and believing that all truth should be made as universal as God's own sunlight, from his fund of learning and experience he has produced a work in which he gives them the benefits of his labors. In it he considers man in every phase of his existence, from the moment he emerges "from a rayless atom, too diminutive for the sight, until he gradually evolves to the maturity of those Conscious Powers, the exercise of which furnishes subjective evidence of our immortality." Proceeding upon the theory that every fact of mind has a physical antecedent, he has given an admirable treatise on Cerebral Physiology, and shown the beariness of the facts thus established upon individual and social welfare. The author believes with Spencer, that, "vigorous health and its accompanying high spirits are larger elements of happ ness than any other things whatever," and accordingly has introduced an extensive discussion of the methods by which we may preserve the integrity of the system and ofttimes prevent the onset of disease. Domestic Remedies—their preparation, uses, and effects—form a prominent feature of the work. The hygienic treatment, or nursing of the sick, is an important subject, and receives attention commensurate with its importance. Nearly all diseases "to which flesh is heir" are described, their symptoms and causes explained, and, proper domestic treatment suggested. To reciprocate the many favors bestowed upon him by a generous public, the author offers his book at a price ($1.50) little exceeding the cost of publication. Our readers can obtain this practical and valuable work by addressing the author.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

To Neutralize Offensiveness

In many forms we use disinfecting agents. Impure breath, caused by bad teeth, tobacco, spirits, or catarrh, is neutralized by SOZODONT. 'Tis a healthfulbeautifier, and a great luxury as a dentrifice. The repulsive breath is by its use rendered as fragrant as a rose, and coldness by friends or lovers will be no longer noticed.

All the world is full of babies,
Sobbing, sighing, everywhere;
Looking out with eyes of terror,
Beating at the empty air.
Do they see the strife before them,
That they sob and tremble so?
Oh, the helpless, frightened babies—
Still they come, and still they go.

—And now nearer in sight the unchanged quintessence of Orientalism; there is our first camel, a camel in use, in his native setting, and not in a menagerie. An entire line of them, loaded with building stones, are wearily shambling along. The long, bended neck spes humility, but the supercilious nose in the air expresses perfect contempt for all modern life. The contrast of this haughty "stuck-up-ative-ness" (it is necessary to coin this word to express the camel's ancient conceit) with the royal ugliness of the brute is both inspiring and amusing. No human royal family dare be uglier than the camel. He is a mass of bones, faded tufts, humps, lumps, splay joints and callosities. His tail is a ridiculous wisp, and a failure as an ornament on a fly-brush. His feet are simply big sponges. For skin covering he has patches of old buffalo robes, faded and with the hair worn off. His voice is more disagreeable than his appearance. With a reputation for patience, he is snappish and vindictive. His endurance is overrated; that is to say, he dies like a sheep on an expedition of any length, if he is not well fed. His gait racks muscles like an ague. And yet this ungainly creature carries his head in the air, and regards the world out of his great brown eyes with disdain. The Sphinx is not more placid. He reminds me, I do not know why, of a pyramid. He has a resemblance to a palm tree. It is impossible to make an Egyptian figure without him. What a Hapsburg lip he has! Ancient? Royal? The very poise of his head says plainly, "I have come out of the dim past, before history was; the deluge did not touch me; I saw Menes come and go; I helped Shoofoo build the great pyramid; I knew Egypt when it hadn't an obelisk nor a temple; I watched the slow building of the old pyramid at Sakkara. Did I not transport the fathers of your race across the desert? There are three of us: the date-palm, the pyramid and myself. Everything else is modern. Go to!"—C. D. Warner.

—A Vicksburg father, finding it necessary to reprove his son, gently said: "Don't stuff victuals into your mouth that way, my son: George Washington didn't eat after that fashion." The boy accepted the reproof without comment, and after pondering for a while, he remarked to himself: "And I don't believe George Washington licked his boy for finding a bottle of whisky in the shed when he was hunting after a horse-shoe, either!"

—The Yonkers Gazette wisely remarks: "When you see a young married man contemplating baby carriages with a calm and thoughtful eye, you may reasonably infer that the matrimonial sky is bright, serene, and a little sonny." But "you had daughter" not to be too sure of that.—Norristown Herald.

—If there is anything that will bring tears to the eyes of an Indian tobacco sign it is to witness a young lady undergoing the trying ordeal of endeavoring to bring a fallen clothes-line, full of clothes, to a realization of its solemn duty.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the child run by droll and jaunty pictures, to the mother by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and various articles of use and ornament. But the reading matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hope of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he says he is well cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the D. T. speak so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold. I say they were worth five dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.00 for three more packages for my friends. H. B. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person, and now I am happy, not well, and have no more Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Consumption, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the most prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultimia thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or any where else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write original for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. No Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

A BROTHER'S SACRIFICE.

"Come take a ride with me this afternoon," said Mr. Flavius Bearn, flickering the blanket off his well-known roan Semicolon, and stepping into his wagon at the door, "you will not have another such day in ten years."

I took a seat, and the intelligent animal threaded the complicated fretwork of vehicles on the streets with the sinuous alacrity of a snake among brambles, stood on the ferry-boat quiet and scornful, took the quieter streets beyond with a sober jog, and, when at last we struck a bit of avenue road, glanced behind him to see if anything was coming in the shape of a challenge, and then spread himself and laid down to all the superb mechanism of a square trot.

"Get on, lad?" said Bearn, and I fancied his voice was hushed into sympathy with the day and scene, and the sharp, hard lines of his stern face melted with the Indian summer haze of external things. Semicolon's hoofs beat lightly against the firm roadway, and he arched his neck and bowed his head as if he sniffed the cool, damp fragrance of a little rivulet that coursed by the roadside sluggishly, reluctant to undertake its new task of bearing off so many sodden leaves.

Presently we came to a tall painted fence, and then a modest gateway, a lodge within it. Bearn drove in, blanketed his horse and fastened him under a shed, and we dismounted. We were in a quiet and beautiful cemetery of considerable extent, wooded with remarkable grace. Bearn, with a changed face, led the way along well gravelled, winding walks, among white monuments and much handsome shrubbery to a secluded spot among firs and cypresses, and kalmias, a little inclosed square, perfectly velvet in its sod and planted with numerous choice flowers and shrubs. In the centre of this lot was a large square cenotaph of dark green porphyry, with the simple word cut into the top in intaglio and gilded, "Triptolemus."

Bearn laid upon the block a small bouquet which he took from his pocket, and stood by it in silence, while a wondrous pathetic softness melted into his face and dewed his eyes just a little; but even that touch transfigured the man, and the hard outer crust dropped away, affording tender precious glimpses of a sweet soul underneath. Dear heaven, brothers! Why do we not oftener see one another at such moments as these, when we are none the less men because the hearts within us are vitalized by strange yearnings and spiritualized by a subtle consciousness of our infinite capabilities?

"Ah! a friend, Bearn?"

"My brother!"

"How long has he lain here?"

"He is not here at all," said Bearn, turning away, "That is simply to his memory;" then, with a sudden wild gust of passion that revealed to me a new phase of the man, he lifted his hand as if to salute the block, and cried:

"Christ! I would give all I am worth if he did lie here in his lonely grave, after due honor in the world to his nobility!" We walked away in silence, crunching the gravel beneath slow feet, and each looking down busy with his own thoughts.

"The best brother that ever breathed, the best fellow God ever made, poor boy!" We got into the carriage again, and I noticed Bearn patting his horse upon the neck as he took off the blanket—you have seen the gesture, that strange, mute caress a man gives a child or the dumb brute, before whom he is not ashamed to let his feelings flow—the shy caress of the lonely man in the moment when he feels his loneliness, and yearns for sympathy. We drove further, and came to where the road crossed the brow of a high hill, from the top of which we looked down upon an ocean of landscape, strips of forest swathed in soft purple haze, villas and cottages all asleep in the drowsy dimness, brown fields, and winding lanes, and bits of orchard snuggled away in cosy hollows. A red-bird whistled shrill in some roadside briars near by, and the busy sparrows fed, fought, frolicked in the fence-rows as if they felt the billowy waves of mist a sea rising to presently disturb their enjoyments.

"Tell me about Triptolemus," said I, and my silent companion roused himself out of his far-away mood with a start. "After all," said he, "there is not much to tell you, only how I loved him, and how he loved me and all of us, and gave time, ambition, everything for the sake of this love! Last time I saw him alive—it was in February, 1849. There were only two of us—Trip was two years older than I—and my mother, and we had a hard time of it. Trip, you see, was a very bright fellow, quick to learn, ambitious as the devil, and wanted distinction, honors, and all that. I have none of it, but I honored it, when I would wake up o' nights and turn over and see him hard at his books and studies. He'd had a good start in schooling, was well grounded, you know, and going right forward to his goal, when father died, leaving us nothing much but his good name. Then mother and I went to work, to keep Trip at school and give him his chance, for we were proud of him, you know, and we knew he'd never forget what he owed us. Mother started a millinery shop, and I left school and went errand-boy, and we managed to keep Trip at his books and the wolf from the door, but it was hard lines, old fellow!

"I wore patched shirts, I can tell you, and the old lady's face got very thin and anxious. She had her worries, you see, but didn't let on, and she didn't eat as much as she needed—but how could two unthinking boys know that? Trip was getting ready for college, and, by night-teaching and odd jobs of different kinds, he got together quite a little nest-egg to help bear his college expenses—between three and four hundred dollars it was. Well, one night he woke me up with his groaning. 'What's the matter, Trip?' says I, and with that the poor fellow burst out crying. 'Oh, it's too bad, Flav!' said he. 'Here's the sheriff's put in an execution upon mother's poor little shop, and she never said a word about it to me nor you either, and I, selfish do-nothing, living upon you both!' 'Never you mind about that, Trip!' I answered stoutly, 'you're going to be the gentleman of the family, and it's all right our working for you. When you're rich and famous, won't we rollick in purple and fine linen, though!' He said no more, and I went to sleep. Five days later, Trip was gone, and left only a letter with $200 in it—more than half his pile. 'I'm off to California,' he wrote, 'to contribute my share to the support of the family!' And he had gone without a word of leave-taking. I left the old lady fainting in the arms of some of the neighbors, and ran all the way to the slip which the ship was to sail from. I just saw him as the vessel was towed out. I shouted to him to come back; he smiled, shook his head and waved me a farewell. 'Take care of mother, and I'll do the rest!' Those were his last words, and I never saw my Trip again!"

He stopped and looked out over the hazy scene before us. "It was hard lines for the old lady, Mr. Smith, and I had ado to make her look up again. You see all her pride was in Trip; she counted on his turning out so well. But by and by came a letter from him, written on ship-board; then another, noting his arrival, and a third from the mines, with a remittance, too. He was going to make his fortune very soon, and do no end of things for us. These things chirked the deal old lady up wonderfully; the money made her quite easy, and she began to conclude that it was all for the best. More money, more remittance, until he had sent us in all nigh $2,000; and then the letters ceased suddenly. We wrote, we waited, we wrote to friends, to the newspapers, but no news of Trip.

Three years, and not a word from him. It was awful. The old lady's hair turned white, and she lost the use of her limbs, and had to give up the shop. That made no matter, for I had got a start on Trip's money, and was doing well enough for both. But her face was a haunting horror. She had dreams of Trip—I did not know it then, she never spoke—and saw his white bones bleaching on a desert waste—the same killing dream, night after night. Three years, and then a Californian came to see us, assured himself we were Trip's folks and told us he had been Trip's partner at the mines, and had come to bring us Trip's effects. And he piled some little bags of gold-dust on the table, and put Trip's little Bible alongside of these, and a bundle of home letters from his kit. My mother seized these, held them to her heart, and asked, 'Where is my son, Triptolemus?'

"The man had a tender heart—honest fellow, with all that treasure in his pocket he hadn't enough of his own to buy himself a decent suit of clothes—and he bungled badly in telling his tale. Trip's claim had got him thin, and, against the advice of his best friends, he had joined a party to go prospecting elsewhere. The party got lost, some were shot by Indians, some came back starving, but Trip never came back at all. Nothing was heard of him, and the men of the camp, after taking good care of his effects, had sent them home to us by the first comer.

"My son Triptolemus lies unburied in the wilderness! I knew it!" cried my poor mother.

I put her to bed; she was paralyzed, and for many weeks the dear soul lingered betwixt life and death. Then she got well enough to say: "Flavius, go find your brother's remains and bury them!"

The miners had sent home pretty near $4,000, so I left the old lady in good hands and went California-wards upon the sacred errand. It was a fruitless one. I came back as I went, only I had fallen upon some fortunate speculations, and began to be a rich man. Poor old mother! She would give me no rest. Her dreams were incessant. I must find her boy's bones, bleaching in the wilderness. Well, about ten years ago, to satisfy the dear old lady, I made another trip to California, and, as luck would have it, came across one of the few survivors of the prospecting party.

'Stranger,' said he to me, 'none of us can rightly say poor Trip is dead. We were lost in a sandy wilderness, and were pretty much all of us half crazy. Trip had sun-stroke, and wandered off from us to the hills; that I remember so well.'

"It is a long story, Smith, and full of pain for me. I heard of some abject Digger Indians, who were known to have had an insane white man in their camp and care, the most abject and degraded of the whole gang. I had a long search for these people. I found the chief of the band, and, with money and long cajolery, got him to tell me of the white man who had been in his camp. There could be no doubt it was one of Trip's party. 'Where is the man buried?' I asked.

'Man no dead,' he said. 'White man tuck um!"

'Where is he now, then?' I asked, trembling. 'Me show um!'

He took me to Havilah, in Kern county. There in the County Almshouse, gray, squalid, abject, I found a drivelling, grinning idiot. It was my brother!

"Do you see that house yonder," said he, pointing to a large, secluded mansion, with extensive grounds. "Get up, Semicolon," and the impatient horse took the road again with fiery steps.

"Triptolemus, my poor brother, was dead," said Bearn; "I came home bringing a coffin containing some bones. I erected the monument you have seen to my dead brother's memory. Once a week my poor decrepid mother comes there in a padded coach, and lays her offering on the tomb to the memory of the deceased."

Bearn drove into the grounds of the mansion he had called my attention to. He flung the reins to a boy at the door, and introduced me to a composed, middle-aged gentleman with gold spectacles.

"How is your patient, doctor?" he asked. "About the same." "May I go in to see him?" "Of course," the doctor said.

We walked up stairs, down a long corridor, very hospital-like, and Bearn opened the door of a handsome apartment. There, before a hot coal fire, in a great easy chair, waited on by a small, pleasant-voiced attendant, sat a middle-aged man with long white hair, whose eyes had no speculation in them, and who did not look up, nor give any sign of recognition as we entered.

"How is he to-day, Mary?" asked Bearn. "Always the same, Mr. Bearn," she replied. "Never notices, nor complains, but does all we tell him, like a child!"

"Like a child!" echoed Bearn, with tears in his voice, and he went to the statue's side, and embraced him, and parted the long white hair from his forehead, and kissed the shapely brow, yellow with the dingy stain of long continued lunacy.

"Do you know me, Trip?" he asked, with a quaver, the most pathetic, in his tones. There was no answer.

He sighed, and took a package of bon bons from his pocket and gave it to the silent creature, who mumbled them eagerly, greedily. "Be kind to him, and take care of him, Mary." "Bless you, sir, I will! I couldn't help being kind to him. He's such a lamb."

We made a silent exit and drove off again.

"The old lady knows nothing of this," said Bearn; "he has been there ten years, and I durst not tell her. But this is not our Triptolemus, anyhow!" he said, with a burst of feeling. "This is only a wreck, a hull, a ruin. Our Triptolemus, our noble Trip, gave himself, mind and body, for our good. He died that we might be comfortable, and this is all the poor legacy he was able to leave us."

The Autumn evening fell into dim twilight, damp and chill, and we drove along in a silence only broken by Semicolon's cianging hoofs.

News and Notes.

Of the 292 members of the next House, but 108 were members of the 43d or preceding Congresses, thus leaving 184 who have never served in the National legislature. Of the 108 who have been re-elected the republicans have 68 and the democrats 40, but among the latter are several whose term of service exceeds that of any member on the republican side.

In the Pennsylvania election Hartranft ran 1,309 ahead of Rawle, and Piollet 7,005 ahead of Pershing. The grange vote did not, therefore, materially help Piollet.

Gov. Dingley of Maine, in resuming the editorship of the Lewiston Journal, says he does so "with a stronger conviction than ever that no position in life is more honorable, or opens larger opportunities for influence and usefulness, than that of the journalist."

The wages of the operatives in the mills of the Great Falls Manufacturing Company will be reduced, not exceeding 10 per cent., November 29.

The overthrow of Tammany is the most important point which the republicans carried in the recent elections. It cuts the main army off from its base of supplies. It dries up the only source of money power which the enemy possessed. It gives the control of the city and State of New York into hands unfriendly to the schemes of those who have so long plundered the great city for the benefit of the democracy.

While Mrs. Jeremiah Scanlon, of Amherst, was away from home consoling with a bereaved friend, her little son three years old set his clothes on fire and was burned to death in the presence of his father and sister.

The death of Mr. McDill, Representative-elect from the Eighth Wisconsin District, further complicates matters already complicated. Cate, democrat, was first given the seat by the canvassers, but the Supreme Court ordered them to declare McDill, republican, duly elected. Judge Cate was about to contest the seat, when suddenly Mr. McDill died.

The schooner Lacon, ashore on the North Breaker in Newburyport harbor, remains in a dangerous condition, as part of her keel is broken off and she is damaged in various parts of her hull.

The London Times says: A war between the United States and Spain on account of Cuba would be all but inevitable if American despatches could be construed as literally as those of European countries. No European Government would send such a note as that which President Grant has caused to be delivered to the Cabinet of Madrid unless it was ready to fight; and any Government with a sense of self-respect would fight rather than yield to such dictation.

The new ship Brown Brothers, about 1500 tons burden, was successfully launched from the yard of Atkinson & Fillmore, Newburyport, on the 16th. She is a splendid model of a ship, and is owned mostly by parties in Boston.

The Marshall Tragedy.

Among Marshall's effects were found a letter and a business card enclosed in an envelope addressed, To Mrs. Ida E. Marshall, Stoughton, Mass. The letter was written with a lead pencil, in a nervous hand, and its contents were as follows:

"MY DEAR WIFE: My time is short; I begin to feel effects of my dose of morphine, and soon I will be with them that rest from their labors. I have not read all of the account in paper, but will try and finish it if I am able. I want to be buried beside my wife. The money which father gave me, which I have ($50), please take and bury me. And now I bid you all good by.

P. S.—After reading the whole account, I see that much of it is false. I never had any intention to take the life of my wife until she told me that she had been of [sic] the city with another man and went with him for money, and she say that she had the best time or "bum" she ever had, and it naturally excited me. But I had expected that she had been with other men before. But I am willing to forgive her and hope that God will be good to her. But if I have a wife, I want her myself and not for public property. I bid all friends a farewell, and now soon pass from this life, as I am getting too much affected with the poison to write more. I ask the forgiveness of my wife, and also of all, and also of my father. God grant that we may meet in Heaven. ORRIN."

The business card had the following written on the back of it:

"Request of Orrin S. Marshall. I stayed last night in a barn in West Mansfield, and saw my doing in the Herald in a saloon, and as I was reading it two men came in, and I thought they were detectives, and so I took a large dose of morphine."

Mrs. Marshall is doing well, and suffers very little from her wound. It is now said that a note addressed to "My dear Ida," and intended for Mrs. Marshall, was thrown from a train of cars on the Old Colony Railroad, and picked up by one party and shown to one or more before Mrs. M. received it. This note made an appointment which it is alleged Mrs. M. kept with an employee of the road, the presumed author of the note. This report coming to the ears of Mr. Marshall caused him, it is presumed, to attempt the life of his wife.

Letter From Florida.

FEDERAL POINT, FLORIDA, Nov. 13.

I have in previous letters made, some slight mention of a few of the varieties of fruits that can be, and are grown here, and it is in continuation of this subject that I now write. The banana has been alluded to, but I will add that it requires a rich soil (either natural or highly fertilized) as well as good cultivation in order to attain anything like a proper growth. (I make this statement for the purpose of correcting false statements that I see are made in some of the Northern papers that "the banana will grow here without cultivation.") There are several varieties of the banana, all possessing the same general characteristics of growth. All the different varieties of grapes known in the United States will grow here successfully, if properly cultivated, and many varieties succeed here much better than in colder States. The Scuppernong is our "staple grape," being a native of the South and flourishing abundantly upon almost any variety of soil. It is a rampant growing vine and its yield of fruit is simply enormous. I dare not state the amount of fruit one vine has been known to yield, lest I be accused of exaggeration. The fruit is large, dark in color, thick-skinned, but of excellent flavor. The pomegranate resembles in its growth a small apple tree. The fruit has the general appearance of a good sized Baldwin apple, but after removing the outer coating you find a mass of seeds about the size of a current seed, enveloped in a slight covering of pulp. The flavor is sweet in some; others are tart. The fruit is of little account with us, and one tree on a place is sufficient for all practical purposes. The Japan plum is a very pretty tree, forming a regular flat top with long bright green leaves. It is an evergreen, and is now in blossom, ripening its fruit in early Spring, which resembles in flavor a moderately sour apple. I could mention several varieties of plums but as they are similar in growth to what is found in New Hampshire it would not interest your readers.

The strawberry is grown here to a slight extent, and is found to succeed very well. They are not indigenous, however, and their cultivation requires considerable care. The plants are set out during the months of September and October, and about the first of January they will commence to ripen their fruit and will continue in bearing until the July following, making as you will perceive an entirely different growth from what they do in the North. After they cease bearing they make growth of runners, which are set out the next Fall and the old stocks thrown away as worthless. The greatest difficulty in their cultivation is in Summering the plants. They require rich, moist ground, which should be well fertilized. When planted on proper soil, the cultivation is found to be profitable, as at the season of their ripening there is an excellent home market for them, selling last Winter at from one to two dollars per quart at our doors. The experiment of shipping to New York proved a failure. They were shipped in refrigerators and the expense of freight, commission, ice, loss by decay, etc., left us here with a surplus of glory and but little money, although some of them sold as high as four and five dollars per quart, there. The running blackberry or dewberry that grows here is a very fine berry, but is not cultivated. They ripen in March. The finer qualities of blackberries and raspberries grown North, will not to my knowledge succeed here; neither will currants or gooseberries. Varieties may be introduced in time that will, but all efforts to produce them in this section have thus far proved failures. Huckleberries or blueberries are found all over the country in their season and in great abundance. They ripen in the month of May.

I would like to give you the exact amounts received from the product of an acre or a fraction of an acre planted with the various fruits I have mentioned, but find it impossible to do so. My own operations are so mixed up and run together that I find no figures at home, and I doubt if they can be obtained from other sources. You must remember that fruit culture is in its infancy here, and we have been struggling along as best we could. The Northern fruit growers have had to unlearn many of their preconceived ideas and adopt what to them appeared the more shiftless methods pursued by the old residents. This has taken time, and has enhanced the expense of the business, and I may with truth say that fruit and vegetable growing in Florida has only just commenced. The prospects for future success are very favorable, and I know of no reason why the anticipations for the future may not be realized.

It is impossible for a person born and reared in the cold, vigrous climate of New England to form any adequate conception of this climate and scenery, except by actual experience. The air, color of the clouds and sky are all changed, as well as the growth of vegetation and feed of the country. In coming here now; those to whom the luxuries of a thickly-settled country with its attendant benefits of polite society are a necessity, would doubtless be homesick and discontented as soon as the novelty had worn away; but with myself (if I may be forgiven for the seeming egotism) although I may appreciate these advantages, yet there is a charm in the wilderness, a feeling of freedom and self-reliance that over-balances them all. A new country has its deprivations and hardships, as all must know, but to the man in the full vigor of life, these are variably borne; especially as he may feel the proud consciousness that his own good right arm has conquered some of the mighty monarchs of the forest and made a spot in the wilderness to make glad the eye and the heart by its bounteous yield of the luxuries and the necessities of life. In a little time, I hope to have all these other things added, for I predict for this country a glorious future. Its resources are inexhaustible. Its mines of lead, copper, iron and coal; its almost endless amount of all the different woods that are manufactured; its cotton and other products of the soil—all added to a climate mild and congenial, can but attract to its shores the multitude of sturdy "sons of men" who wish to improve beyond the opportunities the Fatherland affords them.

J. F. TENNEY.

JOSEPH GUIBORD, PRINTER.

Few men in the world's long history have ever achieved so wide a posthumous fame, without striving for it while they lived, as has fallen to the lot of Joseph Guibord, he whose burial has engaged the attention of Queen Victoria's Privy Council, has drawn forth anathema from a bishop, has converted a cemetery into a garrison, and is a theme of endless discussion in ecclesiastical and secular circles. The man whose remains have raised such a row was Joseph Guibord, printer of Montreal, who died in November, 1869, aged sixty-two years. For thirty-six consecutive years Guibord was in the employ of Louis Perrault & Sons, and for twenty years of this long period he filled the place of foreman. He was a printer of more than ordinary intelligence and ingenuity. When the Catechism and Hymns for the use of the Indians in the Northwestern regions of Canada were prepared for the press, Guibord was consulted as to the best methods for putting the Indian dialects into type and of making the novel matrices. Although not conversant with the original tongues, Guibord undertook the labor of putting the—to him—meaningless writing into type; and so well did he succeed in the difficult undertaking, that for ten years he furnished the Roman Catholic missions in Northwestern Canada with all the Catechisms and Hymn Books needed for the Indians. Mr. Guibord likewise supervised all the printing for the palace of the Bishop of Montreal, and for twenty years he personally superintended the composition and printing of the Bishop's pastoral letters.

Guibord's post mortem troubles arose from his refusal, at the request of the Bishop, to withdraw from a literary association, the "Institut-Canadien," which had in its library certain books, the reading of which was forbidden to Catholics, by the authority of the Pope. Guibord appealed to Rome; before an answer came he died, and his remains were refused interment in the Roman Catholic cemetery at Montreal. Deceased had a premonition of the troubles his corpse was to cause. A short time previous to his demise, in conversation with a friend on his appeal to Rome, he said, "I feel that I am going fast, and if this matter is not settled before I die, there will be a row (tapage) about my grave." All the civilized world watched the row with interest, very few knowing who or what Joseph Guibord was. On the 16th he was successfully buried.

—The surgical examination of the body of Lexington, the great Kentucky race horse, revealed a most singular cause for his death. That part of the skull under the left eye, where the trouble of the horse seemed to be located, was filled with at least a quart of masticated food, which had been forced into the cavity through an opening into the upper jaw, caused by the loss of a tooth.

—She was brushing his hair, and he enjoyed being tussed over amazingly. Rolling up his eyes, he said: "My dear, why was Columbus, when he landed in America, like me now? She couldn't tell him, and he explained: "Because he was tickled at being fust over."—Chicago Tribune.

—Westervelt, who was implicated in the Ross boy case, says: "The reason why I am in prison is because I was playing detective without understanding the business."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS TO-DAY

Thanksgiving Stores—Butler & Laighton.
29th Annual Thanksgiving Notice.—L. Laighton.

Circuit Court.

On Wednesday, Katie R. Gay was granted a divorce from Thos. S. Gay, without alimony, in consideration of having the custody of the two minor children, which was decreed to her.

On Wednesday, the 17th, the case of John Martin, of Londonderry, was concluded, and the jury found a verdict of guilty, in five minutes after leaving their seats. Judge Foster sentenced him to four years in State prison and to pay costs. Counsel for the defendant filed exceptions to Judge Foster's charge to the jury.

The case of Samuel F. Eaton, for an assault upon Charles Knowles, Jr., of Seabrook, was next called. The case was given to the jury last evening shortly before six o'clock.

Jottings.

Schooner S. & B. Small, Cole, an old vessel, bound to Machias, Me., from this port, ran ashore near Kittery Point about 11 o'clock, Wednesday, and at last accounts was lying in a critical position.

The Brooklyn Tabernacle congregation celebrated the first anniversary of the dedication of the new edifice by a concert in which the Boston Philharmonic Club were the performers. An audience of more than 3,000 was present, and they showed signs of being in the very best of good humored and appreciative moods. The Boston Club won a harvest of ecomiums and encores and can draw on the Tabernacle people for any amount of recommendations. The Boston Philarmonic Club, like all Boston products, is brainy. From time to time most of the artists have been heard in Brooklyn, but never together before. The result of the concert was such a feast of delight that we can but believe they will be redemanded by the other portions of Brooklyn. The execution was superb. The Club artists played with a precision of great musicians, and at times with the effect in volume of a great orchestra. The concerted pieces were very fine. The solo parts were gems. The audience, which included hundreds of music lovers from New York City, were delighted.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Father, Bring Home Your Money To-Night" is the title of a new temperance song and chorus, the words by Mrs. M. A. Kidder, the music by Wm. F. Sherwin, just published by Horace Waters & Sons, 481 Broadway; price, 30 cents.

Mr. C. W. Pratt, Purchasing Agent of the Eastern Railroad, has resigned, and that office has been abolished. Mr. John P. Somerby, master car builder, has also resigned. He formerly had charge of the works at East Boston and for the last few years of those at Salem. Mr. John Hubbard has been appointed to the position.

At the special meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday evening, the 16th, a committee reported that they were in correspondence with Gen. Thom with a view to having certain buoys changed and rocks removed in the harbor, and securing the building of a breakwater near the lower bridge to Newcastle. Congressman Jones declared his intention to secure the passage of an appropriation. A committee was appointed to consider the subject of a proper representation of Portsmouth at the Centennial.

The Boston papers state that the Juvenile Mexican Opera Bouffe Troupe are to make an eastern tour and will include Portsmouth on the route. The prima dona of the company, Nina Carmen Moron, although only eight years old, is said to act and sing charmingly. The troupe play the Grande Duchesse and other difficult comic operas.

Several vessels, at anchor in the lower harbor, were driven ashore during the Northwest gale of Tuesday night, the 16th, and are now on the rocks.

The Skating Rink tickets bear the injunction "not transferable," but it simply means that the tickets are not to be tranferred from one family to another, for obvious reasons. The Rink requires the support of the families to support and run it. The tickets can be transferred among the family with perfect freedom, and indeed, any gentleman buying two tickets will have the liberty of asking a different lady every day to accompany him to the Rink, just as he would ask a lady to go to any entertainment. The management has no wish to shut down on mild flirtations, or varied pleasures.

Services for praise at the Bow Mission, this evening at 7:30. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Mr. John C. Edgar, the English lecturer who has delighted Boston lecture goers by his thrilling narrative of the "Charge of the Six Hundred," of whom he was one, will open the Lyceum course this evening, assisted by the beautiful and accomplished elocutionist, Miss Cayvan, who will recite selections from Tennyson's poems.

The Portsmouth Artillery Company selected the following officers Tuesday evening the 16th: Captain, Thomas E. O. Marvin; First Lieut., David Urch; Second Lieut. Josiah N. Jones; Ord. Serg., William A. Payson. Benjamin Chcever, Esq., who was an active member of the Portsmouth Artillery fifty years ago, was unanimously elected an honorary member.

RATTAN WARE
MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere an at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz, a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

A PLAN FOR GETTING WORK.

There is an association of young persons at Springfield, Vt., known as the Industrial Works, that furnishes all its members with constant work at fair wages, and a pleasant home at small cost, which is meeting with success so marked as to attract the attention of all thinking people. The members of this association are all young people who are willing to rid themselves of all bad habits, work steadily, dress economically, and save a portion of their wages; no others are taken. All the men who join are required to furnish a small amount of capital, and save one-fourth of their wages, which must be invested in the capital stock of the association. Women are not required to furnish any capital in the outset, but must save one-sixth of their wages and invest it in the business. Those who do not comply with the requirements of the association are expelled, and those who wish to leave can do so at any time, and can withdraw their capital at any time by giving six months' notice. The wages paid to each member is fixed by a board of directors and is proportioned to their skill and ability. They have a large dwelling or home where the members live and enjoy many privileges and comforts not usually found in families or boarding-houses. All pay a moderate price for their board from their wages. They have two new factory buildings, and a good water privilege and considerable machinery, and are engaged in the manufacture of toy and house-furnishing goods for which they find a ready sale. They commenced business a year ago with five hands, and are now working forty-five; their sales for last month were over three thousand dollars, their pay roll for the month was over twelve hundred dollars, and the saving of wages which was added to the capital of the company was more than three hundred dollars. The average amount saved from the wages of each man in a year is one hundred and fifty dollars, and of each woman fifty dollars. Many of the members have saved much more than this during the year, but this is all that is required of them. The aggregate amount saved by the present company in a year will be nearly five thousand dollars.

—The New York Herald's correspondent at Richmond gives a history of the family of the unfortunate woman who killed herself at No. 180 Fifth avenue, a few days since. Her real name was Minnie Roane. She was a native of King William County, Va., and belonged to one of the most noted F. F. V's. Her parents were related closely to the family of Hon. William Roane, a former Governor of Virginia, and her grand-uncle was a Judge of the State Court of Appeals, and at one time a United States Senator. Her mother died while herself and a sister named Belle were yet quite young, to which may probably be attributed the cause of their misfortunes and terrible fates. About six years ago these two girls, Minnie and Belle, ran away from their home in King William [County, with the avowed purpose of beginning a life of shame and misery. They were pursued, however, and with the aid of some distant relatives living in this city were captured and returned to their home, where for a time they were kept under the strictest surveillance. As soon as this was relaxed, they escaped again, and bent upon leading a life of sin they entered houses of ill fame in this city. Minnie left Richmond three years ago and went to St. Louis and from thence to New York, where her history since is well know; her sister went to Baltimore, and, I am informed to-day, threw herself from the window of a hospital in that city and was instantly killed. A brother, who was employed in a drug store in this city, took chloroform, from the effects of which he died. The family history is replete with terrible catastrophes and misfortunes.

Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is not a gun of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the child in the colored supplement pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the needle and its pattern by its patterns for the children's clothes, to patchwork by its useful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity over the fireside that it merits.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In no way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its storiès and essays, its poetry, its sparkle, are invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold. I say they are worth, at ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.30 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pains; can sleep as well as ever. My friends are as onished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, dropsy and Liver, and writes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rosleindale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.50 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of pushing their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. History of the South Parish.

NO. XI.

BY REV. JAMES DE NORMANDIE.

[Boston Transcript]

Our last sketch brought the history of religious matters in our town to the erection of a new church by the South Parish in 1731. On a temporary platform or staging fixed in the frame raised for the building, Mr. Emerson offered a prayer beseeching the divine blessing upon the enterprise—and this was his last public religious service.

It would certainly be ungracious to abandon the old church for the new without a brief notice of some of the prominent worshippers who were accustomed to gather in the ancient structure, which, with themselves, was so conspicuous a part of our early history.

The first place of worship, you will remember, was the Episcopal chapel, in what is now Pleasant street, built in or about 1658, but all the members of that went down to the first Old South Church beyond the Mill Bridge, nor have we the record of the death of any prominent person connected with the first chapel before the removal, although some had left the colony.

We meet, first of all, among those bearing a leading part in religious affairs, and of those whose descendants remain among us, with the name of Henry Sherburne. He was from the beginning an active Churchman, and appears as one of the wardens, to whom the glebe lands, chapel and parsonage were intrusted. His associate warden, Walford, appears some years later as the husband of the witch Goody Walford, and there may be some reason for the supposition that the charge of witchcraft had some connection with the animosity existing between the Independents and Church party. Sherburne appears in the settlement as early as June, 1632, and thereafter manifests a great interest in all civil and ecclesiastical matters.

When the Bay Colony came into rulers, and it was evidently no longer possible to maintain Episcopacy, Sherburne still took an interest in supporting public worship, as approved by the majority, although by no means to his own mind. We find him appointed by the town to go in search of a minister, and also engaging to entertain the minister when he came. All this, I take it, was in the faith that the re-establishment of Episcopacy might occur at an early day; and in this faith it doubtless was that we find him in the first list of the subscribers to the support of Moodey, while officiating at the first Old South Church in 1658. But when this faith, by force of circumstances, grew less, and it was evidently the intention of the Bay to establish their ecclesiastical system here with all its rigor (an intention which by reason of the strength of the Episcopal element had heretofore been frustrated,) then Sherburne refused altogether to contribute toward the support of doctrines he did not accept, for in a list of subscribers to the maintainance of Moodey in 1671 we find annexed to the names of Henry Sherburne and Richard Sloper, his son-in-law, the note, "Will not subscribe."

I do not find in that any want of Christian liberality or Christian charity. Rather do I deem it commendable. There are persons enough without any religious convictions, and without attachments to any of the various doctrinal systems; and those who deem all equally good or equally poor can help support all. But it is not the best-placed charity, or the most commendable spirit, for the sake of improving a neighborhood, or being regarded as generous, or becoming popular, to contribute to the advancement of views which one does not think helpful to a higher religious life.

Contemporary with Sherburne, and likewise active in all civil and church matters, we find the name of Cutt. Hardly a subject comes up in the town meetings, hardly a paper appears before the legislative assemblies, but we meet this family. Foremost in any movement of education or religion, and the largest contributors in all the charities and subscriptions of the day, are these brothers. Three of them—Robert, Richard and John—came from Wales before 1646. Richard settled at the Shoals, and became owner of almost all of Star Island, at the time of its greatest prosperity; and then removed to Portsmouth, where he became one of the leading merchants. John settled first at Strawberry Bank, came somehow or other into possession of what was called the Great House, which stood near the union of Court and Water streets; was the owner of vessels, mills and warehouses on the Piscataqua, and became a merchant of great wealth, influence and esteem, and president of the first council of New Hampshire. Robert settled at Great Island, and afterward removed to Kittery. Richard and John were inclined to the party of Independents or Puritans, but Robert was throughout an Episcopalian and royalist.

In the voluntary subscriptions for the support of the ministry in 1671, we find opposite the names of John and Richard Cutt the sum of seven pounds each; the whole amount to be raised being £100, of which two others subscribed four pounds each, four as much or more than two pounds, and nineteen as much or more than one pound, making more than half of the whole amount of the minister's support voluntarily subscribed by twenty-seven persons, in a population of perhaps five hundred.

In the list of inhabitants of Portsmouth who in 1640 made a grant of fifty acres for a glebe land for the use of the ministry, we find the name of John Pickering, who in himself and his descendants was to play a conspicuous part in town matters, both civil and ecclesiastical. The first John Pickering appeared in Portsmouth as early as 1635; perhaps as early as 1630. He came here from Massachusetts, and perhaps was the same person spoken of as being at Cambridge soon after that town was settled. He died on the 18th of January, 1668-9, leaving a large family. It was his son John who became so prominent in church and town affairs, and to whom I have already frequently referred. He was born about 1640, and died about 1721, at the age of eighty. He first came into notice as a military man, for which his character and talents seem eminently to have qualified him. As captain he had a command in Portsmouth for a number of years. When John Cutt was appointed first president of the separate government of New Hampshire, in 1680, Captain Pickering was a representative for the town of Portsmouth; and he was also a member of the Assembly called by Governor Cranfield, and dissolved with great wrath because it would not raise the money he desired.

It is mentioned in the early records, that during the suspension of Government consequent upon the imprisonment of Andros, in 1689, Captain John Pickering, a man of "a rough and adventurous spirit and a lawyer," went with a company of armed men to the house of Richard Chamberlain (who wrote the book called "Lithobolia; or, Stone Throwing Demon, at Great Island," of which I have given an account, who had been secretary of the province under Andros, and clerk of the Superior Court, and demanded the records and files which were in his possession; and upon his refusing to deliver them up without some warrant or security, Pickering seized them by force and carried them off and concealed them, and in turn was by force compelled to deliver them to Lieutenant Governor Usher. Voluntarily or by election, he seems to have been engaged in several such enterprises about records of both Church and State.

In 1697 he was appointed king's attorney, with Charles Story as secretary of the province and clerk of the council, with all the records and files committed to his care. Story did not attend one of the adjourned meetings of the council, was reprimanded for neglect of duty and ordered to surrender all his papers. Upon refusing to do so, the sheriff and Captain Pickering were ordered to take with them sufficient assistance, and make diligent search in any houses, rooms, closets, chests, trunks or other places within the province, for the said papers. The papers appeared at once. Pickering was a member of the convention which in 1690 recommended a reunion with Massachusetts, and was chosen a member of the Assembly which met in Boston for a number of successive years, and was several times chosen its Speaker. As a lawyer he could not have been without popularity and confidence, for in 1707, when the great case of Allen vs. Waldron, involving Allen's title to the province of New Hampshire, was tried for the last time, and all the strength of each side was brought out, embracing some of the first men in the Province. Captain Pickering was selected as one of the counsel to defend the houses and lands of the inhabitants. Hon. John Pickering LL. D., of Newington was a descendant of the second son of the first John Pickering of Portsmouth—but the ancestor of the distinguished Timothy Pickering was a John Pickering of Ipswich.

In the affairs of the Church it was this Captain Pickering who was appointed to build the stocks and pillory for the punishment of offenders on Sunday, and on account of his remarkable strength, of which stories apparently fabulous were handed down, was chosen, at the time of Mr. Moodey's settlement, to keep the congregation in order and reserve seats for the distinguished guests; but he let all in before the time, on the theory that at church one person was just as good as another. When the difficulties began in regard to the site for the new church, which ended in the formation of two parishes, and animosities which disturbed the peace of the whole province for a generation, Captain Pickering was the leading spirit in the old South Parish, who carried everything as he willed at the town meetings, either by persuasion or by force; strenuously opposed building the new meeting house so far up as the site of the North Church; carried the matter again and again to the General Court, and generally with success for his side; was foremost in all matters concerning the old parish; and when at last the old church could be no longer repaired, and kept, as he made the town vote it should be, "the meeting house of the town forever," he devised to the South Parish a lot of ground for a convenient site for another meeting house, to be set off to the said parish, "on the highest part of his Neck." He was a large real-estate owner at the North End of the town, and what was called "Pickering Neck" was a part of the land on which the fourth place of worship in the town of Portsmouth was built, being the Church of the South Parish, in which we worshipped until the present stone church was built, in 1824. That Old South Church was erected in 1731. In the list of subscribers to the support of Mr. Moodey, and so of course among the worshippers at the Old South, we find the name of Samuel Wentworth. This is the first of the family, afterward so prominent in public affairs, who appears in our own town. He was the son of Elder William Wentworth of Dover. At that time the vicinity of Point of Graves was the principal business part of Portsmouth. For a while, Samuel Wentworth lived at Great Island; and afterward built by Puddle Dock, on the south side of the dock, at the north end of Manning street, the first Wentworth house, which is still in good preservation. It was in this house that the first Sir John Wentworth, his son, lived, and here was married in 1693, and owned all that part of the town as far as the South Church.

After the gathering of the new or North Church, some of the family of Samuel Wentworth are found in that, while to others belonged an active part in the formation of an Episcopal parish, which will be the subject of our next sketch.

When Great Island became a town under the name of Newcastle, in 1693, several of the prominent parishioners of the Old South became identified with the church at Newcastle, and some still retained a nominal connection, and even an active interest, in the old parish, as well as in the North after its establishment in 1714. Among those were Cranfield and Barefoot, Robert Cutt and Pendleton, Stileman and Fryer, Atkinson and Story, Sheafe and Jaffrey; but all of them must have been for a time constant, and afterward occasional, worshippers at the one old church of the settlement.

News and Notes.

At the next election in San Francisco about four hundred Chinamen will become voters without naturalization, having immigrated when under seventeen years of age. The Chinese companies bring over these persons as absolutely as slave masters, and it is believed that their votes will be in the market for sale to the highest bidder.

A man was found dead in Hudson, about twenty rods from the road in the woods, near the gravel-banks of the Rochester Railroad, Wednesday afternoon, the 17th, by a workman in the employ of Hon. Dana W. Sargent of that place, who was gathering evergreens. The man when found had evidently been there from three to four weeks, and was not recognized as a resident of that town. He had on a dark coat and striped pants and a black silk cap, and in his pocket were four dollars in bills and ninety cents in change, and by his left side was a new double-barrelled pistol, both chambers empty. It was evidently a case of suicide, as the man was shot through the mouth. By the looks of his face and his general appearance it was estimated that his age was forty-five years or thereabouts. He had sandy chin whiskers and was bald on the top of the head. He was of medium height, well dressed and respectable appearance.

The machine shop of G. P. Felt at Peterboro, was burned on the night of the 16th. Loss $25,000; insured for $6000. The fire was discovered about 11 o'clock, and owing to the high wind nothing could be saved.

Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald, a widow, was burned to death in a tenement house on East Street Place, Boston, Wednesday evening, the 17th. She was in the habit of using intoxicants to excess, and probably fell down with a lighted kerosene lamp in her hands.

Professor Wise, the aeronaut, believes that the kite principle will be of more value in navigating the air than will balloons.

Boys are great imitators. Two West Virginia lads who saw their father cut off the head of a chicken with a hatchet consulted each other on the subject for awhile and then concluded to repeat the act, by substituting one of themselves for the chicken. It was at a house-raising, and as the father was in the act of lifting a log to its place, he saw his son with his hatchet raised, in the act of severing his little brother's head. He let go of the log, which fell, killing six men, and before he could reach his son the weapon had descended and the head, completely severed from the body, rolled ghastly from the block.

Mark M. Pomeroy, better known as "Brick" Pomeroy, proprietor of the Democrat in New York, suspended to-day. His liabilities are estimated at $140,000; no assets.

Mr. Daniel N. Haskell, the late editor of the Boston Transcript, had a habit of saving up each year all the trinkets, toys, and children's books he received till Christmas Day, when he would load a wagon with the collection, and driving about among the children of his friends, he would distribute the treasures. The little ones have not forgotten his kindness, for the Boston Gazette of Sunday says: "A number of children, representative of families in this city, went to Newburyport yesterday, to place their floral tributes on the grave of Daniel Noyes Haskell, former editor of the Transcript. Among all the recognitions of his death—one year ago—none will have more touching and endearing significance than this from the young friends whom he loved so well, and who will ever keep his memory green."

Official returns give Pillsbury, republican, for Governor of Minnesota, 11,899 majority.

A young lady of Jefferson endeavored to commit suicide two months ago, on account of a disappointment in love. First she obtained a pistol and sought to free herself from the pains of a blighted heart. As she was not a very good shot, she missed her mark, and before she could again fire the people of the house rushed in and prevented it in that direction. It was soon ascertained that she had taken poison, but by the doctor's timely assistance her life was spared for more adventure. Soon after she tried to hang herself, but was baffled in that also. Friday evening last the Baptists of the town had a sociable. This heroine thought she would attend. On entering she saw the idol of her heart sitting beside a young lady. Then was the anger of her fiery disposition aroused; she advanced and seized the young miss and dragged her from her chair and seated herself therein. Suddenly a new thought struck her. She went out doors, got a whip and returned and taught her former lover a lesson for trifling with feminine affection such as he will not soon forget.

A New York correspondent of the Boston Journal says: Tweed and his friends are utterly downcast, and seem on the point of abandoning further attempts to get the old man out of prison. Lawyers have drained the ex-boss of an immense amount of his ill-gotten gains, and he is getting sick of legal worry. Of course his condition in Ludlow street jail is much preferable to the one among vulgar culprits on the Island, but still his days drag wearily along. He is very downcast over the action of the Court of Appeals, reversing the order of Judge Donohue, which granted Tweed a bill of particulars, and affirming the order of Judge Barrett in refusing to vacate the order of arrest, or reduce the amount of bail.

The reply of the Spanish Government to the note sent by the United States Government through Minister Cushing, referring to the treaty of 1795 has been received, and is regarded as perfectly satisfactory, the Spanish Government agreeing for the future to strictly observe the provisions of the treaty. In view of the satisfactory nature of this reply, orders were issued from the various departments revoking previous orders assigning certain officers to the command of naval vessels now ready for sea. Those vessels, however, will be kept in readiness for instant service. The controversy over the treaty of 1795 is not regarded as at all affecting the Cuban question proper, and cannot in any way embarrass this Government in considering the advisability of granting belligerent rights to the Cuban patriots. It is understood that the work of getting ready for sea our naval vessels that are in the hands of naval constructors will be continued.

CAUGHT IN THE RAPIDS.

One of the most remarkable adventures that has occurred in this country, full of tragic incident and hairbreadth escape, is related to the readers of the Helena Independent. John Mangles and H. Zerbest built a small boat in Helena, and launched it in the Missouri river at a point nearly opposite that city. During a rain and wind storm they discovered that their boat had struck and fastened to a huge rock and that they were in the midst of the rapids.

Ignorant of the river and of the surrounding country, the beating rain, howling wind and roaring waters well nigh frightened the two travellers out of their wits. They supposed, and correctly, that they were near to the First Great Fall of the Missouri. Unable to loosen their boat from the rock, Zerbest left and swam toward the shore in the hope of landing the boat. He had not gone beyond twenty-five yards when he found it impossible to proceed further. Just then Mangles cried to him to stop and he would join him. Looking back he saw him coming forward, and in a few minutes after Mangles disappeared in the water and was not seen again.

Appalled at the loss of his friend, unable to reach the shore on account of the deep water and stronger current, which carried everything before it, and the certain death which must attend a ride over the falls; filled with these thoughts, as he turned to sit in the boat and survey the surroundings, his mind was wild as he contemplated the danger. The wind was blowing a gale and chilled him to the bones. Not a living soul was near, nor was there any hope of assistance from the shore. With starvation staring him in the face should he determine to await there the turn of events he quickly determined that his only hope rested on going over the falls in his boat.

As soon as he came to this conclusion he set about loosening his vessel from the rock. Fastening one end of a rope to the boat he tied the other end around his body, and oar in hand he started on his perilous journey.

Reaching the first fall, which is about twelve feet, he passed over it easily; also the second fall, which is about twenty-five feet. On he went, and as he went over the third fall, which is about ninety feet high, he remembers that the boat was hanging over him. With presence of mind, he knew that he must avoid the descending boat, and accordingly, on reaching the foot of the fall, he dived into the current, and while under he unfastened the rope from his body, and by wonderful exertions reached the shore. Stunned by the fall and greatly bruised, he looked and watched in hope of seeing his missing friend. For three days, without a morsel to eat, he wandered along the bank of the river in search of him. On the first day hunger seemed to consume him. On the second and third days drinking water appeased his appetite and weakness grew upon him. He was loth to give up the search, but gnawing hunger, aching bruises and the surrounding desolation conquered his anxiety for his friend, and bade him save himself. Slowly he dragged himself up to the mountain summit, which overlooks the scene of his great peril, and footsore and sick at heart he followed the mountain range that led to the haunts of life. He arrived at Bird Tail Station utterly exhausted, where he recruited and then took the coach, arriving here last night.

John Mangles and H. Zerbest are both single men, and came to this country from Hannibal, Mo. The former was about twenty-five years old, a shoemaker by trade, and has been employed in Henry Schult's shoe store in Helena. Mr. Zerbest, the survivor, appears to be about thirty-five years of age, and has been a sailor. It was their intention to descend the Missouri river in their boat to Sioux City or Omaha.

—"Courtship is bliss," said an ardent young man. "Yes, and matrimony is blister," snarled an old bachelor.

Extraordinary Discovery.

Says the Lincoln, Colorado, News: While prospecting for lodes in the southwestern corner of Burrows Park recently, Mr. Foote accidentally discovered the entrance to a great cave in Ida mountain, which he undertook to explore. Passing along a low dark passage for about eighty feet he reached a chamber eighteen by twenty feet in size and several feet high, the walls of which are covered with stalactites of varied styles of beauty, while the dark granite floor is checkered with veins of pure white quartz, giving an appearance which reminds one of the Bible account of the floor of King Solomon's temple. In the rear of this room is another or inner chamber, access to which is obtained through a small low entrance, but within is "grandeur that defies decay," and "beauty which the touch of time makes more beautiful," the roof being draped with stalactites similar to, but more magnificent than those that adorn the first chamber, and the floor is covered with brilliant stalagmites, while the side walls show a large body of glittering mineral in a lode which "crops" on both sides. A clear, cold spring of excellent water gushes from the rock and flows away through the dark and as yet unexplored recesses of this wonderful cavern, but the sound or roar of a waterfall in the distance indicates that the course of this little stream is not altogether smooth. But there is yet to mention a discovery made in a small chamber which opens into the one first described, a discovery which possesses deep interest for the people of Colorado. It was a human skeleton found on the granite floor, and lying near it was a gun and a large knife, bearing the initials "A. F." A dim inscription carved in rude characters on the wall runs as follows: "A. Freeman, 1807." The supposition is that Freeman deserted or strayed from Pike's exploring party in 1807, and, in endeavoring to reach the Pacific, perished here. The results of further explorations in this subterranean section will be looked for with interest.

A Fight For a Scalp.

[Salt Lake Tribune.]

The attraction Saturday was an Indian buck, accompanied by his squaw, and Al Huntington, Brigham's great interpreter, perambulating the streets together. The Battle-Ax had a white woman's scalp, with very long black hair, attached to the hilt of a sword by his side. The scalp is nearly as large over as the crown of a man's hat, is lined with red flannel and decorated with an eagle's feather. The hair is fine and about two feet long, evidently that of a young woman. Dr. Higgins, who has in his time been called to witness the sickening butcheries of the redskins, saw the scalp as he walked up Main street, and, when the remembrances of Indian outrages flashed across his mind, his blood boiled with indignation to see the populace gaze calmly upon the trophy of a heartless deed, and allow the perpetrator thereof to flaunt it in their faces.

Husbands and brothers had no response for the Doctor when he appealed to them to stand shoulder to shoulder with him while he took the scalp from the Indian, for, knowing that the Battle-Ax was the guest of Brigham, he fully realized that the minions of the priesthood would interfere on behalf of Lo, when the scalp should be taken from him. A deputy marshal said that the Doctor did not have the "sand" to attempt it, but when an interpreter asked the Indian if the scalp was that of a white woman he was answered in the affirmative. Higgins did not wait for the boys to co-operate with him, but sailed in on his muscle and captured the scalp. A general street-fight was imminent, for the Gentiles rallied to Higgins like men, to prevent Huntington and his crowd carrying out their threats, but the major part of public sentiment was with Higgings, who marched off victorious. The scalp doubtless, has an interesting, not to say bloody, history.

The following additional cases have been disposed of in the Circuit Court: Brown & Prescott vs. the Faneuil Hall Insurance Company, of Boston, and the same firm vs. the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Company, entered at this term to recover on a saw-mill at Kensington, upon motion of defendants were transferred to the U. S. Circuit Court. Woodward Emery for defendants.

The indictment found against John Wright and Robert Cotter, respectively a "big Injun" and a man-of-wars-man, for highway robbery committed in this city, was nol pros'd by the State, as the person aggrieved is out of the State and did not appear to urge his claims.

On Thursday, Samuel F. Eaton, of Seabrook, was convicted of sodomy, and was sentenced to the State prison for three years.

John Brewer, of Newton, retracted his plea, of "Not Guilty," and was sent to jail for sixty days and fined $100 and costs, for keeping a disorderly house.

John Rogers, of Windham, having retracted his plea of "Not Guilty," was sentenced to the State prison for two years, for larceny of $60.

Bridget Sykes was found guilty of keeping a disorderly house in this city, and was sentenced to the House of Correction for one hundred days, and fined $50 and costs.

Moses Rogers and Walter West, of Kingston, retracted pleas of "Not Guilty" of aggravated assault, and were each sentenced to the House of Correction for thirty days—Rogers to pay $30 fine and costs.

Hiram Gove, for using a pitchfork upon Andrew Ackerman, was found guilty.

James D. Butler, Esq., addressed the Court in extenuation, but his Honor could not see it, and Hiram goes to Brent wood for 150 days, and then must pay or work out $150 fine and costs.

Jottings.

The Advertiser says the paper of the Eastern Railroad Co. went to protest on the 17th. At the last pay-day, the employees of the company found their pay had been reduced ten per cent.

It is entirely unnecessary to remind our readers that Mrs. H. M. Smith, who appears with the Boston Philharmonic Club at the Temple this evening, is a favorite singer. She has frequently delighted Portsmouth audiences while a member of the Barnabee company, and needs no introduction. The Philharmonic Club consists of the finest solo talent in America. Their instrumentation is perfect and their selections fine. They have achieved a great musical success in Canada, and in the Eastern, Middle and Western States. The Madison (Wisconsin) State Journal says that during a concert given by them in that city "from the close of the first movement of the opening quartette until the last chord sounded, the audience seemed enamored with each number, and testified their lively gratification by frequent and hearty applause and numerous encores, which, however, were for the most part simply acknowledged, though the audience was gratified by a response to some of their persistent calls."

The Christian church at Rye, having been remodelled and refurnished at a cost of about $3000, will be rededicated on Tuesday afternoon next: Rev. A. H. Morril, A. M., is expected to preach the dedicatory sermon.

We had fondly believed that our friend Barnabee was on the high road to fortune; but an item in a Boston paper dispels the illusion. He advertises for rent "A flat." If, therefore, he intends to sing hereafter in keys containing lessthan four flats, he will be confined to his B. E. D. This, of course, will prevent any further public appearance. Let the flat B., Henry.

Theodore Tilton will lecture in this city on the evening of January 12th, on "The Problem of Life."

The Medical and Surgical Reporter recommends as a hair tonic: X Borax, pow dered, two drachms; cologne water, eight ounces; bay-rum, six ounces; tincture of flies, one ounce; aromatic spirits of ammonia, one ounce. Mix and apply to the scalp every morning, by thoroughly rubbing in.

Messrs. T. E. O. Marvin, H. M. Clark, Isaiah Wilson, W. H. Sise and A. P. Stevens are the Board of Trade Centennial committee, and if you've anything to suggest, suggest it to them.

Harper's Magazine announces the completion of the fifty-first volume with the November number. The slight retrospect in which the publishers indulge, reminds the reader of the standard of literary excellence it has maintained during the past year, as well as of the wealth and variety of illustrations it has compassed. This is the most powerful argument to be put forth for a renewal of subscription, and convincing evidence that the volume bound is invaluable to every library. The series of papers entitled "The First Century of the Republic," begun in 1874, are to be continued in the ensuing volume, and apropos of the centennial concluded in 1876. It will be a complete exposition of progress in every department of our national life during the century now closing, and worthy of preservation by every American-born citizen and all others who feel an interest in the land of their adoption.

EUCHRE PLAYING.

[Dayton Democrat.]

A few evenings since, a party of young professional gentlemen of this city assembled in the cozy room of one of the number, and eventually drew up their chairs around the centre table to engage in a quiet, social game of euchre. Among others present were two rapidly rising young lawyers, who are familiarizing themselves with the intricacies of the profession, and by way of accomplishments are adding a thorough knowledge of the intellectual game of euchre. We will, for the sake of brevity—it's the only substantial reason we can give—call this pair of future legal celebrities S. and G. S. was dealing, and a happy thought occurred to him. He would show the boys a trick in the game that had not occurred to them. As soon as he had finished the deal he said, "I'll bet the cigars for the party that I've given myself a lone hand, and'll play it;" his intention being to take it up and play, even though he didn't make a point. He would win the bet at any rate by playing it alone. The other parties of course looked on with astonishmens, inasmuch as he had not looked at his cards, and began to suspect after his reckless offer that he had probably been paying more attention to Hoyle than to Blackstone. G. however, upon a moment's reflection, dropped on S.'s trick, and determined to beat him at his own game. So he said, "I don't think you have got a lone hand; at any rate, I don't see how you can tell without looking at your cards." To this S. quickly replied,, "I'll bet you the cigars that I'll play this hand alone; that's the kind of a euchre player I am." "All right," says G., "I'll take that bet: shake." They shook, and immediately G. said, "Mr. S., will you please take up that hand?" Having ordered him up, of course, according to the rules of the game, poor S. was prevented from playing alone, and so lost the cigars. He saw that he was caught in his own trap, and gracefully presented the Havanas.

—"If there is anything I do hate," peevishly soliloquized Mr. Bowles, as he strolled out to feed his chickens recently, "it's this eternal jabber about Adams and me. I don't deny that I think a good deal of him; he's just the man for the country in such times as these, but I don't want it to appear as if he couldn't rise from his seat without asking me to get off his coat-tails." Brooklyn Argus.

RATTAN WARE
MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen, viz, a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

An Impregnable Position.

Among American remedies, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters occupies what may not inaptly be termed an impregnable position. The foundations of its popularity are laid so deep in the public confidence, its excellence has been so frequently and conclusively demonstrated under the most trying circumstances, and it has been so long known to the public as a standard article, that neither the slurs occasionally cast upon proprietary medicines, nor the attempts of certain insalcoholic no-trum venders to create a prejudice against a preparation with a spirituous basis, can affect it. The public recognize in it a safe, agreeable and comprehensive alterative and an invaluable general tonic, a speedy remedy for malarious disorders, and their most reliable preventive. Its reputation is founded, as it were, upon a rock.

From the New York Tribune.

A WANT SUPPLIED.

The American mind is active. It has given us books of fiction for the sentimentalist, learned books for the scholar and professional student, but few books for the people. A book for the people must relate to a subject of universal interest. Such a subject is the physical man, and such a book "THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER," copy of which has been recently laid on our table The high professional attainments of its author, Dr. R. V. PIERCE, of Buffalo, N. Y.,—and the advantages derived by him from an extensive practice, would alone insure for his work a cordial reception. But these are not the merits for which it claims our attention. The Author is a man of the people. He sympathizes with them in all their afflictions, efforts, and attainments. He perceives their want—a knowledge of themselves—and believing that all truth should be made as universal as God's own sunlight, from his fund of learning and experience he has produced a work in which he gives them the benefits of his labors. In it he considers man in every phase of his existence, from the moment he emerges "from a rayless atom, too diminutive for the sight, until he gradually evolves to the maturity of those Conscious Powers, the exercise of which furnishes subjective evidence of our immortality." Proceeding upon the theory that every fact of mind has a physical antecedent, he has given an admirable treatise on Cerebral Physiology, and shown the bearings of the facts thus established upon individual and social welfare. The author believes with Spencer, that, "rigorous health and its accompanying high spirits are larger elements of happiness than any other things whatever," and accordingly has introduced an extensive discussion of the methods by which we may preserve the integrity of the system and oftimes prevent the onset of disease. Domestic Remedies—their preparation, uses, and effects—form a prominent feature of the work. The hygienic treatment, or nursing of the sick, is an important subject, and receives attention compensurate with its importance. Nearly all diseases "to which flesh is heir" are described, their symptoms and causes explained, and proper domestic treatment suggested. To reciprocate the many favors bestowed upon him by a generous public, the author offers his book at a price ($1.50) little exceeding the cost of publication. Our readers can obtain this practical and valuable work by addressing the author.

To Neutralize Offensiveness

In many forms we use disinfecting agents. Impure breath, caused by bad teeth, tobacco, spirits, or catarrh, is neutralized by SOZODONT. 'Tis a healthful beautifier, and a great luxury as a dentrifice. The repulsive breath is by its use rendered as fragrant as a rose, and coldness by friends or lovers will be no longer noticed.

Spaulding's Glue mends everything.

Coughs and Colds are often overlooked. A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs or some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effectual COUGH REMEDY.

A NOVEL METHOD OF PROPULSION.

The Cincinnati Gazette says: Three years ago Rudolph Schmidt, of this city, who is one of the Schmidt Brothers, owners of the large floating bath house, which is moored at the foot of Broadway every summer, had patented a principle for propelling vessels by means of a wheel that revolves in the air, instead of in water, and is moved by steam. A canal-boat was built, and yesterday a trial was made in the Miami Canal and was witnessed by hundreds of our citizens. The boat is named after Frank Lorentz, her builder, who is in partnership with Schmidt in the patent wheel. She is 40 feet long, ten feet wide, 30 inches deep, and draws 18 inches water. She has one vertical tubular boiler 6 feet long and 38 inches in diameter, with 54, 2 inch flues. Her engine is upright, 6 inches in diameter and 8 inches stroke. From the engine a shaft extends back through the rear end of the boat, to which a fan is fixed a foot above the water, and just high enough to clear the rudder. This fan is made of sheet-iron, is 6 feet 10 inches in diameter, and has three flanges, which give it very much the appearance of a propeller wheel, and it works in the same manner that the ordinary propeller wheel works in water.

A prize of $100,000 is offered by the State of New York to the inventor of a means of propelling a canal boat that will not wash the banks. This wheel is intended to compete for the prize. A trial trip was made yesterday afternoon from the Mohawk bridge to the first basin above Brighton, and back to Vine street. There were but few persons on board, among whom were United States Local Inspector H. H. Devereny and J. W. Fisher. The time made up stream was a little more than three miles an hour, and can be increased to four, and perhaps more. From the first basin above Brighton to the foot of Vine street, the running time was twenty minutes. With 115 pounds of steam the fan or air-wheel, made 360 to 400 revolutions per minute. The banks of the canal were not perceptibly washed, except as the jar of the boat displaced water. Another and larger boat will be built East, and placed in the Erie Canal, to test this air-ship.

—One gentleman observed to another: "I have a wife and six children in New York, and I never saw one of them." "Were you ever blind?" "O! no," replied the other. A further lapse of time, and then the interrogator resumed the subject. "Did I understand you to say that you had a wife and six children living in New York, and that you had never seen one of them?" "Yes, such is the fact." Here followed a still longer pause in the conversation, when the interrogator, fairly puzzled, said: "How can it be that you never saw one of them?" "Why," was the answer, "one of them was born after I left."

—The Cairo Bulletin nominates Morrissey for President. With Faro to rule over us we wouldn't be any worse off than the ancient Egyptians.—Brooklyn Argus.

—An exchange says that, amid the general reduction of wages in these times, there is one thing whose wages is not in the least reduced, and that is sin.

—It is said there are more lies told in the sentence, "I am glad to see you," than in any other six words in the English language.

"A COMPLETE PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE TIMES." "THE BEST, CHEAPEST, AND MOST SUCCESSFUL FAMILY PAPER IN THE UNION."

Harper's Weekly.
ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

Harper's Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are solidarity and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least a million persons, and its influence upon as an organ of opinion is simply tremendous. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Its articles are models of high-toned discussion, and its pictorial illustrations are often corroborative arguments of no small force.—N. Y. Examiner and Chronicle.

Its papers upon existent questions and its inimitable cartoons touch the heart of the sentiments of the country.—Pittsburgh Commercial.

Harper's Weekly stands at the head of illustrated journals in the United States in circulation, editorial ability, and pictorial illustration.—Indiet Repository, Cincinnati.

Harper's Bazar.
ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that is remarkable in a journal of its class, and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by their pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the mother by its useful patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is unfortunately of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the flexible enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and squibs, are all invigorating to the mind. —Chicago Evening Journal.

PULMOCINE

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir.—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did me good. I have taken only one box and can say anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and sides, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to keep them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than at 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

Rev N C Lothrop, Candia Village, N H; Rev A H Francis, New Bedford, Mass; Rev John Davis, East Tilton, N H; Rev L Draper, Seabrook, N H; Rev J H Gannett, Lebanon, N H; Rev H G Murch, Lamar, Barton Co, Mo; Deacon Charles Baldwin, Greenville, N H; Major John Lord, West Lyndeboro, Me; B F Stanton, Editor of Opinion, Bradford, Vt; A L Page, Gilmanton, N H; N F Danforth, Bristol, N H; Mrs J L Elliott, Laconia, N H; Mrs A M Wells, West Rumney, N H; H Herrick, Morrisville, Vt; Mrs John Elliot, Campton Village, N H; Thomas Hastie, Springvale, Me; S Ring, Enfield, N H; John H Blake, North Salem, N H; Wm Clark, Barre, Vt; Geo Oakland, Waterbury Centre, Vt; Hattie F Hall, East Wilton, N H; Geo Wilkins, Tivoli, N Y; Mrs. Thomas

EPISCOPACY VS. PURITANISM.

History of the South Parish.

NO. XI.

BY REV. JAMES DE NORMANDIE.

[Boston Transcript]

(Concluded.)

I have now to notice two persons, who, in a day when titles of nobility, of birth in the aristocratic families of old England, conferred a real eminence upon men, were conspicuous features in our early history and parish. William Pepperell became a communicant at the Old South Nov. 5, 1696; and his son, who was afterward created a baronet for the taking of Louisburg, was the last baptism recorded by Mr. Moodey, May 9, 1697, seventeen years before the North Church was thought of. I am indebted to a careful and valuable manuscipt life of Sir William Pepperell by the late Rev. Dr. Burroughs (which is far better than the printed life of the distinguished merchant by Parsons) for much of the following historical matter.

William Pepperell was born in 1647 in Cornwall, England, and became a settler at the Shoals in 1670, attracted by the commercial advantages of Appledore and the prominence of the fisheries. Here, about 1680, he married a daughter of Mr. John Bray, one of the leading islanders, who had for some time refused the offer of marriage from Pepperell, but, says Dr. Burroughs, "relented in proportion to the increase of his property." As his business increased, the Shoals offered too small a field for his enterprise, and he and his partner, a Mr. Gibbons, resolved to leave the weather-beaten islands and to resort to chance to determine their separate destinations.

The story runs that they each set up a long pole and left it to fall as Providence should direct. Pepperell's fell toward the southwest, Gibbons' toward the northeast. Following with obedience and enthusiasm the plan they had adopted, and the course pointed out by the fallen sticks, Pepperell established himself on the Kittery side of the mouth of the Piscataqua, and made large purchases of land there, while Gibbons obtained that tract on the Penobscot afterward known as the Waldo patent.

As early as the year 1681 we find the name of Pepperell and his father-in-law, Bray, on the town records of Kittery, then a province of Massachusetts, and here Pepperell spent the remainder of his days. His business enterprises were so successful that in 1712 there were but three persons in Kittery (then including Eliot and Berwick) whose property was estimated to be of more value than his. In this year Pepperell interested himself in organizing a church at Kittery, whose inhabitants had attended worship under serious inconveniences of distance, weather and tide at Strawberry Bank. He was chiefly instrumental in the settlement of Rev. Mr. Newmarch at Kittery, not far from his own mansion, in 1714, and was one of the first signers of the covenant. Up to this time William Pepperell, at the age of almost seventy, and his son, afterward Sir William, of the age of eighteen, had been constant worshippers at the Old South.

William Pepperell died in Kittery in 1734, leaving Sir William the principal heir, and with the care and responsibility of a large property. But even before this he had manifested remarkable enterprise and sagacity as a merchant, and his ships were found in all parts of Europe and the West Indies. One of the first things he did was to build the family tomb, still standing in that open field not far from the old family mansion, but without care, and rapidly being desolated by time and intruders. In 1722, at the age of twenty-six, he married Miss Hirst of Boston, to whom all tradition gives the highest praise for natural and acquired powers, for brilliant wit and sweetness of temper. Some verses of hers, written upon the death of an infant child and probably never printed but handed down by the memory of one who deemed them worthy, are certainly of merit equal to much that is printed.

Sir William had no opportunities for an education, except such as comes from a multiplicity of relations with men in all ranks of society; but Dr. Stevens, his pastor, who preached a sermon upon his character soon after his death, says, "Such were his abilities and virtues, so distinguished and admirable his social qualities, that he soon drew the notice and engaged the affections of all;" and "so elevated were his principles and disinterested his views, and so active was his benevolence, that his fellow citizens considered him as their patron and friend, and bore towards him the sentiment of filial veneration and affection."

To the various duties and great responsibilities of the greatest merchant of New England, Sir William had added a number of important civil offices; but it was reserved for his military success to give him his title of nobility. The siege and capture of Louisburg was one of the great warlike achievements in our early history, and the command and success of the whole enterprise belonged to Sir William. Upon his return he was received at Portsmouth, entertained, and escorted to his boat, as it departed from our shore to his mansion in Kittery with an outburst of enthusiasm from the inhabitants, and an ovation both civil and military, even greater than were paid to Washington.

As in our own late war, there were in this adventure some rivalries and jealousies as to whom belonged the credit of the expedition, and Colonel William Vaughan (a grandson of Major William Vaughan, who came to Portsmouth about 1650) is said to have first prepared a plan of the capture, and proposed it to the Government; and Governor Wentworth, as well as others, was disappointed at not being given the charge of the enterprise. But all eyes turned to Colonel Pepperell, as of well-known and eminent moral worth, of acknowledged military skill, of tried statesmanship, of elevated rank, in the confidence of the community, and the best fitted to command the expedition.

If the success of an engagement might be always predicted from the character of its principal supporters, we might have foretold the capture of Louisburg, for the number of persons prominent in Portsmouth under the command of Pepperell was certainly large. While Pepperell had the matter under consideration, Whitefield, the celebrated Episcopal and itinerant clergyman, and founder of the Calvinistic Methodists, made a visit to Maine, and Pepperell became well acquainted with him, and asked Whitefield's advice. "Your scheme," said the great preacher, "I think not very full of encouragement. The eyes of all will be upon you, and should you not meet with success, the widows and orphans will utter their complaints and reflections; and if it be otherwise, numbers will look upon you with envy, and endeavor to eclipse your glory. You ought, therefore, in my judgment, to go with a single eye, and then you will receive strength proportioned to your necessities." Whitefield furnished the motto for the flag of the expedition, "Nil desperandum Christo duce"—despair of nothing while under the leadership of Christ.

New Hampshire furnished 500 men—one-eight of the whole force. Among these were Rev. Mr. Langdon (one of the grammar-school teachers and then pastor of the North Church) as chaplain, Jacob Sheafe, son of of Lampson of Great Island, as commissary. There was Nathaniel Messerve, a lieutenant colonel; there was Samuel Hall, with the rank of major; there was John Storer, grandfather of General Storer of this town; there was Rev. Ammi R. Cutter of the Massachusetts Regiment, whose eldest son was Dr. Ammi R. Cutter of Portsmouth; and there was Rev. Samuel Moody of York, son of our Mr. Moodey, remarkable for his eccentricities, and private chaplain of Sir William.

The expedition was completely successful, and Pepperell was rewarded with an English knighthood. One by one he was compelled to give up his duties and enterprises, and died in his mansion at Kittery on the 6th of July, 1759.

There remains for us to notice briefly still another important character, whose life has been so carefully written by Mr. C. W. Tuttle of Boston, that beyond his researches no one need desire to go. In his sketches of this prominent person now being printed in the Historical and Genealogical Register, may be found authority for much of the following: Among the early settlers of our province more persons perhaps came from Devon and Cornwall than from all other counties in England; and of all the noble families in the west of England, few, if any surpass in antiquity and splendor of descent the family of Champernowne, being connected with the Plantagenets, Sir Humphrey Gilbert and Sir Walter Raleigh, Captain Francis Champernowne, one of that family, came to New England in 1636. Before that some of his father's ships had traded on our coasts. One of them may have had the forgotten distinction of bringing hither the first settlers in 1623, and in them Champernowne may have come over at an earlier date, and become interested in our settlement. In 1636 Sir Ferdinando Gorges granted to Champernowne's father two tracts of land bordering on the eastern shore of the Piscataqua, and at the mouth. One embraced what has for the last hundred years and more been known as the Gerrish and the Cutts Islands; and the stream now known as Chauncey's Creek for a long time bore the name of Champernowne. To this grant came Captain Francis Champernowne in 1636, at the age of twenty-two. About 1640, at the time of the granting of the glebe land, Champernowne bought four hundred acres in Greenland, where he built a house and lived for twenty years. Afterward he added 300 acres more, including the farm of Colonel Peirce, and seem to have lived in a baronial style. At a later date he preferred his residence on Cutts Island, and went there to live. He was a councillor in the Government of Gorges, and for a few years, with his associates, had the sole authority in Maine, and opposed strenuously the usurpation of the Massachusetts Bay. He was councillor to Cranfield, to Dudley and to Andros. Strange to say, when some examinations were made a few years since, about this almost forgotten character, traditions were brought to light, of the descent from royalty of one Champernowne who used to live there, and in Kittery of one who was "the son of a nobleman." He was a thorough royalist and Churchman, and about ten years before his death married the widow of Robert Cutts of Kittery.

He lived a retired and dignified life; was reserved in disposition, and took little interest in matters which did not concern him; but without seeking for place or power, was in that day prominent on account of his high birth, and altogether respected. He was doubtless one of the most active supporters of Episcopacy, and from his residence at Greenland, a constant worshipper at the First Chapel, and therefore, unless too strict a Churchman to take any interest in the services of Puritanism, at the Old South for thirty years. He died on Cutts Island in 1687, and a small cairn marks the place of the burial. I am inclined to think he was one who carried out a plan held by many of the leading old families of England, and especially of second or later sons, who would not inherit the family estates, to establish themselves in the New World, and for religious and political reasons, they turned naturally to the settlement of the Piscataqua.

News and Notes.

The great to-do made by his friends over the recent "mysterious disappearance of the since discovered Mr. Griswold, of New York, reminds the World of the old story of the Irish gentleman who, finding himself thirsty after he had got into bed at his hotel, and seeing no bell-pull within reach, opened the case of duelling pistols which he always carried about him, and discharged them one after the other in the air. A terrible hubbub followed in the house. Night-capped heads were popped out of every door, women shrieked, half-dressed waiters tumbled up and down stairs. The landlord himself burst in the door of the chamber in which the awful explosion had taken place. There sat the author of all the uproar, calm and smiling in his bed, and as the door flew in and the terrified host followed it, he calmly exclaimed, "A hot whisky punch, if you please, and not too much sugar in it!"

A Washington special to the Herald says the reply of the Spanish Government proves to be a dignified response to the demands which our government made in the matter of American interests in Cuba, and will dissipate all fears of trouble between Spain and the United States. The tone of the reply is firm but very conciliatory. The justice of our demand is not ignored. The confusion of affairs in Cuba obstructs the exercise of an impartial and prompt administration of the requirements of the treaty of 1795. Spain defends her right to maintain courts martial in Cuba, and in support of her position on this question cites the fact that the United States during and for a long time subsequent to the late war of secession, and France for two years succeeding the triumph of the republic over the commune, and even then, under the mild reign of Thiers, made use of similar military or extraordinary tribunals to deal out justice to public and civil enemies. In the case of France these tribunals sentenced to be shot, or to be transported to Cayenee, over 2000 persons and yet these tribunals exercised their functions after the close of the war and the advent of complete peace. Therefore Spain in the midst of her war with Cuba maintains the right of using courts martial to try offenders against her laws, but readily makes the concession that American citizens can have their advocates or attorneys and produce witnesses in their own behalf, conformably to the provisions of article seven of the treaty 1795, and according to the regular course of proceedings in such cases, and gives guarantees of such a mode of defence. Of course, in the case of Spanish subjects no exception will be made which will allow them the enjoyment of this advantage in defending themselves against prosecution by the Spanish authorities for their offences. In these cases the advocates will be designated by the chief military authorities: that is, the captain-general will appoint them. The above is a full synopsis of the answer of the Spanish government in reply to Minister Cushing, and has been deemed satisfactory enough to warrant a countermanding of orders originally given to put our navy in preparation for such a contiugency as a misunderstanding between the two governments.

The Coming Target Shoot.

[Rev. Mr Murray, in Golden Rule.]

We are profoundly anxious in respect to the safety of the inhabitants of South Farmington—all the more because they do not realize the danger hanging over them. We have scarcely been able to sleep since we read in a daily paper that the "militia rifle match" is to be held there Nov. 16, and that each team is to "use the arm with which its regiment or battalion is supplied." Now, a "military rifle" is a fearful implement. It is superior to human control. It is inherently independent as to the range and direction of its projectile. It will shoot where it has a mind to, in spite of all one can do. It will hit everything but the target. It will sweep a larger horizon than a Gatlin gun. It shoots as a cross-eyed man looks, the Lord only knows where. The more you practice with it, the more you are amazed at its eccentricities. You aim at a barn, and you hit a house. You shoot at a cat sitting on a well-curb, and you kill a sheep in the next lot. You put up your target in one town, and a sheriff waits upon you the next morning to inform you that you have killed several of the principal citizens who lived in the next, beside women and children. We attended a company shoot once down in Connecticut, where the competitors were "to use the arm of their respective regiments and battalions." We went in good faith, without making our will; we had it drawn up the next day—wife quietly suggested it. Perhaps you would like to know what happened. Well, the captain of the firing squad—composed of the best marksmen—did us the honor to nominate us to the "marker's" position. We accepted with pleasure, and took position—fifty feet to the left of the line of targets. The first shot that came caused us to retire fifty feet farther. The next brought us back thirty feet. The third lifted us over an adjoining stone wall, and by the time the tenth bullet came we started for the road. We intended to retire in good order, but we had not got ten rods before we knew that dignity was out of place. The twentieth shot decided the matter, and we laid down to it in good earnest, and put in our "best licks." We were agile in those days, and the way we "peeled it" across that potato patch would have opened the eyes of any deacon on earth. We took the stone fence at a rate of speed which made our coat stand out straight as a string from the armpits, and tore down the road toward the depot with a stride that lengthened an inch at every explosion behind us. For these "military rifles" shoot anywhere and all ways, as we have said; and you are no safer behind than you are in front of them. The engineer of the lightning express saw us coming, and supposing that some dreadful danger was ahead, slowed up, and the rapidity with which we went through one of those car doors and got into the seat behind the stove made everybody look around. We didn't feel really safe until we got beyond Stamford. If we lived in South Farmington, we should go out of town visiting on the 16th, to Westerly, R. I., say, or St. Albans, Vt., or some such place.

The Need of Acids.

When much fat pork is eaten there will always be a demand for pickles or vinegar, says the report of the Massachusetts Board of Health. The demand for acid is a genuine call of the system, but there is no especial call for the strong acids, such as raw lemons and pickles, if one has from day to day the proper supply of moderately sour fruit. Half of the doctors would find their occupation gone if apples were freely used as an article of food. Fruit has never done us the good it might have done, because it has been eaten at improper hours, between meals, or in the evening. It has actually been turned into a foe to good digestion by the process of pickling and preserving. The old-fashioned "pound for pound" preserves are too sweet to serve the purpose of acid fruit, and too rich to have the nourishing effect of juicy, sweet fruit. They are simply sweetmeats, to be eaten with caution. Canned fruit is excellent, but fresh fruit is best, whenever it can be obtained. The good effect of fresh fruit is often spoiled by the excess of sugar used with it. When there is a craving for sour food, for pickles or for lemons, it is generally a strong indication that the system has a real need of acids, and lemons or vinegar are sometimes the best medicine to cure billousness and restore a failing appetite. A year ago I saw a child pass through one of these poor spells. He lost his appetite, and could not bear the sight or smell of food until he caught sight of a dish of dried apple sauce, and then he was possessed with a desire for some of the juice. This seemed to refresh him, and he ate, for his next meal, bread soaked in the juice of stewed dried apples. After that canned tomatoes, cooked with bread, helped forward the cure. Before this ill turn he had, for a few weeks, lived almost entirely without fruit, contrary to his usual habit. It is a common mistake to use fruit at the table only in the form of sauce at the evening meal, or encased in rich crusts as a pie for dinner. In the latter case, the ill effect of the dainty piecrust is often greater than the good effect of the fruit inside the pie. As for the fruit sauce on the tea table, it is better than a heavy supper of meat, but there is some sense in the old saying that "Fruit is golden in the morning, silver at noon and lead at night." Perhaps any kind of fruit or vegetable may be used to excess, or in too large a proportion as compared with the rest of the diet. Certainly acids should be used in moderation, especially the strong kinds. Because the juice of a lemon may be an excellent cure for biliousness or flatulence or other disease, it by no means follows that school girls can thrive upon their daily use. In former days when pale and slender maidens were in fashion, it was not very uncommon for silly girls to try to reduce their weight and ruddy hue by frequent sips of vinegar, and many a feeble woman and many an early death has been the result of such tampering. A variety of vegetables and fruit, well cooked, and eaten as appetite calls for them, will satisfy the natural demand for both sour and sweet food.

Oyster-Fishing.

On the southern coast of Connecticut is a populous neighborhood of the oyster family, being within a stone's throw of vast cities which they have built under the sea.

Miles of streets and blocks of white stone or shell houses, they occupy, under the salt water; and the fact that they are not themselves a very gossiping set, makes it the reason why they should not be gossiped about.

Oyster fishermen go out in their little boats, with all the old oyster-shells they can carry, and, as they row along, they scatter them so that they may fall and make a bed under the water. After a time the eggs or spawn of many a mother oyster who lies hidden away among the rocks and the seaweed along the shore, come floating down through the water, seeking for a home. They take very naturally to these old oystershells, and there they cling, beginning forthwith to build their own shell houses, each courageous little oyster making a separate home for himself, although five or six may be near neighbors, just around the corner of the same old homestead shell.

Twice every day the tide comes and goes, washing a thousand tiny particles of food around the stony houses of these oysters, who open their doors, take what they can get, and then go back to their dull little house, keeping inside all the time, waiting to be three years old; for until that time an oyster is not considered large enough to eat.

If any grain of sand, or other unexpected visitor, intrudes within the shell, the brave little oyster makes the best of his unwelcome guest, overlooks his faults, and covers up his sharp points by clothing him with some gentle secretions from his own patient body. In the South America pearl oyster, this at last results in that lovely and translucent thing we call a pearl. In the tropics, oysters sometimes fasten themselves to bushes or low trees, but their shells contain sufficient water to nourish them until the tide returns.

When the New England oysterman—who has made his beds some four or five years back, and marked them out by long poles which stand up in the water—wants to gather his crop for market, or have a nice little feast at home, out he goes in that frail little boat, which has served him many a good term, carrying a pair of huge rakes with long wooden handles fastened together in the middle like a pair of scissors. When he reaches the bed, he stands up in the boat, and with these long prongs feels about under the water until he discovers a cluster of oysters, which he takes up with a ruthless hand and pours into the boat, stops a moment to throw out the sea-weed and stones, and then makes another plunge.

There are other ways of gathering oysters; early in the morning when the tide is low, may be seen the fishermen wading up to their waists in the water, pawing about with short rakes, and occasionally pulling up a cluster of oysters, which they can feel with their feet.

Not far from the oysters are their cousins—the clams,—who content themselves with living farther up the beach, buried about a foot in the mud, so that at low tide, when the ground is laid bare, they go out and dig them with a shovel, as though they were a field of potatoes.

Beside these, far out in the water, scrabbling about in an aimless way, live those more distant relatives—the lobsters. For these, the fishermen put down deep wooden baskets, which they call lobster-pots. Any unfortunate victim who gets into this snare can never find his way out again, struggle as he may; and so, when the owner gets out in his boat, he often finds his lobster-pots well-filled.

It is a very simple and hard life these poor fishermen lead; forever in the water, and under the water—many times out for a day and a night, toiling under the fiercest suns and tossed on the wildest billows, which threaten each moment to swallow them up forever, their poor wives the meanwhile looking out into the darkness, only praying that the angry waves and the fierce winds may spare their lives,—never thinking to murmur that—as in the Bible story of old—they have "toiled all night and taken nothing."

—"Who is this Herr Zegovina?" said a young lady at a mixed party. Is he a new tenor who has come out with Titiens, or is he in the Salvini line?" "Why, how absurdly you do talk, Phœbe," replied another young lady; "just as if any one didn't know that it was a new sort of dress. I saw the pattern in the Bazar, and it's just lovely. It's shirred, and gored, and cut bias, and folded on itself, and trimmed with knife-plaiting of the same material." Here she was interrupted by a corroborative young man who remarked that she was just talking. "Herr Zegovina," said this gentleman, "is French for pull-back, you know," Another young man, who had had the advantage of foreign travel, set them all right with the loftiness of conscious superiority. "The Herzegovina," he claimed, "is the national dance of the Hungarian peasantry, like the cachuca, or the bolero, or the fandango, or the Ranz des Vaches, or the balalaika, you know. Many a time have I seen them bounding in its airy measures, while the heavy minarets and mimosas waved their tops in—" "I beg your pardon," observed another, innocent who had been abroad; "I think you have confounded it with the Hogoverizina—a sort of polka which I saw danced by the Hungarians, and also by the Dalmatians and Dardanelles. Herzegovina is a light Albanian wine, a good deal like Rudesheimer." "Ah, you are right," admitted the first traveller; "the similarity of sound deceived me." The explanation did not, after all, prove satisfactory, and the young ladies who thirsted after knowledge made still further inquiries. "Damfino," responded a truthful young man; "I thought from the fuss the papers were making about it it was a new sort of game like bunko." Finally an appeal was made to the experienced old gentleman who was the host of the evening, who was supposed to be well posted on every subject. "Run away, children," said the good and wise old man, as he beamed blandly on his two fair daughters; "run away and don't bother your head about the currency question."

E. G. PIERCE, Jr., P. M.

P. & D. Railroad.

Editor Chronicle: In my communication published in the CHRONICLE of the 3d inst., I omitted to state what I should, that it was in reply to an article in Foster's Democrat headed "Eastern Railroad — Frank Jones and John W. Sanborn." Having seen so many articles in various journals during the last few years laudatory of the latter personage, I was led to suppose that this might be the initiation of a plan to bring him forward as a candidate for Governor of the State of New Hampshire. I wish to state that I intended to say in my communication that Mr. Wooldredge had a salary of $20,000; as published it read $12,000.

Mr. Foster says he (Sanborn) is one of Jones' chief-lieutenants. I thank him for the suggestion. I dislike calling names, Let us style him Lieut., and of course Jones will then be Capt. Foster says "Jones already holds a high and most honorable position in the gift of the people." I am aware of that, and I know too that at the convention where Jones was nominated, it was publicly declared that "the party must select the cow that would give the most milk." Will any friend inform us how much milk or beer it cost to carry the election. Now I have a very decided repugnance to the carrying of elections in this way. And I think the Eastern Railroad officials, however much they may desire it, are not now in the way of having funds to spare for such a purpose. Mr. Foster corrects me by saying that Mr. Jones is not and never was President of the Trust and Guarantee Company. I had understood that he was, and have no doubt now that he is and has been the general manager of that institution. Mr. Foster pays a high tribute to the character of the trustees of the Trust and Guarantee Company. In this I agree with him. But we all know that in these matters, as a general thing, the trustees know but little about how the institution is managed. Some one one is entrusted with the management of the business and is very likely to put its funds like its prototype, "where it will do the most good." Mr. Foster says he has authority for saying that the statement of mine that the Eastern Road is paying interest to the Wolfeborough Railroad on $95,000 is not true and that the interest with that road is upon a sum less than $50,000.

Now I based my statement upon this statement of the investigating committee as published and signed by Mr. Wooldredge, the President of the Eastern Road, It was

Wolfeborough R. R.,	$95,000;	Interest, $1,700
Portsmouth & Dover R. R.,	$700,000;	" $42,000

Mr. Foster don't like my grammar. I would gratify him with a "syntax" to his mind if I could, but I have not been subject to that moral and physical discipline that he has and I trust he will bear with me when I propose to propound such questions of a public nature as I hope he may be able to answer.

And I will here state that the P. & D. Road has had its capital stock increased from $700,000 to $800,000 by act of the Legislature. I think I once saw a statement of the engineer which went to show that $825,000 had been expended in the construction of the Road. Now this is just $75,000 per mile,—and the interest on the whole sum would be $49,500, which would have to be paid annually by the Eastern Road, beside the expense of repairs. The interest per day of 312 days in the year would be $158. Now it costs generally about 60 per cent. of the receipts for running expenses. Now the receipts on freight are usually less than on passengers, but we will be liberal here and allow that the freight bills will pay running expenses and repairs. Now then we have $158 per day to be paid by passengers. There are eight trains run per day, which would be $19.75 or 49 passengers at 40 cents for each train or 432 passengers daily over the road, or the average of that for every working day in the year.

I do not believe the Road, with all the extravagance that has been expended upon it, has absorbed all this; I believe there is a leak somewhere.

And permit me here to remark that in my opinion the whole community hereabouts should and do feel under lasting obligations to the officers of the Eastern Road for the manner and extent to which it has extended its branches into various parts of the country. To George M. Brown and Benjamin T. Reed and their associates is due a meed of gratitude for most of our railroad facilities. But it is evident from the present aspect of the affairs of the Company that, (not to use a harsher term) somebody has blundered. Now in the important matter of railroad affairs let us eschew politics altogether. Let us enquire what has been done, how it has been done, and where, if anywhere has it been done. Has the money been squandered or improperly applied? And when we have arrived at the facts we shall have a fund of information which may be of use to everybody who is in any way connected with railroad affairs.

JUNIUS.

Snaps.

The following postal card communication passed through our city, Thursday, on its way to Dover: "Just home from Lyceum. All quite well. Cold Snap. I believe that is the way to speak of it, meaning, I presume, that it is snappishly cold, or that it has snapped up cold; either way suits me so that it is not the second person singular number who snaps at me.

There are several kinds of snapps, two, quite common, viz. namely, to wit, ginger snapps and schiedam snaps. Boys like the first named and men the last. If you eat many ginger snaps they go to the stomach and make you sick; if you drink too much schiedam it goes to your head and stomach both and makes you dam sicker. Moral, never be snappish. Home letters received. Glad you are all in such good health. Wish some of you could come down to Thanksgiving. Bring some turkeys and chickens and fixings and come right along."

Skating.

The little spurt of cold weather gave a great excitement to the lovers of skating, and on Thusday afternoon the pond was enlivened by a merry throng trying the rink for the first time. The mild weather of Friday, however, prevented the enjoyment of the smooth ice which the flooding of Thursday night had prepared for. But "it is an ill wind that blows no one any good,"—and the workmen upon the Skater's Rest were enabled to work better as the weather became milder. Everything will be completed by Thanksgiving Day, if not sooner. There is, of course, no admission to any but ticket holders and a man properly authorized will arrest all intruders. One can in this climate depend upon ninety days of freezing weather, thus giving a day's skating for a fraction more than two cents, with the comfort of a warm resting place and a pond absolutely safe. For the benefit of those who wish to know the dimensions of the pond, we will mention that it is 350 feet in circumference, just 350 feet larger than any skating park ever built in Portsmouth.

The improvement in skates has been proportionate to the prevalence of the sport of skating, and now they are very cheap and wonderfully convenient. Self-adjusting club-skates are offered by Wilson & Magraw for $1.50 per pair. ***

Jottings.

It is at last a settled fact that Portsmouth will not support an hourly carriage.

Services at St. John's Church to-morrow by Rev. B. B. Killikelly of Boston.

Secure your cellars from the frosts and skewer your turkeys for the oven.

Dr. A. M. Higgins of New Bedford will preach Sunday in the Advent Chapel on Hanover street.

There is a splendid opportunity for a skating rink at the gravel pit near the South Cemetery.

There are about fifteen hundred regular church attendants in this city, out of a population of ten thousand or more.

Rev. Carlos Martyn is to speak on Sunday afternoon in the North Church, on "What it costs to run a Church." Special attention will be given this season to warming the house.

It is stated by those who should know that there is much more sickness than is usual at this season of the year. Typhoid fever is quite prevalent. Look well to your drains and other repositories of waste matter.

The Wolfe Tone Club is making extra preparations for its fifth annual ball on Wednesday night, Nov. 24. Congress Hall will be opened for the first time since being refitted, and its improved appearance will greatly please every one who has an eye to beauty and cleanliness.

It might be a pious idea to place a tallow candle or calcium light at the Nor'west corner of the custom house to prevent accidents while the big rocks and iron posts thereabouts are lying around loose. Perhaps some person may break a limb creeping about there in the dark, o' nights, you know.

The frisky fowl now fatteneth in the pen, and calmly waits the appetites of men. Or in other words,—descending from the sublime heights of poetry down into the mire of prose—there is a general incarceration of the feathered bipeds preparatory to the annual pre-Thanksgiving slaughter. We would rather not be a chicken. It makes us feel chicken-hearted to think of it.

Weekly gatherings at the Bow Mission have so increased that the friends of the mission have accepted the invitation to hold service in Rechabite Hall, over Kimball's drug store. Those that have stayed away for want of room, can be accommodated in the large hall. We take this opportunity of inviting the co-operation of the churches in this glorious work. We need your help. "The ninety and nine," "Hold the fort," "The armor bearer," and several other popular pieces will be sung at the mission-Laboring men are cordially invited. Subject Sabbath evening, "The Jailor's Inquiry." Services to commence at 7 P. M.

WM. J. LOYNE PASTOR.

A Danbury Family Scene.

A family of some pretensions, living on Nelson street, had a party of five to tea, Thursday evening. The table was set out in fine style, as the company were from the city, and it was absolutely necessary to show them that folks may live in a village like Danbury, and yet understand the requirements of good society. When they were all at the table, and the lady was preparing to dish up the tea, her little son, whose face shour like the knees of a country clergyman's pants, pulled her secretly by the dress. But she was too busy to notice him. He pulled her again, but received no response, he whispered:

"Ma, ma!"

"What is it?"

"Ain't this one of Mrs. Perry's knives?" holding up the article in his hand and looking, as he properly should, very much gratified by such an evidence of his discernment.

She made no reply in words, but she gave him a look that was calculated to annihilate him.

The tea was dished out, and the party were buttering their biscuit, when the youth suddenly whispered again, looking at his plate with a pleased expression, "Why, ma, my plate is different from the others."

"Thomas," she ejaculated, under her breath.

"Why, it is ma," persisted Thomas. "Now, just see here. "This plate has—"

"Thomas!" again ejaculated his mother with crimsoned face, while his father assumed a frown nearly an inch thick, "if you don't let your victuals stop your mouth, I'll send you away from the table!"

This quieted Thomas at once. He was not a very particular boy, and he concluded that the difference in the plates was not of such moment as to admit of tedious argument at this time.

Several minutes passed without any further interruption. The young man industriously attended to his food, but at the same time kept a close eye on what was going on around him. He was lifting up his cup for a sip, when his glance unfortunately fell upon the saucer. It was but a glance, but with the keenness of a young eye he saw that the two were not originally designed for each other.

"Why, ma, he eagerly whispered, this cup don't belong to—"

Then he suddenly stopped. The expression of his mother's face actually rendered him speechless, and for a moment he applied himself to his meal in depressed silence; but he was young and of an elastic temper, and he soon recovered his beaming expression. A little later he observed a lady opposite putting a spoonful of preserved grapes in her mouth. Then he twitched his mother's dress and said again:

"Ma!"

The unhappy woman shivered at the sound, but his remark this time appeared to be on an entirely different subject, as he asked:

"Aint Miss Walker a funny woman?"

"Funny?" said his mother with a sigh of relief. And then turning to the company with the explanation, "Mrs. Walker is an old lady who lives across the way," she smiled on her hopeful son and asked, "What makes you think she is funny?"

"Why, you know—you know," began Thomas in that rapid, moist way which as only son assumes when he is imparting information before company, in response to a cordial invitation, "when I went over there this afternoon to get the spoons, she said she hoped the company wouldn't bite 'em, as it would deat—"

"Thomas!" shrieked the unhappy mother, as soon as she could break in.

"Young man," gasped the father, "leave this table at once!"

And Thomas left at once. His father subsequently followed him, and the two met in a back room, and had both been flying express trains coming together, there could have scarcely been more noise.

—A woman cured her husband of staying out late at night by going to the door when he came home and whispering through the key-hole: "Is that you, Willie?" Her husband's name is John, and he stays at home every night now, and sleeps with one eye open and a revolver under his pillow.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have been unable to work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took to my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I have took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. H. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and tries to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefitted. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large-sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its Victoria Woodhull's Story.

[Cinn. Times.]

A Times' reporter, while grubbing away at a soul-stirring account of how Mrs. Rafferty fell down the area steps at her residence in the East End (east end of Sixth street) and broke her leg, and while desperately endeavoring to express the exact location of the fracture in language that would not offend the most fastidious, was interrupted by an office boy shoving a note under his nose which smelt of rose geranium, (the note, not the nose,) and on being opened was found to contain information that Mrs. Woodhull, at the Grand Hotel "wanted to see him." Our reporter not being that kind of a man who ever keeps a woman waiting, left Mrs. Rafferty's leg at the exact point he had then reached, borrowed a nickel for car fare, and and embarked for the Grand Hotel. He arrived at our palatial hotel, sent up his card, and was immediately requested to "walk up." He walked up, and rapped at the door of 126, and was admitted by pretty little Miss Zulu Woodhull, who entertained him with pictures and pleasant girlish conversation until her mother entered shortly after, followed by Miss Tennie Claflin and Mrs. Claflin, the mother of the two women whose names are now so familiar to the world.

The conversation became general—that is, it became general among the women, for the reporter couldn't push in a word edge-wise, and being conversationally somewhat ambitious, he was severely "sat down upon" several times before he discovered that discretion was the better part of valor and concluded that he had better sit still and suck his thumb and listen in silence. After he had decided upon this course he found that he got along in a much more smooth and satisfactory manner.

Mrs. Woodhull's first topic of conversation was a small grievance, which betrayed the little vanity of woman, without which the dear creatures would not be women at all.

Some reporter that morning had said that she had appeared in her lecture dressed "in a plain brown dress and sack," and that she wore a "a grayish kind of lace" around her neck.

"Why," said she, "that was a new dress made by Worth for me, and just imported from Paris, and cost ever so many dollars; and that was old lace, yellow with age, and worth its weight in gold. Dear me, to think my splendid Worth dress should be a 'plain brown dress and sack'—sack, indeed!—and my rare, old lace 'a grayish kind of lace!'"

"You seemed to be satisfied with the article as a whole?" jerked out the reporter, desperately kicking a remark into a conversational interstice, as it were.

"Oh yes, it's splendid, and the Cincinnati press are all treating me so well, and I am very thankful."

At about this stage of the proceedings, Mrs. Claflin, Tennie and little Miss Zulu, dropped out of the room, one after another, and left Mrs. Woodhull and the reporter alone together. She ensconsed herself in a crimson-colored rocker on one side of the little marble-topped centre table, with her elbows on the table; he got himself into an arm-chair on the other side, and the trouble began.

It lasted about two hours; and all that time the reporter sat and listened to the strange, wonderful, impassioned eloquence of this extraordinary woman. Talk about a woman's tongue being hung in the middle and running at both ends! Why, Victoria Woodcull's tongue works in a dozen jointed sections, and at each and every hinge pours out a steady and uninterrupted stream of brilliant aphorisms, startling statements, witty points, womanly, masculine and nondescript remarks, glittering generalities, gilt-edged chunks of wisdom, neat illustrations, pretty smiles, humor, sentiment and sarcasm and words to no end.

Said she, "I have sent for you because I want to say some things I have not said before, and because I want a hearing in the Times. The Weekly is a grand old paper. I see it everywhere, hear of it everywhere, and it is read by a class of people, the honest and thinking masses, that can be reached through hardly any other medium. The Times is just and generous, and will not refuse to listen to a woman misrepresented and persecuted."

"The columns of the Times are free to every such applicant," said the reporter, "go on."

"I do not wish to talk of my doctrines and theories, to-day. The Enquirer has represented me very kindly and fairly in that respect; but I wish to speak of myself, personally, and when I am through with that I will talk of anything else you wish.

"Five years ago I and my noble sister Tennie first started out in that public career which has been so full of ups and downs, hopes and disappointments, strange vicissitudes, terrible experiences, and dreadful agonies, such as only women who have suffered as sister and I have done, can ever appreciate. We rode to the summit of prosperity and pleasure; we are plunged into the depths of degradation and despair. To-day we were rich and happy, surrounded by friends and flatterers, and seeing our beautiful parlors at our residences on Murray Hill thronged nightly with the elite of the literati and the advanced thinkers of the age. Only a little time, and penniless, and destitute, and forsaken, we are dragged through a howling mob and locked behind the bars of a prison cell. And all because we had opinions and dared express them. Seven times for this offence we have been incarcerated in the common jails of New York, and every cent of our hard-earned fortunes swept away. Ninety thousand dollars the first trial cost us. Everything was swept away from us by the rich and powerful misdoers, who felt they were walking over a volcano, and that only our complete destruction could save an explosion that would ruin them all. It was two weak women, who knew too much and thought too much, against every man and woman whose feet had ever tripped, and the odds were too much. Of all we had at the zenith of our prosperity, nothing was left me but my blessed mother, my sister, and my darling child. Only these and my determination in my mad despair to fight the whole world till I can set myself right before it, and make it understand me. Every night I pray God, oh, so fervently, to let me live till I can do so; only to let me live till I can make the world know that Victoria Woodhull, whose name has been made synonymous with everything bad and vile, is a woman, with a woman's heart and feeling; that she is a daughter with a daughter's reverential worship; that she is a sister, with a sister's abiding affection; that she is a mother with a mother's infinite love and tenderness; that she means virtue, not vice; that she means purity, not impurity; that she means good and not evil; that she means honor and chastity and manly devotion, and womanly faithfulness, and everything to make the world stronger and purer and better. In my hot ardor and impatience I make mistakes and overreach myself, and bring misfortune upon my own cause, but I am the one that suffers from it. I see where I should have gone forward, and have fallen back; where I should have gained, and have really lost. "I look back with a shudder at the terrible suffering I have endured at the hands of the press. Every scurrilous article upon sister and me was crueler than death to me. Once after reading a peculiarly malignant one I fell fainting to the floor, and for hours lay like a dead person, and when I did wake prayed God that I might die. Women who read the vulgar attacks upon sister and me, and think: 'Well, they are used to it and it can't disturb such notorious persons,' should remember we are women, hurt by what hurts other women; pleased with what pleases other women; with women's hopes, and fears, and vanities, and weaknesses.

"But, thank God, the better day seems to be coming for me. Once Mr. Beecher said to me: 'Victoria, out of my gloomy forebodings I tell you this: The day is coming when you would not change the name and place of Victoria Woodhull for that of Henry Ward Beecher.' And that day has come for me, and soon the whole world will agree with me in the assertion.

"I am trying to live honest and purely, so that the sunlight of Heaven may shine in upon my life, and all men and women see and be not ashamed.

"I never have said or written a word that would make the world worse, or encourage vice or impurity."

"I have seen many such articles in your newspaper," said the reporter.

"Ah, yes, there is where I have been made to suffer. The columns of the paper were free to all advanced thinkers, and I have been made responsible for all, though only the editorials were mine. Sister and I have been through the valley of the shadow of despair together, and I believe the sunshine is again about to fall upon our faces.

"I am talking to you from the depth of a soul torn and trampled upon, but full of a great joy at last; talking to you as I have never talked before; and I ask the privilege granted every applicant of a hearing in the Times."

"Mrs. Woodhull, I would like to have you tell me your opinion of the result of this new movement in the Beecher scandal," said the reporter later in the conversation.

"It must all come to the surface sooner or later," was the reply, "All the rottenness of that cess pool, all the moral vileness and badness of Brooklyn. There will be statements made and testimony given entirely new and startling. Money has been poured out like water to hide the truth by parties who have never yet been heard from in connection with the scandal, but to whom the truth exposed were ruin, but all the opposing and jarring interests will eventually lay it all open and the world will gaze upon it in horror."

"You are satisfied of Mrs. Tilton's infidelity?"

"Satisfied; I know it as well as I know I am alive."

"When did you first know it?"

"Almost the first time I ever met Theodore, he poured the whole story into my ears. I told him there were two courses to take, either go immediately and shoot Mr. Beecher or shut his mouth and be silent, and not go blubbering about like a foolish whipped schoolboy. But Tilton's own slips were so frequent and so well known to Mr. Beecher that he dared not move like a man. Beecher and Tilton and Moulton and Mrs. Tilton were at my house hundreds of times, and all this matter was freely talked of once while we were together. After much talk, Theodore arose and said: 'Well, Henry, you love Elizabeth, and she loves you. If you can bless her in any way do so, and I will never interfere,' and drew us out of the room and left them alone together. Mrs. Tilton is an ardent, intensely amorous, and passionate woman, and loves Beecher devotedly."

"This is not the general idea of Mrs. Tilton."

"I know it, but it is correct. I have held her head in my lap for hours, while she told over the story of her love and shame. Mrs. Beecher is a grand and noble woman, but as much mismatched with him as Elizabeth with Theodore. Beecher, in his boyhood promised to marry her, and she held him to his promise in later years."

"Did Tilton write that Life of yours?"

"He wrote every word, but wrote it from notes furnished him by a gentleman. It sounded the knell of my ruin and downfall."

"Your husband is dead, is he not?"

"Yes, cast off by all his people, and a mere physical and moral and mental wreck, I took him to my house and tenderly nursed him all the years till his death. He never knew a want, and I held his hands in mine when he died."

It is not generally known that Mrs. Woodhull's relations with Col. Blood have ceased, and her only domestic ties now are those between herself, her mother and sister and children.

Whatever may be the opinion of Mrs. Woodhull's private character, or moral influence, or doctrines, it must be conceded that she is, in her way, an extraordinary woman, and fascinating from her intense emotional nature, her utter and reckless devotion to an idea, her eager and passionate advocacy of her cause. Her eyes flash with enthusiasm. She trembles with excitement as she talks. The care-worn face lights up in a wonderful manner, and her lips quiver with emotion. She is a strange, wayward, wonderful woman, and one can not leave her presence after an hour's talk without a more kindly feeling for her.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1875.

News and Notes.

Vice President Wilson is improving slowly, although it is clear that his days of usefulness are past. Another attack, which may seize him at any moment, will prove his death summons.

The Vokes family sent a check for $1100 to defray the expenses of the funeral of George Belmore, the comedian.

Thomas W. Piper, the alleged murderer of little Mabel Young, is to be tried at a special term of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, commencing Dec. 6th. It is said that the trial will consume a week or ten days, as there is a vast amount of evidence to be put in. Piper will be ably defended and it is thought that the case will be closely contested.

Mrs. Marshall of Stoughton, Mass., who was shot in the forehead by a jealous husband who afterward committed suicide, threatens to visit the editors of every Boston paper that published the letter written by her late husband, and cause them to "take it all back." This menace on the part of Mrs. Marshall makes it look as though she is not the guileless person that she claims to be.

The trial of Abbott, of Ossipee, for the murder of his wife, has been postponed until the April term of the Carroll County Court. He pleads not guilty, but acknowledges that he killed his wife, saying that the deed was provoked by her insolent behavior to him. Wouldn't there be lots of murders if this plea in extenuation was admitted as an excuse?

The celebrated violinist, Ole Bull, is having his usual great success with his fiddle in Denmark. It is said to be his purpose to make an extended tour in France, Russia, Roumania and Turkey, and finally to visit Egypt, the Khedive of which country has invited him to give a concert at the Pyramids.

The Prince of Wales is coming home after he has visited Ceylon, and, of course, will not visit the native princes of India, whose dominions enjoy the protectorate of the queen. The reason alleged is that the cholera prevails at Mysore and Madras; but the real reason is said to be the hostility of the reigning powers to the personal presence of any representative of a monarchy that has ruled them in times past in the most despotic and cruel manner.

On Wednesday afternoon a runner from Boston attempted to get upon the Montreal train, which was standing in the Nashua depot. He had two very large valises in his hands, and objection was made by the depot officials to their being taken into the passenger car. The man got off, but as soon as the train moved out of the depot he ran and tried to jump upon the car, and fell between it and the depot platform. He was dragged along about ten feet, and must surely have been killed, or terribly injured, but for the prompt assistance of men in the depot, who, by a great effort, succeeded in drawing him out upon the platform.

C. J. King, one of the signal operators, had a difficult passage coming down Mount Washington previous to the 10th, breaking his way through the snow from a foot to thirty inches deep. He reported "mild" weather, the thermometer ranging from 1 to 25 degrees. The Summit House was hermetically sealed with a coating of ice four inches thick, the result of a storm of sleet, freezing as it fell. The hotel platform is buried in a drift six feet deep. From the summit all the northern and western country appeared covered with snow, while on the south and east side there is but little.

Murderers to Be Hanged.

In contiguous cells in the New York Tombs corridor, known as "Murderers' Row," lie the five men, John Dolan, the murderer of Mr. Noe; Jacob Standerman, who killed the young woman whom he had asked to be his wife, and Weston, Ellis and Thompson, who clubbed to death the peddler in Westchester. All are to be hanged soon, and the stone wall of their cells is only a foot or two distant from the site on which the gallows is to be erected. All except Ellis are hopeful of a speedy release through some unforeseen agency, and are bright and talkative. He constantl paces his cell; weeping praying or reading Psalms, and reciting hymns. In the cell adjoining Ellis' is William Thompson, whose portly figure, round, full, pleasant face and quiet manner give him the look of a clergyman, an effect that is heightened by the broad folds of a clean bandkerchief that he wears around his neck. Thompson says very little, but when spoken to he talks and laughs heartily. He eats and sleeps and reads and smokes as though utterly oblivious of his approaching fate. Charles Weston occupies the last cell in the row of the condemned, and is apparently the most defiant and indifferent of all. He affects a jaunty air, steps lightly over his stone floor and looks his visitors boldly in the eye. His Creole face, with its straight Caucasian features, his bright eye and independent bearing indicate more than ordinary intelligence. He listens carelessly to his spiritual monitors and reads whatever comes to hand. He is never without his black briarwood pipe, or his wide, rakish sombrero, which he wears with up-turned brim on the back of his head. "It's the last week that will tell upon him," said the Deputy Warden, as he stepped from his barred window, "and then he'll break down worse than all the others." Jacob Standerman is in the cell adjoining that of Dolan, who is to be hanged on the same day. He has a wild, feverish look, and is seemingly not intelligent. He pays no attention to his dress, and his hair is uncombed and matted. He reads the Bible mechanically, and German newspapers with interest. A Lutheran minister attends him. In cell No. 4 is John Dolan, the Noe murderer. He dresses neatly, keeps his cell cheery and in order, and is confident of an early release. On his table are piles of books and papers and boxes of cigars, supplied by friends, and a colored picture is pasted to the wall. He has steadily refused to talk with visitors. He says his friends are doing everything for his release, and a benefit ball is to be gotten up, the proceeds of which are to be spent in the endeavor to secure for him a new trial. Father Barry and Duranquet visit Dolan daily, and so do the Sisters of Charity.

The True and False Kearsarge.

Sir: The article in your journal of November 6, headed "Admiral Winslow's Monument" prompts me to send the following extract from the soon forthcoming second volume of Johnson's Cyclopedia, concerning the "Kearsarge Mountain," after which the corvette was named. The character of the work from which it is taken and the authority of the signature will leave it no longer a matter of doubt of which mountain the "Kearsarge" bore the name. Some of the not very old American atlases place the name Kearsarge to the Carroll Co. Mountain. In recent ones it disappears there and appears (only) in Merrimac Co.

New York, November 15, 1875. S.

"Kearsarge Mount, a conspicuous mountain in Carroll Co.. N. H.; lat. 44 deg. 6 min. 20 sec. N., lon. 71 deg. 5 min, 40 sec. W.; height. 3,250 feet. On the suggestion of the wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, a daughter of Levi Woodbury, of New Hampshire, the Secretary in 1861, named the vessel which sunk the Alabama in 1864 after this mountain. Another one of the same name, in Merrimac Co., N. H., formerly called Kya-Sarga, by the Indians, Courssewaschook, height, 2,950 feet has been erroneously claimed for this honor. G. V. Fox."

A Girl Befriended.

Mr. J. H. Claiborne of Trenton, N. J., on taking a seat in the New York train the other night, saw a young girl in front of him who was crying, but evidently trying to suppress her grief. She was prepossessing, and her attire indicated taste and refinement. As she was alone, Mr. Claiborne in a fatherly way inquired the cause of her trouble, and proffered assistance. She replied that her name was Ella Douglas, and that she lived in Lockport, N. Y. About three months ago, she said, she formed the acquaintance of a young man, who said that he was a commercial traveller for a New York boot and shoe house. He paid his addresses to her, and, her parents objecting to a marriage, he induced her to accompany him to New York, promising to marry her and take her to the home of his mother, in Wilmington, Del. Arriving in this city, they were married, and after spending the night at a hotel went to Wilmington. There he deserted her, after informing her that she was the victim of a fraudulent marriage, and that the story of his mother living in Wilmington was a hoax. The girl was heart-broken and out of money, but she said she had friends in Thirty-fifth street who would render her assistance. She said that she was too weary to walk from the ferry to Thirty-fifth street, was ashamed to go up in a car, and that Mr. Claiborne would confer a lasting favor by taking her in a carriage. To this he willingly consented, and on reaching Thirty-fifth street and Sixth avenue she requested him to leave her, saying that she preferred to go to the house of her friends alone, as the distance was only half a block. Mr. Claiborne turned away; but before reaching his hotel he missed his watch and some money that he carried in his vest pocket.

—From many years' experience in the treatment of diptheria, writes a physician of Boston, I am led to believe that the most useful counter-agent that can be employed is the inhalation of the vapor of carbolic acid. In my earlier practice I employed nitrate of silver as a topical application by brushes and larynxcal syringes, which I found useful, as others have done; but the difficulty of application in some cases was a serious limitation to its usefulness; therefore I adopted the use of carbolic acid in the following manner: A piece of cloth is wet with the acid, and being loosely thrust into a small lamp chimney or other similar tube, the air is drawn through this and the air passages to the air cells of the lungs, where an antiseptic influence seems to be exerted upon the blood. Many cases that had resisted other treatment yielded readily to this, and the nitrate of silver was wholly laid aside. The only other special treatment required is the frequent use o small portions of chloride of iron, alternated with quinine, while the general system is sustained by a generous diet of beef tea, wine, etc.

—A negro man in the adjoining county of Baldwin, says the Pensacola (Fla.) Gazette, killed a large hog in the woods. He opened the animal, removed the entrails, and devised a method of carrying the pork, which was altogether sui generis. This manner of transportation was effected by tying the hind legs together, passing the head between them, and the heavy carcass being in front, easing the weight on his neck by lifting on the fore legs with his hands. It is presumed that he got along remarkably well until a rail fence got in his way, and, in order to climb this, he needed his hands. Accordinly, he relieved them by lifting the hog over the top rail and letting it drop on the other side. It is presumed that he proposed to follow the hog, but he didn't. A few days since a congregation of buzzards attracted attention to a locality where a negro man was found hanging on one side of a rail fence and a hog on the other, the weight of the animal evidently having pressed his neck down upon the rail until he was choked to death.

—One of Mark Twain's funny stories is that of a Scripture panorama, the proprietor of which engaged a pianist to play appropriate music. The musician, when the picture of the "Prodigal Son" was passing, struck up, "When Johnny comes marching home!" which excited the indignation of the moral lecturer. Recently, in a neighboring town, the drama of "Joseph and His Brethren" was played: and the tune to which Jacob and his family journeyed into Egypt was "Marching Through Georgia."

—Mrs. Starrett, of Lawrence, Kan., propounds the interesting query, "What shall we do with our daughters?" and a farmer with the same propinquity wants to know, "What shall we do with our corn?" The able editor of the Topeka (Kan.) Blade, eager to make himself useful and popular with both parties, says, "Let us feed our corn to our daughters."

—Babies are not named after Henry Ward as much as they used to be, but they are still famous for paroxysms of true inwardness.

—When you hear a good story from a stupid man and see a silk umbrella in the hands of a man who does not pay for his paper, you may know that both have been borrowed.

TO THE HON. JUDGE OF PROBATE FOR THE COUNTY OF ROCKINGHAM:

Respectfully represents Alonzo F. Craig, Administrator of the estate of GEORGE B. CAME, late of Portsmouth in said County, deceased, that the Personal Estate of said deceased is not sufficient to pay the just demands against his estate by the sum of five thousand dollars; that said Came died seized of the right in equity to redeem certain mortgaged real estate situate in said Portsmouth with the buildings thereon, bounded northerly by Hanover Street, easterly by land of Frederick F. Moses, southerly by land of the Howard Benevolent Society, and westerly by land of Albert A. Fernald; the same being subject to three mortgages, one to Louisa M. Cutts dated November 16th, 1869, to secure the sum of two thousand dollars, on which is now due the sum of four hundred dollars and interest from November 16th, 1875, one to Daniel McIntire dated March 18, 1869, to secure twelve hundred dollars, now held by Horace Hall, which is now due with interest from April 18, 1874, and one to George M. Marsh dated November 20, 1868, to secure six hundred dollars, now held by said Hall, on which is due the said sum of six hundred dollars and interest from April 18, 1874. And said deceased left no other real estate in this State.

Wherefore he prays that he may be licensed to sell at public auction the right of redeeming said mortgaged Real Estate of said deceased as aforesaid for the payment of said demands.

Dated the ninth day of November, A. D. 1875.

A. F. CRAIG.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS TO-DAY

Probate Notice.

Notice—Dr. Donaldson.

A Real Surprise.

The frequency of those social occasions known as "surprise parties," has given them a sort of cheapness that places them below the grade of items worth newspaper noting. They are also robbed of the interest that might otherwise gather around them were they less common. A pleasant surprise, however, if real, is a pleasant thing, no less to the party surprised than to the friends who participate in the scheme. Such an occasion was held at Lincoln Hill on Friday evening last, in honor of the birthday anniversary of the proprietor, Hon. Frank W. Miller, whose two-score and six years sit lightly upon him, notwithstanding Father Time has so thoroughly besprinkled his locks with gray. The erect form, the elastic step, and the general vigor that distinguishes youth from old age is still there in unmistakable prominence, and bids fair to continue for many years, in spite of the great activity that characterizes him, and the degree of friction, against which his physical and mental system contends. There is no greater worker within our knowledge than our friend Miller, and it don't matter about the kind or quantity, so that there is something gained from it for him or some one else. If anyone doubts this statement, he has but to take a walk to his beautiful grounds at Lincoln Hill, and see how an unsightly pasture of rocks and scrubby bushes can be metamorphosed into one of the most attractive dwelling places in this or any other city.

For the past week or more, Mr. Miller has been plowing and digging and otherwise improving his land, in blissful ignorance of what awaited him on the return of his birthday; even forgetting, probably, that such a day was near at hand. Returning home from the city, on Friday evening, whither he had been for his mail, as he drew nigh unto the house he met with an experience similar to that of the brother of the famed prodigal,—he saw evidences of something out of the ordinary course of things; but unlike the childish prodigal brother referred to, who was angry and had to be coaxed into the house, our genial friend Miller, true to his strong social instincts, lost no time in joining the pleasant company that had assembled to greet him and wish him continual prosperity while journeying down the other side of life's declivity.

Tables loaded with everything to be desired, parlors tastily trimmed with beautiful autumn leaves and flowers, presents unnumbered, together with congratulations on every hand, all testified unmistakably to the success and heartiness of the gathering; but not more plainly than did the features of Bro. Miller betoken the most genuine surprise at the general appearance of his household, when he entered his home on the evening above alluded to.

Gratitude.

At an adjourned meeting of the Portsmouth Veteran Artillery Association held at Rechabite Hall, November 18th, 1875, it was unanimously

Resolved, that the thanks of the Association are due to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, for their generous invitation to the Association to attend the lecture given by Mr. John C. Edgar and Miss Georgia Cayvan, and to Thomas E. O. Marvin, Esq., President of said Society, for his courtesy in extending said invitation.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Society aforesaid, and also one to Mr. Marvin, and that they be entered at large on the records of the Association.

WM. RUSSELL FOSTER, Clerk pro tem.

Jottings.

Turkeys were selling in Boston on Saturday for 18 cents, while Portsmouth prices were 25 cents. 'Twasn't the quality that made the difference, for, if there was any difference, it was in favor of the Boston fowls.

It will be seen by reference to our advertising columns, that Dr. Donaldson has removed his residence to No 29 Islington street, (Rev. Dr. Alden) where he can be found at any time during the night.

Rev. Wm. A. Rand of South Seabrook was assaulted on Thursday evening last, on his way home from his church by some roughs who followed him; one of them throwing a stone, hitting Mr. Rand in the leg. Under cover of the darkness the fellows escaped. Revenge for being remonstrated with for the entering church intoxicated was the probable motive for the deed.

J. C. Edgar's lecture Thursday evening was listened to with the closest attention, to its close. Mr. Edgar told his story of the Battle of Balaklava and the "Charge of the Light Brigade" in a strain of natural eloquence which went straight to the hearts of his hearers, and held the large and appreciative audience spell bound for more than an hour. Miss Georgia E. Cayvan, the beautiful elocutionist who was introduced to a Portsmouth audience for the first time, created a decided sensation by her faultless rendering of Tennyson's poem "The Charge of the Light Brigade." Her reading of Bryant's Robert O' Lincoln was inimitable.

—There is in Newark, N. J., a still more singular case of bullet in the brain than that of Carruth, the Vineland editor. Carruth died ultimately, it is true, but immediate recovery after the shooting and his living some eight months following the attack on his life constitute a marvel in physical and medical science. The Newark case is parallel with Carruth's, so far as living with a bullet in his brain, but in other respects it is still more singular. It is that of John Huber, who, something over a month ago, lodged a bullet in his brain, where it still remains. It appears John had had some trouble with his wife over a piece of property; but worse still, he was indicted by the Grand Jury for an alleged attempt to criminally assault Miss Hauser, his wife's daughter by a previous husband, and his trial was set down for October 12. The Saturday night before that day Huber was so despondent over his troubles that he was sneeringly advised to go home and shoot himself. On arriving home he shot himself sure enough, with a revolver. The bullet entered at a point three inches from the right temple. Huber fell to the floor, but was speedily removed to the German Hospital. Here his case was regarded as past hope. The wound was probed, but the bullet could not be found, and the doctors gave him up. The Tuesday came, and when Huber's indictment was called in Court the Judge ordered that a nolle prosequi be entered in the case, remarking that Huber had doubtless ere that been called to answer before a higher tribunal than that over which the Judge himself presided. Quite the reverse proved the fact, however. Huber pulled through and after remaining four or five weeks in the hospital, finally recovered so far as to warrant his leaving it last week. As the matter stands, John has not only recovered his usual health, but escaped a vexatious law suit besides.

—The other evening, when Harper's train was approaching Lockland, it parted in the middle, and the bell rope snapped off like a thread, the end of it striking an old lady from Jasper, on her bonnet and setting her nerves to play. "What on earth's the matter?" she exclaimed, "Oh, the train's broke in two," replied a gentleman who sat in the next seat. "Ugh! I should say so," the old lady said, looking at the broken bell-cord. "Did they s'pose such a nasty, trifling little string would hold the train together?"

—A minister who had been reproving one of the elders for over indulgence, observed a cow go down to a stream, take a drink, and then turn away. "There," said he to his offending elder, "is an example for you; the cow has quenched its thirst and has retired." "Yes," replied the other, "that is very true; but suppose another cow had come to the other side of the stream, and had said, 'Here's to you,' there's no saying how long they might have gone on."

Autobiography of Mrs. Fletcher, with letters and other family memorials.

When this book was written, it was intended solely for private circulation among her immediate descendants and friends, but its appearance created so much interest that a more extended publication was called for. Its typographical appearance reflects great credit upon its publishers, Messrs. Roberts Brothers, Boston.

An Impregnable Position.

Among American remedies, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters occupies what may not inaptly be termed an impregnable position. The foundations of its popularity are laid so deep in the public confidence, its excellence has been so frequently and conclusively demonstrated under the most trying circumstances, and it has been so long known to the public as a standard article, that neither the slurs occasionally cast upon proprietary medicines, nor the attempts of certain inalcoholic nostrum venders to create a prejudice against a preparation with a spirituous basis, can affect it. The public recognize in it a safe, agreeable and comprehensive alterative and an invaluable general tonic, a speedy remedy for malarious disorders, and their most reliable preventive. Its reputation is founded, as it were, upon a rock.

From the New York Tribune.

A WANT SUPPLIED.

The American mind is active. It has given us books of fiction for the sentimentalist, learned books for the scholar and professional student, but few books for the people. A book for the people must relate to a subject of universal interest. Such a subject is the physical man, and such a book "THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER," a copy of which has been recently laid on our table The high professional attainments of its author, Dr. R. V. PIERCE, of Buffalo, N. Y.,—and the advantages derived by him from an extensive practice, would alone insure for his work a cordial reception. But these are not the merits for which it claims our attention. The Author is a man of the people. He sympathizes with them in all their afflictions, efforts, and attainments. He perceives their want—a knowledge of themselves—and believing that all truth should be made as universal as God's own sunlight, from his fund of learning and experience he has produced a work in which he gives them the benefits of his labors. In it he considers man in every phase of his existence, from the moment he emerges "from a rayless atom, too diminutive for the sight, until he gradually evolves to the maturity of those Conscious Powers, the exercise of which furnishes subjective evidence of our immortality." Proceeding upon the theory that every fact of mind has a physical antecedent, he has given an admirable treatise on Cerebral Physiology, and shown the bearings of the facts thus established upon individual and social welfare. The author believes with Spencer, that, "vigorous health and its accompanying high spirits are larger elements of happiness than any other things whatever," and accordingly has introduced an extensive discussion of the methods by which we may preserve the integrity of the system and ofttimes prevent the onset of disease. Domestic Remédies—their preparation, uses, and effects—form a prominent feature of the work. The hygienic treatment, or nursing of the sick, is an important subject, and receives attention commensurate with its importance. Nearly all diseases "to which flesh is heir" are described, their symptoms and causes explained, and proper domestic treatment suggested. To reciprocate the many favors bestowed upon him by a generous public, the author offers his book at a price ($1.50) little exceeding the cost of publication. Our readers can obtain this practical and valuable work by addressing the author.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

The Late Awful Winter leaves behind it a frightful legacy of Coughs, Colds, and Pulmonary Inflammation. Provi lentially, however, an absolute and immediate cure has been provided in HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute.

To Neutralize Offensiveness

In many forms we use disinfecting agents. Impure breath, caused by bad teeth, tobacco, spirits, or catarrh, is neutralized by SOZODONT. 'Tis a healthful beautifier, and a great luxury as a dentrifice. The repulsive breath is by its use rendered as fragrant as a rose, and coldness by friends or lovers will be no longer noticed.

Spaulding's Glue mends everything.

Coughs and Colds are often overlooked. A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs or some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effectual COUGH REMEDY.

Surf-Scenery at the Shoals.

[S. A. Drake's Nooks and Corners of the New England Coast.]

If you would know what the sea can do, go down one of these gulches to the water's edge, and be satisfied. I could not find a round pebble among the debris of the shattered rock that lay tumbled about; only fractured pieces of irregular shapes. Those rocks, submerged by the tide, were blackened as if by fire, and shagged with weeds. Overhead, the precipitous cliffs caught the sun's rays on countless glittering points—the mica with which they are so plentifully bespangled dazzling the eye with its brilliancy. Elsewhere they were flint, of which there was more than enough to have furnished all Europe in the Thirty Years' War, or else granite. Looking up from among the abattis which girds the isle about, you are confronted by masses of overhanging rocks that threaten to detach themselves from the cliff and bury you in the ruins.

It is not for the timid to attempt a ramble among the rocks on the Atlantic side at low tide. He should be sure-footed and supple-jointed who undertakes it, with an eye to measure the exact distance where the incoming surf-wave is to break. The illusions produced in the mind by the great waves that roll past are not the least striking sensations experienced. The speed with which they press in, and the noise accompanying their passage through the gullies and rents of the shore, contribute to make them seem much larger than they really are. It was only by continually watching the waves and measuring their farthest reach, that I was able to await one of those curling monsters pos ure; and even then I could not avoid looking suddenly around on hearing the rush of a breaker behind me; and ever and anon one of greater volume destroyed all confidence by bursting far above the boundaries the mind had assigned for its utmost limit.

Nothing struck me more than the idea of such mighty forces going to pure waste. A lifting power the Syracusian never dreamed of, literally throwing itself away! An engine sufficient to turn all the machinery in Christendom lying idle at our very doors. What might not be accomplished if old Neptune would put his shoulder to the wheel, instead of making all this magnificent but useless pother.

I noticed that the waves, after churning themselves into foam, assumed emerald tints, and caught a momentary gleam of sapphire, melting into amethyst, during the rapid changes from bluish green of solid water to its greatest state of disintegration. The same change of color has been observed in the Hebrides, and elsewhere.

The place that held for me more of fascination and sublimity than others, was the bluff that looks out upon the vast ocean. I was often there.

The swell of the Atlantic is not like the long regular roll of the Pacific, but it beats with steady rhythm. The grandest effects are produced after a heavy North-east blow, when the waves assume the larger and more flattened form known as the ground swell. I was fortunate enough to stand on the cliff, after three or four days of "easterly" weather had produced this effect. Such billows as poured with solid impact on the rocks, leaping twenty feet in the air, or heaping themselves in fountains of boiling foam around its base, give a competent idea of resistless power! The shock and recoil seemed to shake the foundations of the island.

Upon a shelf or platform of this cliff a young lady teacher lost her life in September, 1858. Since then the rock on which she was seated has been called "Miss Underhill's Chair." Other incidents have occurred on the same spot, insufficient, it would seem, to prevent the foolhardy from risking their lives for a seat in this fatal chair.

—Here is a Mormon reason for marrying a Gentile: "Why, isn't he handsome! and then he is good, and then—and then—I wanted every bit of him to myself! Father didn't like it, mother didn't like it, but I did."

—A man rushed excitedly into a lawyer's office in Towanda, recently, and said, "A man has tied a hoop to my horse's tail. Can I do anything about it?" "Yes, go and untie it—fee $5."—Waverly Advocate.

Notices of the Press.

Harper's Weekly is the ablest and most powerful illustrated periodical published in this country. Its editorials are scholarly and convincing, and carry much weight. Its illustrations of current events are full and fresh, and are prepared by our best designers. With a circulation of 150,000, the Weekly is read by at least half a million persons, and is thus as great an organ of opinion as many newspapers. The Weekly maintains a positive position, and expresses decided views on political and social problems.—Lutheran Observer.

Its articles are models of high-toned discussion, and its pictorial illustrations are often corroborative arguments of no small force.—N. Y. Examiner and Chronicle.

Its papers upon existent questions and its inimitable cartoons help to mould the sentiments of the country.—Pittsburgh Commercial.

Harper's Weekly stands at the head of illustrated journals in the United States in circulation, editorial ability, and pictorial illustration.—Ladies' Repository, Cincinnati.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of the last, but from the sale of that package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror. I was resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I first benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can fully say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD, Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint of Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my days. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you the first package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully, MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, no kidney trouble, and I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

The Country Gentleman

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1876.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN possesses an unequaled Corps of Correspondents, regular and occasional, among the best Farmers of all Parts of the Country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United States and civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives in its Horticultural Department a continuous variety of information and suggestion, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other journals combined, to introduce and disseminate Improved Stock of every kind through the country; and commands to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains unusually full and trustworthy Market Reports, and devotes special attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN enhances its numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and the Orchard and Household, with a column or two for the Housewife and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well-edited Review of Current Events, and will certainly prove to furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

PURCHASE NOW.

How to Purchase.

In person, or by certified Check, or Express, or Postal Order, or Draft, or enclose greenbacks in a registered letter, and send payable to the Industrial Exhibition Co.

The funds raised by sale of these Bonds, will be applied to the erection of a Crystal Palace, which every American will be proud of Recollect, the Industrial Exhibition is a legitimate enterprise, chartered by the State of New York.

Its Directors are the best citizens of New York.

It has had seven drawings since July, 1874, and paid out in principal and interest, $750,000.

Any one obtaining a premium, the company pledges itself to make it good.

This enterprise is simply a new form of bond; in no sense is it to be recognised as a lottery.

There are no blanks. Be sure and purchase at once.

$5 will buy a Fraction for December 6th, 1875.
$10 " " Quarter Bond for Jan. 3rd, 1876.
$10 " " Half Bond " " "

"The very best ladies' magazine published."—Seneca Falls (N. Y.) Courier.

☞ CHEAPEST AND BEST! ☜

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large-sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its

THRILLING TALES AND NOVELETTES

are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

The Evangelists in Brooklyn.

[N. Y. Sun.]

The amounts received at the collections for the Young Men's Christian Association on Thursday were not entirely satisfactory. The attendants upon the early morning services were most of them Christians, and the receipts were less than $800. The amounts collected at the other meetings had not been counted, but they were believed to be so small that the ushers passed the boxes around again, and at the close of services Mr. Marvin, President of the association, buttonholed Mr. Moody in an anteroom of the Tabernacle, and urged him to continue the collections through the day. "I don't want to," replied Mr. Moody. "I am sorry the people were not more liberal Thursday, but I don't want to keep poking collection boxes at them all the time."

"Liberal!" interrupted a gentleman who had for hours been trying to count Thursday afternoon's receipts, "I shouldn't say they were. Why, there are over seven hundred ten-cent shinplasters in that collection and hundreds of nickels. It isn't worth counting."

"Well," said Mr. Marvin, "seven hundred ten-cent pieces make $70, and is good for something."

"I won't make any more collections unless you insist upon it," said Mr. Moody, "for half the people are dull enough to think the money is for me. Better try to raise it by individual effort."

The requests for prayers read by Deacon Hawley were more numerous than on any other morning, covering two drunkards, six backsliders, a saloon keeper under deep conviction, thirty-nine brothers, the editor of a country newspaper, friends in Philadelphia, a lady who is a slave to opium, a man who is the editor of an infidel newspaper, a backsliding clergyman and fourteen husbands.

Nearly the whole hour was occupied by Mr. Moody, who appealed to the Christians to earnestly carry on the work begun, and he told them how to do it. "I am tired and sick," said he, "of these spasmodic and emotional revivals, and I cannot blame the enemies of religion for attacking the churches on this weak point. Every Winter there is a great awakening in the churches of nearly every village, but the church members do not try to make it last for years or even months. If they can get up an excitement that continues for six weeks, they rub their hands together and sanctimoniously say: 'Oh, what a glorious time we have had! I hope that we will have another just like it next Winter.' That is not the right spirit; what we want is a continuous healthy revival, one running three hundred and sixty-five days in every year." He quoted from Titus, ii., 14, 15, and Titus, iii., 8.

Mr. Sankey sang very tenderly, "Nothing but leaves! The spirit grieves," and at the close of the services many ladies pressed around his organ to ask him to sing for them some favorite hymn in the afternoon. Nearly all wanted to hear again the "Ninety and Nine," and when he told one young lady that he feared that the public was growing tired of it, she replied: "Oh, no, we can't tire of it. Sing it, please, dear Mr. Sankey." Autograph hunters with inkbottles and albums were industriously pursuing their calling, extemporizing writing desks on their backs and shoulders.

Next Mr. Moody fell into the hands of interviewing reporters, and to them he expressed himself greatly encouraged by his work in Brooklyn. "I have nowhere found more impressionable audiences," said he, "than in Brooklyn. In England, where I was successful, my friends counselled me against going into Scotland, saying that I could not move the cool, calculating spirit of the Scotchman; and when I started for Ireland, they told me that the volatile Irish were the last people in the world among whom I could labor with good results. But in both those countries there were as great awakenings as any I have ever seen. It made me think that hearts are the same all over the world."

"What has been the most encouraging feature of your reception in Brooklyn?"

"The union of the churches. All the clergy seem to be working zealously and harmoniously and intelligently to carry on the work."

"And the most discouraging?"

"My inability to reach the great masses who ought to be saved. Still, they may be yet approached through the churches, for this movement has not stopped.

"Have you any estimate of the number of converts made?" asked the reporter, for Mr. Moody volunteers nothing to an interviewer.

"I have not one, and cannot make one. Many go to their pastors, and do not come near the inquiry room, and many more of the wounded will be won if the work is carried on as it should be."

He said that he as yet felt no fatigue, and that he had been able to carry on four meetings a day in England, Scotland, and Ireland, for over two years without breaking down.

The congregation in the Tabernacle in the afternoon began a hymn and were half way through it before Mr. Sankey, panting and warm from his endeavors to push through the crowd, appeared on the platform. He remained only long enough to sing the "Ninety and Nine," and then went over to the Lay College, where Mr. Needham was conducting an overflowing meeting. Many le-dies arose and followed him. Mr. Moody's objections in regard to taking up a collection had been overruled, and the ushers threaded the crowded aisles, while their baskets rapidly filled with small currency. The volume was large—sufficient to fill three paper flour bags, but the value is not supposed to be great.

Mr. Moody preached upon faith and works, and in connection with the latter part of the subject said that he was once preaching in a village in England when he had six distillers in his audience. One of them wrote a note to him asking whether a distiller could be a consistent Christian. "I spoke right from the platform," continued Mr. Moody, "and said, 'If a distiller can manufacture a barrel of whisky and then fall down on his knees by its side and pray that it may go forth to be a blessing to the world, to strengthen God's kingdom, and to win soldiers from the devil, then the distillers can be a Christian.' "In closing the service with a prayer, Mr. Moody prayed that "those who in the future met the Christians of Brooklyn might notice a change in them, that they had grown closer to Christ, and fashioned more in the image of God."

In the evening the crowd about the Rink was unprecedented. One Myrtle avenue car that arrived more than an hour before the opening of the services carried sixty-six passengers, but when they alighted they found the Rink filled and the doors, both front and rear, closed. Both avenues were filled with an ever-increasing, pushing, surging multitude; women fainted, some of the weaker ones were thrown to the ground, and a messenger was despatched to summon the police from the interior of the building. As he rushed upon the platform and called for the police, men and women started from their seats in all parts of the house, and it would have taken only a breath more to create a panic, but Rev. Mr. Steele, seeing the danger, promptly allayed the alarm by a pardonable misstatement of facts. Rev. Dr. Storrs entered a short time before seven o'clock, but could find no seats for himself or for the ladies who were with him. A moment later an usher upon the floor of the Rink called to Mr. Shepherd, the usher in charge of the platform; "Mr. Shepherd, can't you find a place for this gentleman? He is a clergyman, who has come all the way from Connecticut for this evening. He is very deaf, and must sit near Mr. Moody."

"I can't help him," replied Mr. Shepherd, promptly. "I've got more than half a dozen deaf clergymen out behind the platform, and can't get seats for them. Some of them have come 500 miles and more.

Just before the service opened, the choir invited Mr. Sankey to meet them in the Reformed Church, and presented to him through ex-Mayor Lambert a very handsome travelling clock of silver and ebony, and a purse full of money for his wife. In returning thanks for the present, Mr. Sankey said that he had never had a choir to assist him, so thoroughly drilled.

Besides these gifts the ladies of the choir presented to him a magnificent floral tribute, nearly three feet in height, that was placed first on the top of the organ, and afterward in the centre of the platform.

The speaker's voice was frequently broken by sobs, and he stood for a moment silent before returning thanks to the clergy, the choir, and the ushers. In conclusion he said, "In the words of an aged man who used to visit me once a year in Chicago, I will say, 'I don't like to say good by. I will say good night, and may we meet in the morning.'"

Then very softly Mr. Sankey played and sang,

"Shall we meet beyond the river," and then the two evangelists left the building. Mr. Sankey went immediately to the Tabernacle, where Mr. Moody labored in the inquiry room a half hour before following him.

This morning at nine o'clock Moody and Sankey are to start for Philadelphia to hold services there for at least a month. Then they will go to Chicago, whence they may return after a week to Philadelphia. They will come to New York in the latter part of January.

At a meeting of clergymen it was decided to continue the morning meetings for some time not settled upon.

News and Notes.

The Unitarian Church at Nashua, has adopted congregational singing, and by this method makes a saving of $800 per annum.

An eight-year old son of Mrs. Elizabeth Bodwell, of Sanford Corner, Me., was drowned while skating Saturday afternoon, a fate which three other lads narrowly escaped.

Tom Allen denies that he has put up a forfeit for a fight between himself and Jem Mace, but says if the latter should return from England and challenge him it would be accepted.

Mr. Levi Small, of Richmond, Me., while riding down a sudden incline near the depot in that place Saturday morning, was thrown from his wagon, breaking his thigh. He is 75 years of age.

The police ball in Biddeford, Me., was a decided success. Large delegates from other cities were present. During the festivities free rum led to numerous fights outside and ten persons were locked up in the station-house.

J. M. Burt, whose sudden departure some two months since from Enosburg Falls, Vt., has been reported, has returned. He denies the story of a servant girl leaving with him, and also of his being arrears to the amount of $8000. He claims that the reason of his leaving was, that a man whom he was owing pressed him for payment, and he concluded to leave and let his creditors settle his estate. He went as far as Charleston, S. C. Previous to his leaving he had borne a good reputation.

Mary O'Holland, an operative in the Bartlett Mill, at Newburyport, Mass., died on Thursday night, in consequence of having denied herself proper nourishment, although she had $250 in bills on her person, and a savings bank book showing deposits to the amount of $640.

Rufus Buell, a resident of Lower California, was a native of Essex, Vt., and a son of Simon Buell, recently deceased. He left home many years ago, with money enough to reach California, where he commenced teaching school. Husbanding his funds he bought cattle, realized an advance on their sale bought land at thirty-five and fifty cents an acre, began stocking and cultivating his farms, adding to his acres and to his stock, until he now has forty thousand acres of land, twenty-three thousand cows, and forty span of horses, and keeps a hundred men at work. He resides in the city, where he has a large market which he supplies entirely from his own farm. He has a large cheese factory, a harness, blacksmith and wheelwright shop, and every other facility necessary to carry on an extensive farm and city business. He has a library which cost him nearly three thousand dollars. During the first year of his California life he was engaged in a law suit involving the title of the land he had purchased, which he prepared himself to defend by years of law study, and was successful against those who had practiced law many years. He is now reputed to be worth half a million dollars as the result of hard labor and determined energy and perseverance.

A Narrow Escape.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

The celebrated South Dome of the Yosemite is well known, and it has hitherto been asserted that to reach its summit was an impossibility. On Sept. 15, both visitors and residents in the valley were thrown into a state of excitement upon it being made known that a Scotchman named George Anderson, formerly a sailor, had actually accomplished this wonderful and daring feat. Very few believed the tale, and those who had already seen the South Dome, utterly denied that the feat was within the limit of possibility. A party of English tourists concluded that they would judge for themselves by visiting the spot. Those who have been there know the kind of riding necessary to reach the base of its mountain, which rises some 6,000 feet above the level of the valley.

The news spread like wild-fire that the Britishers would attempt the ascent. At 6 A. M., on Saturday, the 16th of September, a party of eleven adventurers, headed by George Anderson, started from Black's Hotel upon their seven miles' ride up the precipitous height past the Vernal and Nevada Falls, and struck the little-frequented trail to South Dome. On reaching the heavy masses of fallen granite known as the "Camel's Back" they dismounted, and after brief rest a few commenced the dangerous climb to the foot of the Dome. The Scotchman arrived first. As the party assembled at the foot of an almost perpendicular rock, which is, according to Prof. Whitney's calculation, at least 1,300 feet high, they looked with dismay at the journey before them.

George Anderson then explained that as he climbed he had bored holes in the rock and inserted iron eyebolts. To these eyebolts he had secured a rope, and those who would venture to climb, holding the rope with their hands and pressing the rock with their feet, might do so, providing their strength held out, in perfect safety. Two of the Englishmen said it might be good fun in walking up walls, but they "didn't feel like trying." Anderson, however, with a cheer, went ahead. There was a moment's hesitation, then, with a shout of enthusiasm, some of the crowd rushed forward to the rope. It was first secured by two young Englishmen named Robinson, who rapidly commenced the escalade. They were followed by another, rejoicing in the name of Gammon. Then Mr. Moreland, an American, ascended, followed closely by West, a guide from the valley. These were allowed to work their way up, lest the rope should break. Mr. Liedig, of the valley, then went up, followed by Mr. Groom, another English tourist.

Anderson now looked like a fly crawling in the distance, as he rapidly distanced his followers, shouting words of encouragement as they cautiously made their way upward. Sometimes they stopped, holding on convulsively to the rope and the eyebolt until they could continue up the dizzy height. Mr. Liedig, turned sick, and with difficulty returned, swearing that for all the dollars in California he could not have gone further.

The spectators now waited nervously for those who had gained the summit, and were soon relieved from their anxiety by hearing the report of West's revolver, which was to be the signal of their safety. They now commenced to clamber painfully down the "Camel's Back" to the horses and those who had not cared to make the ascent. There being no trail, each had to make one for himself. Several had narrow escapes.

Mr. Groom, after an involuntary roll of some fifteen or twenty feet, suddenly found himself looking over a precipice between two and three thousand feet deep into a valley below. He had slidden so far down the rock that, without the aid of ropes, he could not return. To advance was almost certain death of a most horrible nature. None understood the terrible meaning of his cries for help. His sole support was a narrow ledge of granite, to which he held on with grim tenacity of a man who fights for life. But his strength could not last, and with a loud cry he rolled headlong down, down, as he believed into eternity. But in throwing his arms forward as he fell, they slid into a crevice, by which he held on. Here he was able to take advantage of a slope in the rock, and with the calves of his legs and his hands he worked himself downward to a firm footing. He afterward reached the base of the mountain in safety.

We think that one, at least, of these Englishmen will remember the ascent of the South Dome. Soon after this incident George Anderson and the adventurers who had followed him returned safely. Three cheers were given and the parties commenced the descent to the valley.

A Letter from Mark Twain.

Mr. Samuel L. Clemens has consented to lecture in Hartford for the benefit of the poor. The following is his letter:

GENTLEMEN—I accede to your request with pleasure. Many months ago I permanently quitted the lecture field, and said I would not appear upon a platform any more unless driven there by lack of bread, By the spirit of that remark I am debarred from delivering this proposed lecture, and so I fall back upon the letter of it and emerge upon the platform for this last and final time because I am confronted by the lack of bread — among Father Hawley's flock. Most people lie by the spirit and the letter too, but I am not one of that kind, for I have been very carefully brought up. I wish to impose upon you this condition, that the expenses of this enterprise shall be paid out of four or five pockets, (mine to be one of them), to the end that all the money that comes in at the door shall go to Father Hawley's needy ones, unimpaired by taxes on its journey. I am glad that you are going to put your tickets at $1; for what we are after now is money for people who stand sorely in need of bread and meal, and so the object justifies the price. As this will probably be the last time I shall ever have the opportunity of hearing sound wisdom and pure truth delivered from the platform I wish to buy a ticket to this lecture, and I herewith send money for the purchase. I am aware that I could get in for nothing, and still be acting in a measure honorably; but when I run my lecture over in my mind and realize what a very treasure of priceless information it is, I cannot conscientiously accept a free pass.

Respectfully, MARK TWAIN.

The Maelstrom as it is.

Nearly midway in London strait, a huge, naked rock which might fairly be called an island, lifts itself above the waters, breasting the conflicting currents caused by the winds and tides. Between this rock and the cape on Muskong is the famous maelstrom, which fertile imaginations have clothed with many terrors. Its geographical position is such as to expose it to fierce tidal currents, and, when these are assisted by high westerly winds, they are, no doubt, terrific. The bottom of the strait is strewn with immense boulders, which are so arranged as to give the current a spiral motion, directed toward the isolated rock from the northern side, which is much increased in times of high tides and storms, when it whirls quite around the island rock. Then it is that it becomes really difficult for boats and vessels, without steam power, to keep clear of the rocks against which the wayward currents would dash them. While there are at times vast and powerful eddies, which give objects floating upon them a fearful spiral motion, there is nothing like a vortex produced by a subterranean discharge of the water, although the tumbling and boiling character of the spiral current may submerge temporarily objects drifting on the surface. No doubt in the course of time the action of the water has tendered to level down the bed of rocks, some of which, we may presume, showed themselves above the surface. This may have been the maelstrom much more terrific than it is now, and better justified the ancient fable. As it is, in ordinary times and favorable weather the fishermen do not hesitate to seek for fares throughout these waters, which to strangers are suggestive of the most suggestive dangers.

—The Cincinnati Commercial relates a suggestive little anecdote concerning a quiet, hard-working farmer, well-to-do in the world, named Lock, and living in the neighborhood of Kokomo, Indiana. There came to him, some three months ago, a man professing to be a travelling root and herb doctor, who had with him for a wife a smartish woman, painted like an Indian squaw, who made a practice of telling fortunes, as she knew all about the past, present and future. The doctor was not there to practice so much as to gather "yarbs." After a time the woman informed the farmer that there was concealed on his farm the sum of $100,000 in gold, and that for $5000, which he need not pay till the nugget was found, she would raise it for him. Now, farmer Lock was not so well off that he didn't want more, and the proposition seeming to be a fair one, he proceed to raise the money by mortgage on his farm. With the money in his hand, he went to the tent of the Indian fortune-teller. He had it carefully tied up in a pocket handkerchief. She demanded a count of it to assure herself it was all right, and having satisfied her mind handed back the package to the old gentleman, neatly tied up, as before, with several additional knots in the handkerchief, and the injunction not to untie the knots till the gold had been dug up and placed in his possession. Then the digging commenced, with some incidental jugglery; but before long the neighbors of Mr. Lock became suspicious that he was being practiced upon, and it was determined to untie the handkerchief, which was done, and nothing found in it but a parcel of brown paper, cut into pieces the shape and size of green backs. The woman had juggled the old granger out of his money, and right under his nose. Mr. Lock is looking for that Indian squaw.

—The other day a Vicksburg father, finding it necessary to reprove his son gently said: "Don't stuff victuals into your mouth that way, my son; George Washington didn't eat after that fashion." The boy accepted the reproof without comment, and after pondering awhile, he remarked to himself: "And I don't believe George Washington licked his boy for finding a bottle of whiskey in the shed when he was hunting after a horse-shoe."

—"Taint very easy to stick me on a word in spellin'," said Jonathan Squiggs, in the store the other evening, where the customary group of loungers were assembled. "Let's hear yer spell 'knead,'" said a red-headed man with his mouth full of hard bread that he had taken from a convenient barrel. "Meanin' to knead bread," asked Mr. Squiggs in a tone of scorn. The red-headed man nodded. "K-n-e-a-d," answered Squiggs, in a tone that implied that the red-headed man was wasting his time in putting such simple words to him. "You're wrong," said the red-headed man. "Do you mean ter say," said Squiggs, growing very red in the face, "that k-n-e-a-d don't spell knead—to knead bread?" "I never saw no one knead bread," answered the red-headed man, with a chuckle. "I've seen 'em knead dough, sometimes, though." Squiggs was so mad, because a gentle chorus bearing the refrain "Sold!" was wafted to his astonished ears, that he pranced out of the store in such haste, and slammed the door behind him with such emphasis as to shatter a pane of glass, which he refused to pay for the next day.

—A traveling magician, during Wednesday night, placed the stuffed image of a man on top of a flag-staff in Brooklyn. Pedestrians were horrified in the morning by what appeared to be a man standing on his head, hanging by one foot in mid-air, and assuming all sorts of dangerous positions at a perilous height. At one time he seemed to have lost his footing, and a cry of horror rose from below. Meanwhile the "professor" enjoyed the sport immensely as, unobserved, he pulled the wires from a neighboring house.

—A novel theft was perpetrated by one of the tramp fraternity in Worcester, Mass., a few days ago. The lady to whom the man applied for money replying that she had none, the rascal threw her on the floor, cut off the greater portion of her hair with a large knife, and threatening to kill her if she cried out, ransacked the house, and carried off some five dollars in silver coin and two bank books. The police are after him, but the dealer in chignons has not yet been captured.

—An English gentleman travelling in this country, visited the White House recently, and writes that he was greatly struck with the absence of red tapeism, or anything approaching form and ceremony around the doors of the edifice. No bullying beadles, great in cocked hats and insolent uselessness; no display of stiff and choked soldiery; nothing, in short, to awe the visitor and make him uneasy at the very first onset. He was agreeably impressed with the fact that at last he was in a public office where the institution of circumlocution was unknown.

—Miss Newberry, of Chicago, is at Baden-Baden, and her lovers are legion. She is heiress to $5,000,000.

My Favorite Flute For Sale!

THIS Flute was made in Paris, to the order of a great Flutist, at the cost of $100. The great player subsequently met with pecuniary embarrassment and sold it as a sacrifice to Capt. Moses Hicker of the ship Colorado, then at Havre. I bought it of Capt. R. for $60. The Flute has eight pure and solid silver keys, and one more, on a lower extra joint. It is lined and bound with genuine silver; and is of very sweet tone. Circumstances in a pecuniary view induce me to offer it for sale at only $30.

Centennial Notes.

The Board of Trade Centennial Committee met Friday evening at the Mechanics' Reading Room and considered several propositions looking to a fitting representation of Portsmouth next year at Philadelphia. It was the opinion of the committee that if our ancient borough made a reasonable effort, an effort that should call into lively action the individual interests of our representative men, Portsmouth need have assigned to her no mean position in the line of New Hampshire cities. Surely not. All that is needed is the interest. At any rate Portsmouth must be represented at the Centennial. Why, the time was when the old town was almost New Hampshire itself. At least, a hundred years ago, it was the healthful embodiment of the State's intelligence, public spirit, and patriotism, and we are not willing to believe these three great virtues have so died out as to leave the children's children indifferent to the good name and standing of the dear old city. The next meeting of the Committee, (simply a committee appointed to report to the Board of Trade at its next meeting, December 1st, what it seems desirable to do,) will be held at the Common Council Room, City Building, Wednesday evening, at half-past 7 o'clock, to which the public are invited, particularly the ladies. The committee want suggestions, and the Board of Trade want co-operation and help that an earnest hopeful spirit can proffer.

The spar buoys in the river have been removed and can buoys put in their places. These will not be carried beneath the surface of the water even by the strongest tide.

During the Winter months the Navy Yard steamer Emerald, will run as follows:

Leave the Yard at 8, 8:45, 10 & 11:30 A. M., 1:30, 2, 3, 4, 5, & 5:45, P. M. Returning, leave Portsmouth at 8:30, 9, 11, & 12, A. M., 1:45, 2:30, 3:30, 4:30, 5:30 & 6, P. M.

We are requested to state that a paragraph from a York correspondent relative to the insurance on the Ocean House recently burned at Wells Beach, Me., as published in our columns last week, is utterly without foundation. We think our correspondent was misinformed, as he would not willingly pervert the truth.

A few mornings since we observed a youngster of about twelve years passing along the street, smoking a dirty black pipe, with apparently as much enjoyment as the vilest smoker of a larger growth. He was evidently on his way to school, as he carried his books and slate under his arm. It don't make much difference, though, whether he smokes now or by and by. The boy is no doubt a born smoker and it matters not whether he commences to gratify the desire at twelve or twenty.

The great public is already availing itself of the Richard's Avenue improvement, if we may judge from the crowd which sought that thoroughfare on Sunday. Walking was slow and tiresome, however, the newly gravelled sidewalks not yet being sufficiently hard for easy travelling. The new skating rink, with its house of shelter close by, came in for a good share of attraction and comment, and although a new feature with us—a people pre-eminently fogyish—it will prove to be a place of popular and convenient resort. We wish the Rink a success commensurate with the indefatigable zeal and perseverance of its lady originators and managers.

At the Middle Street Church on Sunday evening last, a large audience attended a concert by the Sunday School, and were entertained by an exhibition tastefully designed and executed. The subject was "Autumn." The altar was decorated with flowers and autumn leaves attractively arranged, and the gallery front, chandelier and gas brackets supported wreaths and festoons of evergreen. A harp of evergreen ornamented the organ. The services consisted of short recitations mainly of scripture and poetry, interspersed with readings in unison in which the whole school joined. The singing was very fine, consisting of solos, quartettes and choruses, and formed an important part of the concert.

A Modern Knight.

[Foster's Dover Democrat.]

The paymaster's train of the Eastern railroad came up to this city, Saturday, to pay off all the employees on this part of the line. Conductor John H. Leavitt was in charge and did the part of paymaster's escort and guard. Fearing that he might fall among thieves who might appropriate the funds and make bad work, certain interested parties at Portsmouth thought they would duly equip the said Conductor against any emergency that might arise. So they appeared unto him in a body and presented him with a gorgeous oil-carpet belt with an enormous buckle thereon, and hanging defiantly therefrom was a great and terrible sheath knife, the blade about a foot long, ground up keen and sharp, and a very ferocious horse-pistol that came down from the Revolutionary period, and sure fire every time, carrying a ball nearly as large as a hen's egg. So he came here armed and equipped like the brave Knights of old who used to start out into unknown countries in quest of adventures. Of course under such circumstances the peace making conductor was prepared to hew his way against all odds and command peace if he had to fight for it. Everybody could see this in his eye as well as in his belt, and the evil minded wisely kept out of his way. The business was all very quietly done and the party returned to Portsmouth without a single blood stain on that broad blade or a single shot from the Revolutionary locker. And now that jolly conductor says he don't believe they are half as bad as represented up there in Dover. He is coming alone next time.

DEATH OF HENRY WILSON.

Vice President Henry Wilson, one of the most honored of our public men, one of the truest and most faithful of the long list of statesmen who have represented Massachusetts, has closed his earthly record.

General Wilson died at Washington in the rooms of the Vice President in the Capitol at twenty minutes past seven o'clock on the morning of November 22.

General Wilson's last moments were peaceful. He passed a quiet night, and awoke only to yield to the last summons. Since his attack of paralysis, which prostrated him for months, he has felt, as he expressed himself to a friend only a few weeks since, that he was "a mipute man," liable at any moment to be called away. The tributes of respect which will be paid to Henry Wilson will bear cheerful testimony to the usefulness of his lohg public life.

—Rome has been shaken to its centre by the trial of one Ricci for the murder of his wife Felomna. She was a girl of surpassing beauty and of goodness. He a lazy, loafing lout, who did nothing for a living, made her support him by hard work, and finally demanded her to embrace an infamous life. This caused separation. Afterward tried reconciliation, got her to walk with him and was about to attempt her murder, when other parties happened along. A third time, coming to her with loving words, when she was at work in a granary under her mother's protection, her eyes lighted with hope and joy, when the demon threw her down, buried a knife in her bosom repeatedly, and fled from the spot. The police caught him red-handed in the forum. Seven months after he was tried, and crowds gathered to hurl anathemas on his head, and the mother demanded his head in open court. He was condemned to death, but appealed, and may prove in his person the truth of the axiom that murder is not punishable in Rome.

—A witty Frenchman remarked that nature makes exceedingly fat men only to show how far the human skin will stretch without breaking.

—"He was born in Maine, but was a native of this country for the last thirty years," is the way a Texas paper winds up the biography of a deceased subscriber.

The Fur Seal.

From Mr. Henry Elliott's report on the condition of affairs in the Territory of Alaska, the following new facts in regard to seals are extracted:

The male fur seal at the age of six or seven years is described as an animal that will measure six and a half to seven and a quarter feet in length from tip of nose to end of tail, and weigh at least four hundred and sometimes as much perhaps as six hundred pounds. The head, in comparison with the immense thick neck and shoulders, seems to be disproportionately small, but as we come to examine it we find that it is mostly all occupied by the brain; the light frame work of the skull supports an expressive pair of large, bluish-hazel eyes, and a muzzle and jaw of nearly the same size and form observed in any Newfoundland dog, with the difference of having no flabby, hanging lip; the upper lips support a white and yellowish-gray moustache, long and luxuriant, composed of heavy stiff bristles.

The forefeet or hands are a pair of dark bluish-black flippers, about eight or ten inches broad. The shape of the flipper is strikingly like a human foot, providing the latter were drawn out to a length of twenty or twenty-two inches, the instep flattened down and the toes run out into thin, membraneous oval-tipped points, only skin-thick, leaving three strong cylindrical, grayish, horn-colored nails, half an inch long, back six inches from these shining toe-ends, without any nails to mention on the big and little toe.

As we look on the fur-seal's progression, that which seems most odd is the gingerly manner in which he carries these hind flippers. They are held out at right angles from the body, directly opposite the pelvis, the toe-ends and flaps slightly waving and curling above the earth. The back, chest and shoulders of a fur-seal bull comprise more than two-thirds of his whole weight, and in this long, thick neck and fore limbs is embodied the larger portion of his strength; when on land with the fore feet he does all climbing over rocks, and hind flippers being gathered up after every second step forward. These fore feet are the propelling power when in water, the hinder ones being used as rudders chiefly.

The females or cows, like the males, vary much in weight, but are much lighter, only weighing from eighty to one hundred and twenty pounds. The strong contrast between the males and females in size and shape is heightened by the air of exceeding peace and amiability which the latter class exhibit. They are from four to four and a half feet in length from head to tail, and much more shapely in their proportions than the male, the neck and shoulder being not near so fat and heavy in proportion to the posteriors. The head and eyes of the female are really attractive; the expression is exceedingly gentle and intelligent; the large, lustrous eyes, in the small, well-formed head, apparently gleam with benignity and satisfaction when she is perched upon some convenient rock and has an opportunity to quietly fan herself."

A Remarkable Voyage.

Some time ago the ship Western Empire was dismasted, became waterlogged and was abandoned two days after leaving Pensacola, Fla. Several of the crew were drowned in endeavoring to land on the coast near Apalachicola. The ship has been found, says the Pensacola Gazette, after a voyage of 500 miles without a crew to guide her movements, and the voyage must necessarily have been one which, had it been accomplished with a man at the helm, would have required much skill to avoid the dangers of the course. She was found at anchor about twenty miles north of Jupiter inlet. At the time she was abandoned both anchors were let go with thirty-five fathoms of chain, in order to act as a drag and bring her head to the wind while the boats were being got out. This resulted in bringing her to a standstill in a frequented ocean pathway and her consequent recovery.

—An Arkansas man ate a pint of sawdust a few days ago, on a bet. An intelligent physician who was called in, told him that he would have pain in his lumbar region if he stuck to such board as that. He will beam more careful in future.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

☞ Those Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are afew of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have been unable to work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. Have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth a hundred, two dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and kidneys. I was unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Company's Messenger. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels and Constipation for years, and is to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00 please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockendale, who are taking it, and have already much benefitted. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

MORRISSEY'S CAREER.

John Morrissey's career shows conclusively what indomitable pluck, energy and fair dealing will do for a man, even when handicapped with such fearful weights as obscure birth, defective education, poverty, and a degrading profession. Born of poor peasant parents in Ireland, he was brought by them to this country when a mere child. His father, "Tim" Morrissey, located in Troy, New York, and earned a precarious living for his family by the commonest laboring work, he being a man of the commonest education and without a trade. Morrissey's mother was also deficient in education and appreciation of its advantages, and consequently her son obtained but a scanty amount of "book larnin'" when a boy. When but a strippling he attracted the attention of a dog fighter named Patsey McCormick, who took him under a sort of patronage, and, though he was not blessed with an over supply of this world's goods, he often found means of assisting the future Statesman when assistance was valuable indeed.

The old inhabitants of Troy tell some very queer stories about the hardships of Morrissey's early life, and it certainly was strewn with more hard knocks than roses. The principal industry of Troy is iron manufacturing, and the men employed in its works have long been celebrated for the perfection of their physique and their prowess. Though as well behaved as the generality of men of their class, they are fond of the manly art, and the younger portion of them are adepts in its mysteries. This was especially the case when the subject of our sketch was a boy, and he was one of the sort who "didn't take water from no one." Many is the turn-up he has had with them just to set at rest the vexed question "who was the best man." It is related that he was never a quick fighter, though he was a saver for all that was out. There were dozens of the lads in his day who could make his face look like a raw beefsteak in ten minutes, but just about the time that he ought to have cried enough, he would turn upon his antagonist with such fury that he would soon be compelled to acknowledge himself a whipped man. An old competitor of his once remarked: "John didn't never seem to know when he was licked, and just as you got tired thumping him, he kind o' got his second wind, an' then you might as well tackle the devil himself as try to make any headway against him." Of the iron industries of Troy, stove moulding is the most important, and in the days of Morrissey's boyhood every moulder had his helper, or "Berkshire," as he was called; and when he was about nineteen years old he became a Berkshire in the Clinton Stove Works, the largest at that time in the world. He soon became a valuable man in the shop, his great strength enabling him to do a great deal of what is called "jackass" work with ease. Among other incidents of his shop life, it is related that he would often, for a small wager, stand barefooted and lift a ladle of molten iron at arm's length breast high, an achievement never before or since accomplished.

After the Steinway Hall tragedy, Morrissey settled down somewhat, and won the affections of Miss Sally Smith of Troy, daughter of a prominent steamboat captain, and the belle of her native city. This was the most fortunate step of his life, for he now began to think of making money. With this object in view, he started a bar-room in Troy. Selling whisky was not profitable enough, however, and he borrowed $500 of Johnny Franklin of this city, and embarked in the faro banking business. While thus engaged, he found time to patronize other forms of sport, and he developed quite a passion for cock fighting. One night, while attending a fight, he got into a quarrel with a man named Heenan and his son Tim, which resulted in his whipping the pair. Heenan had a son in California who had acquired the soubrique of the Benicia Boy, and considerable reputation as a prize fighter. When the Benicia Boy learned of the insult to his kin, he determined to return home and thrash the man who had struck his father. When he reached New York he soon found friends to pit him against Morrissey, and the wife of the latter, having given her consent, a match was made for the championship of America. The battle was fought in Canada, and was one of the most terrible in the annals of the ring. In the first round Heenan broke Morrissey's nose with a blow that would have taken the fight out of half the sluggers in the country; but Morrissey bided his time, and on Heenan's smashing his hand against a stake in the fifth round, he sailed in and put the "boy" to sleep with ease. This ended Morrissey's career in the ring.

About this time he learned that Commodore Vanderbilt had his eye upon a fast horse in New York, but that he hated to pay the price asked for him. Morrissey bought the animal and presented it to the Commodore. Vanderbilt accepted the gift, and took Morrissey into his confidence, advising him to go into the "street" and speculate in stocks. John took the advice, and from the points furnished by Vanderbilt, he soon found himself on the way to a competency. About this time he thought seriously of taking up his residence for good in Troy, and with that object in view, he made overtures for the purchase of a dwelling that faces a private park in that city. The aristocratic denizens of the neighborhood became alarmed at the threatened proximity of a prize fighter, and combined together and purchased the residence before he could complete his arrangements. When Morrissey found this out, he determined on revenge, and through a friend he purchased a lot immediately in the rear of the most elegant part of the aristocratic locality, and on it he erected a loud-smelling soap factory. The outraged aristocrats applied to the courts, but Morrissey's attorneys were clever, and availed themselves of each trick of the law to procrastinate the case, and the result was the soap factory was bought by the aristocrats at a price that made them pay dearly for their exclusiveness. Morrissey then moved permanently to New York city, and as his wealth increased he became anxious for political power and office. Possibly the real, as it was the avowed motive for this desire, was the fact that Morrissey desired to leave his only son a recollection of his parent that would embrace something more than the history of a successful prize fighter and gambler. Be his object what it may, his ambition was gratified, and he was elected to Congress, and it is only fair to say that his career as a member of the National Legislature was marked by honesty and good sense, qualities not altogether undesirable in this class of public servants.

When Vanderbilt took possession of the New York Central, it became desirable to get an idea of his policy before the public, and at the same time have the public believe that the information was obtained accidentally and not made known with a purpose. With that object in view, a reporter of a journal whose editor was in the secret was detailed to interview Morrissey, and extort if possible, the news from him. The scribe was elated over his commission, and succeeded beyond his wildest hopes. When the interview was about at an end, he said to his companion:

"Mr. Morrissey, what is the secret of your success in life? It can't be because you were a prize fighter, for better pugilists than you have died in the poorhouse."

Morrissey scanned his interrogator closely, and then said:

"If I answer, you will not publish it now?"

"Certainly not," was the response.

"Then," said Morrissey, "my word is my bond. I never refuse to help any one who asks for aid, if it is in my power. If I find a man disposed to be my friend I tie to him with books of steel, and if I find a man going out of his way to do me or mine dirt, I go for him until he goes in the hole." Those who know Morrissey best can best appreciate this creed, and it portrays him out and out. He won't lie, he won't steal, and he never turns his back on a friend or a foe. Is it any wonder that he carried the masses with him in a square fight against hypocrisy and deceit? There will be many a Senator in Albany this Winter that might well imitate his example.

Henry Wilson.

The following sketch from the life of the deceased statesman we condense from an article in the Boston Journal of Monday.

Mr. Wilson was born in Farmington, N. H., on the 16th of February, 1812, and he was therefore at his death in the sixty-fourth year of his age. His father's name—and his own until, upon his arrival at manhood, he had it changed to the family name of his mother—was Colbath. His parents were poor and had a family of seven children to support by hard labor; consequently, at the age of ten years, Wilson was obliged to look out for himself and release the others from a share of the burthen and trials of poverty. He met the duty even then with the same promptitude and vigor he was accustomed to display in subsequent years on the broad arena of public life. It is to his lasting honor that he always referred with manly good sense, without either empty pride or false humility, to this period of his life. Thus, in a speech in New Hampshire—in the political campaign, we believe, which resulted in making him Vice President of the United States—he told the story of his early years with a pathos which the simple truth alone could awaken, as follows:

"I feel that I have a right to speak for toiling and to toiling men. I was born here in your county of Strafford. I was born in poverty; want sat by my cradle. I know what it is to ask a mother for bread when she has none to give. I left my home at ten years of age, and served an apprenticeship of eleven years, receiving a month's schooling each year, and at the end of eleven years of hard work, a yoke of oxen and six sheep, which brought me eighty-four dollars. Eighty-four dollars for eleven years of hard toil! I never spent the amount of one dollar in money, counting every penny, from the time I was born until I was twenty-one years of age. I know what it is to travel weary miles and ask my fellow men to give me leave to toil.

I remember that in October, 1833, I walked into your village from my native town, went through your mills seeking employment. If anybody had offered me nine dollars a month I should have accepted it gladly. I went to Salmon Falls, I went to Dover, I went to Newmarket, and tried to get work, without success, and I returned home footsore and weary, but not discouraged. I put my pack on my back and walked to where I now live in Massachusetts, and learned a mechanic's trade. I know the hard lot that toiling men have to endure in this world, and every pulsation of my heart, every conviction of my judgment, every aspiration of my soul, puts me on the side of the toiling men of my country—ay, of all countries. The first month I worked after I was twenty-one years of age I went into the woods, drove team, cut mill logs, wood, rose in the morning before daylight and worked hard until after dark at night, and I received for it the magnificent sum of six dollars. Each of these dollars looked as large to me as the moon looked to night."

He was fortunate in having the friendship of Hon. Nehemiah Eastman, a lawyer and politician, and his intelligent and accomplished wife, a sister of Hon. Levi Woodbury. The library of Mr. Eastman was at his service, and Mrs. Eastman kindly selected the fittest books for his reading. And from the age of twelve to the expiration of his time, Wilson read, in the Sabbaths and evenings—sometimes sitting up all night, and in lieu of oil, using pine knots for light—more than seven hundred volumes of historical and biographical works. We may be sure that this amount of reading, vast even for these times, with their distractions keeping even pace with their greater supplies of books and magazines, was not skimmed over like the popular novels of the day, but was assimulated and reflected upon in working hours, until it became part and parcel of the man.

It was in December, 1833, that Mr. Wilson started on foot and walked to the town of Natick, Mass., with the design of learning to bottom sale shoes. He accordingly agreed with a shoemaker of that place to give him five months' time in exchange for the art and mystery of bottoming brogans. After working on the bargain six weeks he purchased the rest of his time and commenced work for himself. From January, 1834, to May, 1836, he kept so steadily at work that his health was seriously impaired. He allowed himself only five hours for sleep, and frequently worked all night. He was compelled to cease work for a time and went South as far as Virginia, spending four weeks in Washington. This trip doubtless did for him what a similar tour Southward had done for his subsequent friend, Wm. H. Seward; it gave an insight into the system of slavery, and into the political means by which it was upheld, that never ceased till the efforts of both were brought to an end by the destruction of slavery itself. He was particularly fortunate in the time of his visit to the Capitol, for he was in the gallery of the House of Representatives, during this visit, in 1836, when Mr. Pinckey brought forward his Gag resolution, the first of a series of measures designed to put down the growing anti-slavery sentiment of the Northern States. This resolution was forced through the House amidst great excitement, and under the pressure of the previous question. John Quincy Adams refused to vote, and this led to a violent debate, to which Wilson had an opportunity to listen, as well as to another exciting debate on the subject of Texas. This attempt to repress agitation resulted pretty much as all other attempts have resulted, before and since. If, however, it had no other result but to waken the indignation and command the energies of one such man as Henry Wilson, it would have constituted a material point in the history of the country.

Returning to New Hampshire in June, Mr. Wilson entered Strafford Academy, where he continued during the Summer term; he then went to Wolfborough Academy, for the Fall term, and taught school during the Winter in 1837. He attended the Spring and Summer term at Concord Academy and the Fall term at Wolfborough, and in November returned to Natick, where he taught school during the Winter of 1838. In the following April he commenced the business of shoe manufacturing, which he continued until the Fall of 1848, a period of ten and a half years, during which time he manufactured more than half a million pairs of shoes for the Western and Southern trade, employing about sixty hands, and paying out for labor alone during that time more than $130,000.

Nothing short of personal acquaintance could do justice to the simplicity and attractiveness of his character. He never despised a man on account of his being poor, ignorant or of another race. He was always unaffectedly affable, accessible and sincere in his bearing. The reserve, hardening into stiffness, which settles upon so many public characters, had nothing to do with Henry Wilson. Always a moral man, warmly devoted to the cause of total abstinence and every movement designed to elevate his fellow-men. He thus rounded a complete and well-poised character—one to which the young may ever turn for example and emulation.

The Danger of Etherization.

The death of Mr. John H. Hallock, at the Homœopathic Medical College, New York, on Saturday, is a new illustration of the danger of etherization. A tooth ulcerated in the left upper jaw of Mr. Hallock six months ago. To the ulceration he gave little attention; but when, six weeks ago, acute pain to the jaw began to annoy him he consulted a local dentist. The latter said that Mr. Hallock's jaw was diseased, and a student in the Homœopathic Medical College invited Mr. Hallock to the college. Dr. William Tod Helmuth, the Professor of Surgery, found Mr. Hallock suffering with necrosis of the left superior maxillary, or rottenness of the left upper jaw, and decided that it must be removed. Mr. Hallock and his wife appeared in the Homœopathic Hospital on Saturday, the former to be operated upon by Professor Helmuth. A pad impregnated with ether was applied to Mr. Hallock's nostrils, and after a few inhalations he was unconscious. Then he was placed on the operating table, the amphitheatre being occupied by attentive students. Professor Helmuth had slit Mr. Hallock's lip left of the median line, drawn several intervening teeth, and began to extract the decayed jaw, when he observed that Mr. Hallock was dying. The Professor threw aside the knife that he had been using, and, aided by his assistants, Drs. Hill and Thompson, endeavored to save Mr. Hallock's life. But Mr. Hallock died. Professor Helmuth said: "A student introduced Mr. Hallock to me on Saturday, Nov. 13. I perceived that a part or the whole of his left upper jaw was decayed, and should be removed. On the following Tuesday, by appointment, he came to my office. He was extremely nervous, and his heart beat feebly, though normally. His health, he said, had always been good. I told him I would operate on the Saturday succeeding at the Homœopathic Hospital. He came to the hospital, was subjected to the influence of ether, not more than two ounces and a quarter being used, and put upon the operating table. Two physicians assisted me, one marking Mr. Hallock's pulsations and the other administering the ether. I had parted Mr. Hallock's left upper lip, and taken out several teeth, which almost fell out at my touch, when I noticed that his face was purple, the most prominent indication of asphyxia. We tried artificial respiration, friction, inversion, and the galvanic battery, in vain. Two ounces and a quarter of ether is a very small quantity to administer. I have often given a patient in the course of an operation a pound. A man or a woman addicted to the free use of alcoholic liquors incurs a far greater risk in taking an anæsthetic than one who is not. Alcohol, in fact, is given to one who is to be influenced by an anæsthetic, that the influence may be easily established. A person who is easily influenced by an anæsthetic is more liable to death than one who is not."

A lady passenger on a train from Chicago to Pittsburg, Pa., during a recent trip, lost her pocket book. A short time after, a man on the train died suddenly and the body was examined with a hope to find some means whereby he could be identified. The passengers were somewhat shocked when the missing portemonnaie was found in one of the pockets.

—The great showman is going to sell the hippodrome at auction. He says it cost a million dollars, and paid for itself during its exhibitions in New York, Boston and Philadelphia. During the past season it has done little more than pay running expenses and wear and tear. It will be sold in different lots, and any one who wants to buy an elephant, tiger, or other house pet, will find a good opportunity. The proprietor is going out of the show business.

—A very courageous feat was performed by a Norwegian captain named Hansen, in the latter part of October, off the coast of England. His bark, loaded with iron and deals, was badly injured in a fearful gale, and all her pumps were disabled. A smack came in sight, and Capt. Hansen's crew not believing the vessel could live, left him. He refused to leave, hoping to get his bark into Grimsby. He managed, all alone, to set the foresail and mainsail, and to light the side-lights and the binnacle light, and then steered toward the west. He fell down several times from sheer weariness. The cabin was full of water, but he finally succeeded in getting his vessel into port.

—Seven women in Buffalo, who started out on a crusade among the saloons, report no gain for the temperance cause. "We are sent here by Jesus," the leader said to the first barkeeper encountered; and he smilingly replied, "The introduction is satisfactory, make yourselves at home." In another place, after praying, they were invited to drink, and when they declined, the proprietor said, "If you drank more beer you'd have more fat on your ribs." After that they spied a young woman in a German restaurant, and prayed for her in a way that was not complimentary. Her brother, who had left her there while he did an errand, returned in time to hear her characterized in the petitions; and he berated the crusaders so soundly that they went home aggrieved.

—The celebrated Bath bricks, known in almost every commercial market and house as "brick dust," are manufactured from the deposits of the river Parrett, Bridgewater, Somerset, England. As far as known, this peculiar kind of deposit has never been found elsewhere.

—Of the 5,000,000 Jews estimated to be on the face of the globe, 120,000 are assigned to America, 46,000 to France, 300 to Ireland, 25 to Norway. One out of every seven inhabitants of Poland, and one out of every twenty-five of Hamburg, Roumania, and Austria, are Hebrews.

—In consequence of the ravages of the squirrels in the forest of the Swiss canton of St. Gall, the municipality has been compelled to take measures for the riddance of the pest. In the communes of Ragatz and Pfaffers one franc is offered for each squirrel captured, dead or alive.

—The rank and file in the Prussian army are poorly fed and poorly paid. In time of peace the only ration which a private receives daily is coarse bread to the weight of one and a half pounds. His pay amounts to about $4.50 per month, subject to a slight allowance when on garrison duty, and also to a deduction for messing.

—This year's vintage will pour $4,000,000 gold into French pockets. Wine is so abundant in Burgundy that casks fetch $8, or if you will bring two casks to the wine press the owner of the vineyard will fill one if you will make him a present of the other.

—A gentleman in Oakland, Cal., has entered a caveat for a patent for a contrivance by which he proposes to attach telegraph wires to the concave side of the rails on all lines of road, thus doing away with poles.

—A "winter cane" has been invented in Paris for gentlemen only. It is a long, hollow tube, and, before the swell owner goes out on his promenade, it is filled with a chemical preparation which generates heat and keeps the hands warm for hours.

—The Detroit Free Press says the Sartoris baby will be home in time for Christmas dinner. But it doesn't explain whether they are going to have it broiled or roasted.

—If you have a bright thought, express it in the simplest language possible. A diamond should have a plain setting.

—It is the opinion of scientific men that Iceland is fast becoming permanently iced, and will soon be entirely uninhabitable.

—The anti-gamblers and anti-lottery men of Wyoming Territory have raised a fund of $10,000 to aid in preventing a repeal of the laws against gambling.

—A 1000 pound chunk of brimstone from Nevada will be exhibited at the Centennial, to give hope to the wicked.

—Sawn logs have been discovered in California 1300 feet below the surface. Those who saw them didn't see them sawn.

—Portraits show the aspect of persons, but a man's writing is a personal emanation from his mind by the action of his hand.

—Believe nothing against another but on good authority; nor report what may hurt another, unless it be a greater hurt to others to conceal it.

—The most ancient manufactories are said to be the glass works of Venice and Murano, which have an uninterrupted existence of twelve centuries.

—An exchange says that, amid the general reduction of wages in these times, there is one thing whose wages are not in the least reduced, and that is sin.

—A young lady named Bell has just recovered $1200 from a man named Campbell for courting her about nine years, at Loudon, Eng., and then refusing to marry her.

—At the cat show recently held in London was a cat so "important" that ne was served each morning with a smelt fried in eggs, bread crumbs and the wing of a chicken.

—It is estimated that in 420 years America will be without fuel. A good many of us will be dead by that time, and will have no cause to complain of lack of heat.—Detroi Free Press.

—An odd ceremony has just taken place at Berlin. A jubilee has been celebrated in Brockmann's Circus in honor of a monkey which had completed twenty-five years of service.

—The invitations to the ball given in a subterranean chamber in Leavenworth Co., Col., stated that "the dancing would be continued until ten boxes of wax candles had been consumed."

—Nashville (Tenn.) has had a smiling contest, as an adjunct of a Presbyterian Church fair. There were three competitors, young men, and a judge to decide which of them smiled most sweetly.

—A down-country farmer who put in half an acre with turnips last Summer, says they didn't bring him a cent. He should try onions next time. They always bring a scent.

My Favorite Flute For Sale!

THIS Flute was made in Paris, to the order of a great Flutist, at the cost of $100. The great player subsequently met with pecuniary embarrassment and sold it as a sacrifice to Capt. Moses Ricker of the ship Colorado, then at Havre. I bought it of Capt. R. for $60. The Flute has eight pure and solid silver keys, and one more, on a lower extra joint. It is lined and bound with genuine silver; and is of very sweet tone. Circumstances in a pecuniary view induce me to offer it for sale at only $30.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS TO-DAY

Millinery—W. W. Henderson.

Seining Smelts.

Since the passage of the law at the last session of the Legislature, prohibiting the taking of smelts in nets, seines and other similar devices, certain parties in Newmarket and that vicinity, who generally fish with nets on Great Bay, seem not only to pay little regard to our State Laws, but to openly defy them. This present season there have been built several large wears in the Bay for the purpose of catching bass, smelts and other fish that may get into the large pockets of these wears. The result has been that a great quantity of smelts and small bass are taken daily and, in consequence, the small creeks and brooks, which empty into the Bay are entirely stripped, so that where formerly a person fishing in the Fall of the year with a rod could in a few minutes take a dozen smelts, he cannot now in as many hours catch a single smelt. Parties from Portmouth have tried many times this Fall and were unable to catch any. The Winter fishing will be nearly ruined by a few of these lawless seiners and many a poor fisherman will toil in vain this Winter for these delicious fish (which have been gobbled up in this wholesale manner) and will return to his home with quite a small recompense, if any, for his hard day's work. It is but a few years since bass were caught frequently by hook in these waters, but now it is an uncommon thing to catch any, so thoroughly have they been broken up and destroyed with nets and seines within a few years. It is no unusual sight to see, in mild days in Winter hundreds of these fish caught in dip nets in the river where the tide runs strong between Exeter and the railroad bridge, and at some stages of the tide, tons have been caught, weighing from one quarter of a pound to thirty pounds; but during the last Winter the catch was smaller than usual for the reason that the schools have been nearly broken up, and in a few years there will be neither bass or smelts if the wholesale slaughter is permitted to go on.

The following extract from the Laws of New Hampshire passed at the June session in 1875, bears directly upon the subject:

SECTION 1. No person shall take, catch, or kill any of the fish called smelts in the Piscataqua River or in the Great Bay, or in any of their waters or tributaries, with any net, seine, weir, or other instrument or contrivance whereby great numbers of said fish may be taken or destroyed at the same time, under penalty of a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offence, one half of which fine shall be paid to the person who will first give information to the solicitor of the county, or prosecute therefor.

We hope that a stringent law will be passed at the next session of the Legislature prohibiting the fishing with nets and seines, and the building of wears in Great Bay, Piscataqua, Exeter and Sagamore rivers or any of their tributaries, except during the months of April, May and June and then for the sole purpose of taking alewives, and the meshes of the nets large enough to allow a smelt to pass through. There should be a heavy penalty of several hundred dollars fixed for violation of the law and in case the parties are unable to pay the fine they should be sent to the County farm to work it out. It is high time this monopoly of net fishing should be stopped, and we hope any one violating the law will be prosecuted. Every fisherman should keep his eyes upon and complain of any one caught fishing in a manner forbidden by law, and the informer will receive fifty dollars if the parties are convicted. * * *

The Centennial Question.

The action of the Board of Trade in appointing a committee to make arrangements for a proper representation of Portsmouth's interests at the Celebration of our country's Centennial is a move in the right direction and at the right time. We have thought that our people were singularly indifferent to the grand occasion, and wanting in enthusiasm for a cause which all the world honors. It is time that other and younger places have more material contributions to make to the exhibition.

But none of the cities which are to participate actively in the grand celebration contributed more, according to their means than old Portsmouth did to the establishment of our free institutions. Our citizens were as forward in the events which led to the Declaration of Independence and as distinguished in the war which followed, as were the patriots of the proudest city of any of the Thirteen States. The military and naval record of our city fills a bright page in our Nation's history. The early commercial enterprise of Portsmouth was an important element of strength to the struggling patriots of the Revolution. Our gallant sailors participated in every important sea fight in which our infant navy engaged. Our merchant princes contributed their goods, their gold, and in many notable instances sacrificed their lives in their efforts to establish the free country which to-day is the rival of the most powerful nation of the world.

If we cannot send a great variety of machines, agricultural implements, works of art and the products of industry, we can at least send a few specimens of each. At all events let the meeting be well attended, and an earnest effort made to gain for Portsmouth honorable mention among the patriotic cities of the land which our ancestors fought so nobly to redeem. We can send a collection of the works of our Historians, Statesmen, Authors and Poets; the portraits of our distinguished Soldiers, Sailors and Merchants. Many useful and important inventions have been made by Portsmouth men, who doubtless could be willing to have their contributions to the exhibition displayed to the credit of their native city. Several enterprising men among us have already made preparations to have their business interests represented at the exhibition, and doubtless many others are ready to join in the general movement. Let every lady who wants our city represented at Philadelphia next year, attend the meeting to-night. COM.

Fires.

There was a partial fire alarm on Tuesday morning about 3 o'clock, caused by the discovery of fire in a tenement house occupied by Mr. Frank Watkins. The South Ward Room bell rang with its usual vigor for a minute or two, but before the alarm was communicated to the police station, the flames were extinguished and the ringing was stopped.

About half past five in the afternoon of the same day the western horizon was suddenly lighted in the most brilliant manner in the direction of Newington. A general alarm was given and a portion of the fire department started for the scene of conflagration. Upon arriving at the Creek the fire was found to be such a great distance off, that it was thought unadvisable to go further, and only the two extinguishers kept on. The cause of the light was found to be the burning of a barn on the Newington Road belonging to Mr. Clarence Mason. The building, with its contents, was totally destroyed. It contained upwards of fifty tons of hay, mowing machines, hay rakes and tedders, and farming tools of every description. Mr. Mason is positive that the fire was the work of an incindiary, and thinks he can identify a tramp who has recently been seen lurking about the premises, and whom he suspects as the one who committed the deed.

Jottings.

Ladies, dont forget the Centennial Meeting at the Common Council Room to-night.

Write it down. The first snow storm of the season came to hand Tuesday, Nov. 23. Would it were the last.

The fifth annual ball of the Wolfe Tone Club occurs to night at Congress Hall. The members of this well-known association have made arrangements for a well conducted and attractive Ball, which they will no doubt realize.

Turkeys, geese and chickens fatted for Thanksgiving, and many that are not fatted, will fill the market to-day. Impecunious venders will hold the market up for a while, but times are hard and prices must rule in accordance therewith. So don't buy too early in the day.

Through the liberality and kindness of heart of two well-known gentlemen of this city, the managers of the Seamen's Home will have an ample supply of fish chowder on Thanksgiving day, which they will be able to dispense to any applicant at the rate of ten cents per quart, or fifteen cents for two quarts. Here is an opportunity for those of our good people who have been favored with a large share of this world's good to see that none of our poor are allowed to want for a dinner of chowder on Thanksgiving day. Ten, fifteen or thirty cents will serve a good purpose, expended in this way.

—When a New Jersey burglar saw that a woman whose house he was plundering was awake and watching him, he called out: "Hang me if I will be guilty of robbing as homely a woman as you are!" and he left.

—Female trade "drummers" have made their appearance at the West. They are piquant, audacious, and fascinating, and hundreds of business men are not returning to their families as early in the evening as usual.

—It is not work that kills men, it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more upon a man than he can bear. Worry is rust upon the blade. It is not the revolution that destroys the machinery, but the friction.

—Richard Grant White is mad, and in his last Galaxy article accuses editors of "cynicasterism." Richard is a parellelopipedon.

—Miss Kimberly, a poor music teacher of Newark, N. J., wrote the very popular Sunday-school hymn, "I want to be an angel." She is one now.

—Fechter has had another fall. He stepped upon an insecure platform apon the stage of the Walnut Street Theatre in Philadelphia, the other night, and fell a distance of fifteen feet. He was considerably hurt, and narrowly escaped being killed.

—Three sharpers managed recently to ride from Omaha to Chicago on one ticket. They took seats at some distance from each other and established communication by means of a string run along the outside of the car, on which, after giving up his ticket, No. 1 sent his check to No. 2, and No. 2, after showing his check, forwarded it to No. 3.

—A series of meetings of female artists desirous of mutual improvement, and who hope to gain by the criticisms of a qualified painter, is announced to be held at the ensuing season at the gallery of the Society of Lady artists, London. It is proposed that pictures which are in progress for exhibition, by female painters, should be brought together, and their merits and shortcomings pointed out, and advice for avoiding errors proffered to the artists.

—During the last eight months there have been shipped from England firearms to the value of £321,629, and gunpowder, of various grades, worth £243,282. Don Carlos, the Emperors of China and Japan, and the Khedive, have taken the largest quantities.

Daily Chronicle.

A woman named Mrs. Jane Sutherland —familiarly known as "Big Jean"—is now living in Upper Barney's River, who is now aged 120 years—a fact of which the old lady herself makes us sure. She was born in the parish of Clyne, Sutherlandshire, Scotland, and since her emigration to this county has resided in her present place of abode, where she reared a large family, the youngest member of which is now an old man. Mrs. Sutherland can still readily converse in the good old Gaelic tongue, and her hearing is but slightly impaired. She still plies her daily labors on the old Scotch spinning wheel, and is as good as many a woman a century younger. Longevity seems a prominent trait in her family, for her brother, John Sutherland, Keltie, who died about seventeen years ago, was over 115 years old, and his wife, who died shortly afterward, was but a little younger. The united ages of this couple were 230 years.

—One of them was about 11 years old, and wore the stump of a cigar in his mouth, and no shoes on his feet. The other wore a straw hat with a "ragged edge," and a stone-bruise on his heel, and about 12 summers had passed over his tangled locks. This was the conversation: "That bass I cocht weighed more'n 2 pounds." "I bet a thousan' dollars it didn't." "I betcher five thousan' dollars it did—cum now." And neither boy looked as if he had five hundred dollars in his pocket, but appearances are deceitful.

—In Syracuse, a lady while waiting for the street cars, stepped into a store doorway on Salina street to escape the wind, and while standing there the occupants of the store left, locking the door behind them, and unknowingly catching the dress of the woman in the door. Upon attempting to leave, the lady found herself fast, and she was compelled to remain there over an hour, while her husband and others were hunting up the proprietor of the establishment.

—An aged corn doctor named McFleming, who pretended to be in dire poverty, died at Locust Gap, Schuykill County, Ohio, a few days ago, and about $25,000 were found concealed about his person. As he had no known relatives, the money was turned over to the directors of the poor.

—The late Deacon Higgins of Elizabeth, N. J., willed $25,000 to his daughter Phœbe because she had discarded her lover and married another man to please her father. Now she has run away with her own love, $15,000 and her oldest boy.

—Mrs. Davy, of Tennessee, pretended she had been drowned, just to see what her husband would do. He hired a cheap negro to drag for the body, and went to his corn-field at his usual pace.

—New mode of dispersing a mob has been discovered—said to supercede the necessity of a military force—it is to pass a contribution-box around.

—When a citizen of Rochester is blown into the dreamy hereafter by a kerosene lamp explosion the gas company officials grimly remark: "Comes o' fighting agin honest monopoly."

"A REPOSITORY OF FASHION, PLEASURE, AND INSTRUCTION."
Harper's Bazar.
ILLUSTRATED.
Notices of the Press.
The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.
The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gown. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. . . . It has acquired a rare position, and one the freshness of which it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.
In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and squibs, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Invention, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and experienced practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more able, conscientious and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration of the Patent Office."
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, and has been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as no one will be found having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood.
☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1854, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:
Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 5, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past I have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.
BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one or two testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pair, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.
MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months at a time to pick up any article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you that day. I got five packages of Pills before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I send $1.00 to pay for them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much better than ever. Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
In the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Spikenard, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Lowest Premium is $2.10.

Each Fraction must draw this sum.
All Fractions will be good with $15.00 to purchase a whole $30.00 Bond.
This is a chance for a fortune, and no chance for loss.
A $20 Bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn one of the following premiums.

$100,000.

$21, $50, $100, $200, $300, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $35,000, $2100,000.

The Bonds issued by the Industrial Exhibition Co., are a copy of the European Government Loans. The Bonds are a safe investment.
PEOPLE OF SMALL MEANS
Can find no better or safer investment No chance of loss. A fortune may be acquired
On December 6th - - - - On January 3rd.
PURCHASE NOW.
How to Purchase.
In person, or by certified Check, or Express, or Postal Order, or Draft, or enclose greenbacks in a registered letter, to, and made payable to the Industrial Exhibition Co.
The funds raised by sale of these Bonds, will be applied to the erection of a Crystal Palace, which every American will be proud of.
Recollect, the Industrial Exhibition is a legitimate enterprise, chartered by the State of New York.
Its Directors are the best citizens of New York.
It has had seven drawings since July, 1874, and paid out in principal and interest, $750,000.
Any one obtaining a premium, the company pledges itself not to make public.
This enterprise is simply a new form of bond; in no sense is it to be recognised as a lottery.
There are no blanks. Be sure and purchase at once.

$5	will buy a	Fraction for	December 6th, 1875.
$25	" "	Quarter Bond for	Jan. 3rd, 1876.
$10	" "	Half Bond	" "
$20	" "	Whole Bond	" "

All Bonds are exchangeable into city lots in the suburbs of New York City.
Each Bondholder is regarded as an honorary member of the Industrial Exhibition Co., and is welcome at the Parlors of the Co., No. 12 East 17th St. Agents Wanted.
All communications and remittances to be made to the Industrial Exhibition Co., 12 East 17th Street, between 5th Ave., and Broadway, New York City.
My business is that of giving the Bond-holders of the Industrial Exhibition Co., full and complete information as to the progress of the Company, and a complete list of the drawings. An Illustrated Journal will be published, viz:
The Industrial Exhibition Illustrated,
Subscription One Dollar per Year.
Any one sending a club of 15 subscribers, with $15, will be given a Premium of one Fraction or ¼ Bond, club of 27 subscribers, a ½ Bond; club of 50 subscribers a whole Bond. Address,
INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION ILLUSTRATED,
12 East 17th Street, New York City.
$60 Will purchase 13 Fractions.

"The very best ladies' magazine published."—Seneca Falls (N. Y.) Courier.
☞ CHEAPEST AND BEST! ☜
Peterson's Magazine
POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.
☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large-sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜
"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.
Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately illustrated.
THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!
The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments, stories, &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its
THRILLING TALES AND NOVELETTES
are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.
MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES
ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.
N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

A CONSTANT READER.

BY PARMENAS MIX.

The overworked scribe of the "Mudville Gazette"
Sat wondering,—mouseless wight,—
If his office would ever be cleared of its debt,
With the times so deplorably tight,—
When the sound of old leather was heard on the stair
And a stranger stepped into the room,
Who asked with the "don't let me bother you" air,
Which the bore is so apt to assume—

"How are ye?" The editor rose with a smile
And pleasantly yielded his chair—
Placed the visitor's sadly unbeautiful tile
(Which exhibited symptoms of wear)
On the top of the desk, alongside of his own
(A shocking old plug, by the way),
And then asked in a rather obsequious tone,
"Can we do anything for you to-day.

"No—I jest called to see ye"—the visitor said;
"I'm a friend to the newspaper man"—
Here he ran a red handkerchief over his head,
And accepted the editor's fan—
"I hev read all the pieces you've writ for your sheet,
And they're straight to the p'int, I confess—
That 'ar slap you gin Keyser was sarcinly neat—
You're an ornyment, sir, to the press!"

"I am glad you are pleased," said the writer, "indeed;
But you praise me too highly, by far—
Just select an exchange that you're anxious to read,
And while reading it, try this cigar,
By the way, I've a melon laid up for a treat
I've been keeping it nestled in ice,
It's a beauty, sir, fit for an angel to eat—
Now, perhaps, you will relish a slice?"

Then the stranger rolled up half a dozen or more
Of the choicest exchanges of all—
Helped himself to the fruit, threw the rinds on the floor,
Or flung them at flies on the wall.
He assured his new friend that his "pieces were wrote
In a manner uncommonly able"—
As he wiped his red hands on the editor's coat
That hung at the side of the table.

"By the way, I've neglected to ask you your name,
Said the scribe as the stranger arose;
"That's a fact," he replied, "I'm Abimalech Bame,
You have heerd o' that name, I suppose?
I'm a-livin' out here on the Fiddletown Creek
Where I own a good house and a lot;
The 'Gazette' gets around to me wunst every week—
I'm the constantest reader you've got!"

"Abimalech Bame," mused the editor, "B-a-m-e—
(Here his guest begged a chew of his 'twist')—
"I am sorry to say your mellifluous name Doesn't happen to honor my list!"
"'Spose not;" was the answer—"no reason it should,
For ye see I jine lots with Bill Prim—
He's a reg'lar subscriber and pays ye in wood,
And I borry your paper o' him!"

—"Bric-a-Brac," Scribner's for December.

Two Notable Hindoo Show Places.

The nearest parallel to the rock of Trichinopoly to be found in Great Britain is the rock at Dumbarton. Both rocks are natural fortresses, and have an eventful history. To the Hindoo, however, the rock of Trichinopoly is something more than Dumbarton is to a Scotchman. It is one of the favorite resorts of the vengeful Siva, and the Tamilian poet, Tayumanavar—who, like the most distinguished of his confreres, was considered to be the human avatar or incarnation of a deity—made it his home. From the small cut stone temple on the summit of the rock, a matchless view is to be obtained of the broad plains that spread on either side of the rivers Cauvery and Coleroon, which at the time of the prince's visit will be in fair flood. From this spot the prince will look down on the battle fields of Clive, and the historic island of Srirangam, which has the reputation of being the most fertile portion of the most fertile part of India.

At night, when the town, rock, and the great temple-tank which lies at the foot of the rock are illuminated, a thing done now and then in honor of distinguished visitors, the sight of innumerable lamps lighting up the huge crag, and outlining it in fire against the sky—the whole being doubled in beauty by the perfect reflection in the water of the tank below—is one which those who have once seen it are not likely soon to forget. The chief religious as well as secular authority on the rock is the tambiran, or high priest. This man's own natural hair is more than seven feet in length, and he will now and then, as a favor to visitors, unwind it and stand upon it, and allow its genuineness to be tested. The tambiran is an astute metaphysician, and travels about the country in a costly palanquin, almost entirely composed of carved ivory. During his stay at Trichinopoly the Prince will be pretty certain to be escorted to the famous island of Srirangam, across the Cauvery bridge, which is about as long as that across the Menai straits.

There is no need in this place to speak of the pagodas of Srirangam at length, of its gray towers, the fantastic carvings, the exquisitely chiseled sculptures, the court of a thousand pillars, with its sacred monkeys, or of the great temple jewels and treasures of Srirangam. This collection chiefly consists of ornaments for the adornment of the god, the Kristna Avatar of Vishnu, on especial occasions. There are armlets and necklaces, and breast plates and crowns, all set with gems—diamond and ruby, and emerald, topaz and opal, and sapphire and pearl. One necklace of emeralds, rubies and diamonds, with pearl pendants, is computed to be worth six lakhs of rupees (£60,000.) The god has several umbrellas with covers of pearl network, and one of these bears, according to estimation, 125,000 small but extremely clear-colored pearls. Amongst the treasures are huge vessels of purest gold, under the weight of which the attendants who show them to the few that are allowed to inspect the temple treasures, stagger as they bring them into the show chamber. The mace of the god is a mass of gold sheathed for the greater part by large flat diamonds.

It is impossible to estimate the intrinsic value of the Srirangam gems. They are badly cut, and some of the largest emeralds rubies and diamonds are scarcely cut at all. Yet some, wretchedly cut as they are, emit a surprising lustre. There are several hundreds of huge pear-shaped pearls, but these again are bo ed through the centre; and this, although it may enhance the value of the gems in the Hindoo's eyes, naturally lessens their value in the estimation of an European jeweler. The Srirangam pagoda received a valuable gift of a portion of these jewels, a very few years ago, from a peculiarly holy ascetic.

This man, a Brahmin, vowed that, for ten years he would not eat a morsel of food or drink a drop of water on any day that he did not receive for the god a donation of 100 rupees (£10). He was, at first, frequently nearly starved to death, but such a devotee was not to be lost to the faith. The pious rallied around him, and, at the end of the stipulated term, he presented the temple with a magnificent necklace of emeralds and rubies and other ornaments, worth in all upward of $25,000. This story may be taken cum grano salis, but in the main it is believed to be true.

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1875.

News and Notes.

Government has been asked to interfere in Liberia matters.

William B. Astor died in New York, on the 24th.

At the city election at Dover, Tuesday, Edward P. Hodsdon, republican, was elected Mayor by 218 majority. The republicans also elected 7 Aldermen and 11 Councilmen to 1 Alderman and 5 Councilmen, democratic.

The City Solicitor of Dover is in trouble. The police found him drunk on the street on Saturday night and took him to the station, where he was locked up to await trial on the following Monday. Not liking the underground quarters for a Sunday night's lodging, an officer went with the worthy Solicitor and routed His Honor Judge Ward out of his warm bed to see what he would do about it. The Judge kindly permitted the unfortunate Solicitor to go home on bail until Monday when he was brought to the same Court that bailed him, and find $2 and costs. It is a strange case, and what makes it all the more inexplicable, is the fact that the Solicitor is a democrat.

The Express in its weekly review of the corn trade says: "Rain has indefinitely postponed much of the autumnal sowing in England. With the bad condition of the samples and continued large imports, many markets are a shilling cheaper, but farmers are reluctant to accept lower rates even for poor samples. When foreign arrivals slacken, as soon they must and rents are paid, better trade at more favorable prices seem likely. It appears that the French reports have been too favorable. No sowing has been done in some districts. This had hardened the price of wheat in Paris and the provinces, although flour is somewhat cheaper. Prices in Belgium are firmer and in Holland stationary. In Germany the markets are inactive and generally unchanged, although at Danzig and Vienna and in Hungary quotations are rather lower. The Russian markets show no change."

An extraordinary story has been made public respecting the alleged seizure in broad daylight, the arrest and incarceration in the Tombs, and transfer to Sing Sing of a young man named Schwarz, whose case was recently brought before the N. Y. Assembly Committee on Crime. The story was considered so improbable that, after investigation, the matter was dropped three days ago. Additional facts, however, have appeared which are deemed to be of sufficient importance to warrant further inquiry into the case. Immediately after Schwarz's return from Sing Sing the case was put into the hands of a lawyer, who after some investigation turned it over to the Committee on Crime, and Messrs. Townsend and Weed took the matter in hand. Schwarz was able to identify several persons in the Tombs and at Sing Sing, but these persons either cannot or will not identify him. He describes his companion in the cell in the Tombs, and investigation confirms his statement of such a person having been in such a cell at the time mentioned. He attributes the alleged outrage to the fact of his being an important witness in a case in which the damages were laid at $3000. The case was one of assault on a woman, in which two Bohemians were charged with the offence. Schwarz states that at the time of his seizure several persons saw him, but that no notice was taken of his outcries because he could not speak English. A reward is now offered for any witness of the seizure who will come forward and testify.

Thad. Stevens' Housekeeper.

The housekeeper of Thaddeus Stevens is suing the estate for $200 per year for services since his death, although she was remembered in the statesman's will to the amount of $5,000. During Mr. Stevens' life rumor was busy with his name in connection with this same housekeeper. She had been in his house for many years, and her control over household matters was almost absolute. She must have been a very pretty woman in her younger days, if the picture I have seen of her at that period in any way resembled her. The painting referred to was executed by an artist of more than ordinary merit, and represents a woman with lithe, yet temptingly rounded figure, whose small head, dark skin, lighted by color, and lustrous, flashing dark eyes, shaded by marvellously long lashes, suggests the innoculation of the Spanish blood which she claims she inherits from her mother's veins, but I suppose there is no disputing the fact of her father's African origin. This handsome girl was endowed with all the craftiness and insinuation incident to her mother's nationality, while the peculiarities of her father's temperament were by no means wanting. She now lives in Washington, keeping a boarding house, which is furnished with carpets and articles brought from the Pennsylvania homestead. Handsome mirrors, heavy old rosewood furniture, velvet carpets, damask curtains, an old-fashioned piano elaborately inlaid, all are relics either given or taken from the house over which she held sway for so many years.

Mr. Stevens left several hundred dollars in the bank to one Louis and his wife, both old servants of the household. The housekeeper engaged both trusting old souls to come with her to Washington, promising to pay Louis $14 per month in the capacity of dining-room servant, and his wife $10 for her services as cook. Years have passed, and the only remuneration for labor performed vouchsafed this simple-minded couple was their clothing and the purchase of bare necessaries and the payment of doctors' bills for incidental illnesses. When remonstrated with upon such a course of conduct, their mistress said, in her soft-voiced, soothing way, but with a venomous sparkle to her black eyes, "You know Louis is very improvident, and rather too fond of his glass of grog. If I paid him every month his money would all be spent for drink, and then what would the poor wife and children do? So I put their money in the bank for them, merely deducting the amount of their current expenses, and one of these days, when they are too old to work, they will have enough, with the money Mr. Stevens left them, to build a comfortable little shanty, and spend their old age in peace and quiet."

Walt Whitman and the Poe Celebration.

Walt Whitman was the only popular poet at the Poe monument dedication. He hobbled upon the platform, but when asked to make a speech he replied: "I have felt a strong impulse to come over and be here to-day myself in memory of Poe, which I have obeyed; but not the slightest impulse to make a speech, which my dear friends, must also be obeyed." In conversation after the ceremonies, he is reported by the Washington Star as saying: "For a long while, and until lately, I had a distaste for Poe's writings. I wanted, and still want, for poetry, the clear sun shining, and fresh air blowing—the strength and power of health, not of delirium, even amid the stormiest passions—with always the background of the eternal moralities.

Non-complying with these requirements, Poe's genius has yet conquered a special recognition for itself, and I, too, have come to fully admit it, and to appreciate it. Even my objections draw me to him at last; and those very points, with his sad fate, will make him dearer to young and fervid minds. In a dream I once had, I saw a vessel on the sea, at midnight in a storm.

On deck was a slender, slight, beautiful figure, a dim man, apparently enjoying all the terror, the murk, the weirdness and the dislocation of which he was the centre and the victim. That figure of my lurid dream might stand for Edgar Poe, his spirit, his fortunes, and his poems—themselves all lurid dreams."

A Legend of Servian Hospitality.

The proverbial hospitrlity of the Servian is illustrated by the following legend: The day had just departed, and the moon shone brightly over bare fields of snow, when a stranger entered the hut of a poor Servian named Lagare. "You are welcome," said Lagare, and, turning to his wife, continued in a low tone, "Luibitga, make the fire blaze and get the supper ready." Luibitga replied, "The forest is vast and the faggots burn cheerly on the hearth, but where is the supper; have we not fasted for two days?" "Are you Servians," said the stranger, "and have nothing to give your guest?" Poor Lagare opened one cupboard, then another, but both were empty, not a morsel of bread nor a fruit did they contain. Shame and confusion took possession of him. "Here is food and fresh meat too," said the stranger, laying his hand on the golden curls of Tanka, the only child of his host. "It shall never be said, then, that a Servian was wanting in hospitality," cried Lagare, and, seizing Tanka, he cut her throat as if she had merely been a lamb. After performing this awful deed he swooned away, and Lubitiga fell to the ground with a loud cry. Who could describe the supper of the stranger? Toward midnight Lagare woke to find his guest bending over him, who said in a loud tone: "Rise, Lagare, I am the Lord thy God. Servian hospitality has been tried and not found wanting. Thy daughter is restored. Abundance and peace shall reign in your house evermore. Lagare, Lubitga, Tanka, live long and prosper!"

—The opening meeting of Messrs. Moody and Sankey in Philadelphia on Sunday appears to have been a success of the most pronounced character. A raw, wet morning and the absence of the horse cars on the thoroughfare, the ice decidedly the damps that welcomed the evangelists, while the afternoon meeting seemed a renewal of the scene around the Brooklyn Rink. Ten thousand persons were there, and every seat was taken by the time the doors were closed and Mr. Moody began to preach. It was so dark, owing to the lowering skies, that all the chandeliers were lighted. While the audience was gathering two doves flew in on open window and perched upon a beam. Some one in the front of the hall observing them said: "Behold the messengers of good tidings." The arrangement of the hall to adapt it for the purpose of monster meetings could scarcely be improved. It is surrounded on three sides by broad vestibules communicating with the adjacent streets. Twelve doors lead from these vestibules to the audience-rooms, which can thus be filled or emptied in a few minutes without confusion. The afternoon meeting was appointed for four o'clock. Notice was given in the morning that the doors would be closed promptly at that hour, and that if the President of the United States should come a minute later he would not be admitted. Crowds began to assemble long before the appointed hour, and the great auditorium was filled in a few minutes after the doors were opened. Probably 15,000 people in all sought admission in vain. Added to the 10,000 inside, they would make 25,000 persons drawn out by the second meeting of the evangelists. The same order of exercises was observed by the revivalists as at the Brooklyn meetings. Moody's sermons and Sankey's songs were well received as usual, and the interest and feeling manifested by the audience was all that the evangelists could desire to encourage them in their works.

—Barnum's big elephant Betsy, now wintering at Bridgeport, Conn., became dissatisfied with her narrow quarters in the barn where the animals are confined, the other night, and made up her mind to sally forth into a wider arena. She accordingly snapped the ropes and chains that bound her, walked out of her stall, and after promenading up and down for a few minutes, marched to the cage of a young Bengal tiger, upset it and turned the occupant loose. The tiger got scared and was easily recaptured. The elephant, however, seemed to be spoiling for a fight, and tackled a locomotive and knocked down a couple of men who undertook to capture her. Dozens of men then surrounded the huge beast, and after prodding her with pitchforks they succeeded in getting Betsy in harness.

—A striking instance of the fatal power of drunkenness to accomplish the ruin of a once respectable family was seen at Denbigh, in Wales, recently, when John Simon, the parish clerk, was found dead in his chair in the kitchen. At the time of the inquest his widow was so drunk that she could not give her evidence. In their house there was no bed nor bedclothes, and the parents with their five children were obliged to sleep in one room on rags stuffed with shavings.

—A shocking tragedy has occurred on board the Siamese ship Queen of England on her voyage from Hong Kong to Bangkok. A native seaman, while in a state of madness, murdered the chief mate and attacked the Captain. The man then threw overboard the compasses, chronometers, charts, etc., and broke up the furniture of cabin. The crew made an attempt to seize him, and he thereupon jumped overboard, and was not seen again. It is stated by the Captain that the seaman was suffering from a disease, a species of ringworm, which invariably occasions insanity.

—In Russia the Winter appears to have set in with unwonted severity. As early as October 20, the street traffic was conducted almost entirely on runners, the snow being deep enough and hard enough for sleighing, and travel by tramway had become well-nigh impossible.

A Glimpse of Gabriel Conroy.

(From Bret Harte's new Serial Story in Scribner's.)

It was raining. Not in the usual direct, honest, perpendicular fashion of that mountain region, but only suggestively, and in a vague, uncertain sort of way, as if it might at any time prove to be fog or mist, and any money wagered upon it would be hazardous. It was raining as much from below as above, and the lower limbs of the loungers who gathered around the square box stove that stood in Briggs's warehouse, exhaled a cloud of steam. The loungers in Briggs's were those who from deficiency of taste or the requisite capital avoided the gambling and drinking saloons, and quietly appropriated crackers from the convenient barrel of the generous Briggs, or filled their pipes from his open tobacco canisters, with the general suggestion in their manner that their company fully compensated for any waste of his material.

They had been smoking silently—a silence only broken by the occasional hiss of expectoration against the hot stove, when the door of a back room opened softly, and Gabrial Conroy entered.

"How is he gettin' on, Gabe?" asked one of the loungers.

"So, so," said Gabriel. "You'll want to shift those bandages agin," he said, turning to Briggs, "afore the doctor comes. I'd come back in an hour, but I've got to drop in and see how Steve's gettin' on, and it's a matter of two miles from home."

"But he says he won't let anybody tech him but you," said Mr. Briggs.

"I know he says so," said Gabriel soothingly, "but he'll get over that. That's what Stimson said when he was took worse, but he got over that, and I never got to see him except in time to lay him out."

The justice of this was admitted even by Briggs, although evidently disappointed, Gabriel was walking to the door, when another voice from the stove stopped him.

"Oh, Gabe! you mind that emigrant family with the sick baby camped down the gulch? Well, the baby up and died last night."

"I want to know," said Gabriel, with thoughtful gravity.

"Yes, and that woman's in a heap of trouble. Couldn't you kinder drop in, in passing and look after things?"

"I will," said Gabriel thoughtfully.

"I thought you'd like to know it, and I thought she'd like me to tell you," said the speaker, settling himself back again over the stove with the air of a man who had just fulfilled, at great personal sacrifice and labor, a work of supererogation.

"You're always thoughtful of other folks, Johnson," said Briggs admiringly.

"Well, yes," said Johnson, with a modest serenity, "I allers allow that men in California ought to think of others besides themselves. A little keer and a little sabe on my part, and there's that family in the gulch made comfortable with Gabe around 'em."

Meanwhile this homely inciter of the unselfish virtues of One Horse Gulch had passed out into the rain and darkness. So conscientiously did he fulfil his various obligations, that it was nearly one o'clock before he reached his rude hut on the hill-side, a rough cabin of pine logs, so unpretentious and wild in exterior as to be but a slight improvement on nature. The vines clambered unrestrainedly over the bark-thatched roof; the birds occupied the crevices of the walls, the squirrel ate his acorns on the ridge pole without fear and without reproach.

My Favorite Flute For Sale!

This Flute was made in Paris, to the order of a great Flutist, at the cost of $180. The great player subsequently met with pecuniary embarrassment and sold it as a sacrifice to Capt. Moses Hicker of the ship Colorado, then at Havre. I bought it of Capt. R. for $60. The Flute has eight pure and solid silver keys, and one more, on a lower extra joint. It is lined and bound with genuine silver; and is of very sweet tone. Circumstances in a pecuniary view induce me to offer it for sale at only $30.

Thanksgiving.

The lapse of another year once more introduces us to our time-honored Thanksgiving day, a day that every New Englander celebrates with scrupulous loyalty, and an occasion to which every native American boy or girl looks forward to with delight. In the misty memories of our boyhood there stands forth, bright and clear, the pleasant scenes that clustered around Thanksgiving day. The large organ of alimentiveness, which is rarely lacking in the healthy boy, was always held in abeyance by the sight of scores of pies whose generous makeup covered the whole range of the pie vocabulary from pumpkin and squash down to the cheap rice pie. Then the turkey and the stuffing, cranberry sauce, plum pudding with its sauce, all seemed so royally delicious to the palate, that it was with no little difficulty, oftimes, that the unoffending stomach disposed of what was thoughtlessly sent down into it. Cider to drink, with nuts, apples, and raisins to fill the pocket, an opportunity to go on a gunning excursion, perhaps, crowded the day so full of enjoyment that one was fairly glutted with pleasure, and made to wish Thanksgiving could be spread out to cover a whole week.

Now, how is it? Well, we are looking at life from an entirely different stand point, as the ministers say. All the pleasures that delighted us then are on the other side of the picture. The reverse side that we view at the present time is painted in sober colors. There is in some of its outlines, tints of sadness, shadows of the unwelcome messenger, whose grim tread has stolen in upon us and borne away those whom we tenderly loved—promises unfulfilled, vows broken, days and weeks of misspent time, all of which help give the picture a sombre tinge that would well nigh approach a melancholy hue, were it not lighted up by the rays of a bright hope that the future may retrieve all these broken threads and that the web of our lives may be repaired by steady and persistent endeavors to bless and help our fellow-men.

And this Thanksgiving day offers itself as one of the opportunities for thus fulfilling such a purpose. The injunction to "do unto others as ye would that they should do unto you," may be appropriated and acted upon by many of us, affording a pleasure to the doer, of a character less material than those of our boyhood days, but far more substantial and abiding. We are thankful for these annual reminders of our blessings, and rejoice that the day has become so permanent an institution, one that is deeply rooted in our hearts; and may the good old custom of bringing the poor into special remembrance on those occasions, not only be retained, but grow into greater favor, so that it will be in truth a day of Thanksgiving to every needy fellow-creature.

Can You Skate?

If the weather is cold enough this morning the ticket-holders in the Rink will find splendid skating. Although there are many improvements to be added, the arrangements are even now most attractive, rendering the Rink a perfectly safe and exceedingly agreeable place of amusement. It is to be hoped that this opportunity of learning to skate will induce ladies and gentlemen to learn to skate who have hitherto been deficient in this accomplishment. In a neighboring town where a Rink was established, the first winter was employed in learning to skate. But the next winter exhibited a rink full of graceful and skillful skaters. The prospect of having the Rink enlarged to twice its present size is very flattering. Only a few more tickets left at Preston's. ***

Jottings.

No paper will be issued from this office on Friday morning.

Carl Schurz, to-night! The tickets are fifty cents each, and can be had at Preston's and at the door. Doors open at 7 o'clock, lecture commencing at 7:30.

On account of the ill health of Chief Justice Foster the session of the Circuit Court on Monday adjourned to Monday next.

The Dashaway, which was raised after being sunk outside the harbor, is being thoroughly repaired by Mr. Ralph Davidson, at Newcastle.

The Thanksgiving collections for the poor, taken in several of our churches on Sunday, were larger than usual, and many a heart will be made glad thereby.

The subject of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie's lecture next Sunday evening will be "Parental Responsibility in the Formation of Character."

Those who are fond of a good fish chowder will have an opportunity to obtain a supply to-day, at the Seaman's Home, foot of State Street. Families supplied at 10 cents per quart, 30 cents a gallon.

Among the recommendations of the lighthouse board we find the following item:—"For a keeper's dwelling for a light station on the Isles of Shoals, $6000." The present structure is in a somewhat weak state, and the recommendation is a wise one.

The Union Praise Service at the North Church this morning, at half-past 10 o'clock, will doubtless be very interesting. There will be no sermon, but singing will form prominent feature, interspersed with short talks of only one or two minutes. The Middle Street Baptist choir will sing the opening voluntary, after which the congregation will sing appropriate familiar hymns, from the praise circular. "Hold the Fort" will be sung also. The Thanksgiving Proclamation will be read by Dr. Alden. The pastor of the church will pay a brief tribute to the character and life of our lamented Vice President Hon. Henry Wilson, after which the patriotic hymn America will be sung as a tribute to his memory. Every one will be welcomed and invited to join in this service of praise.

The pastor of the Unitarian Church (whose heart is ever open to the wants of the poor) gave notice on Sunday last that at the morning service on Thanksgiving day, the articles brought for distribution would be given after the old English custom of the Harvest Festival, from which the idea of this holiday originated, and as was the custom in ye olden time, he invited his people to decorate the chancel of the church with different varieties of grain, etc., in fact to deposit there any products of the harvest, such as fruits and vegetables, to be distributed after the service to the poor. No doubt the needy will have abundant reason to bless the thoughtfulness of the pastor. Subject of sermon, "Thanksgiving for Nature."

—Mr. Bright, in writing to a Birmingham gentleman on the subject of funeral reform, recommends for imitation the practice of the Society of Friends. Nothing, he says, could be more simple, and nothing could be better. He regrets, however, that the wearing of mourning has of late been rather increasing with "Friends," among whom are many who apparently cannot comprehend and do not value the principles on which the practice of their forefathers was based.

—A Kentucky paper claims that Fayette county has brought more money into the State from her stock, has exported to breeders more blooded stock, and imported more of the first and purest blooded stock than has any other county in America, or than has any territory of the same size in the known world.

—The proprietors of a furnace in Vinton county, Ohio, by using a patent separator for working and cleaning coal, have succeeded in producing an excellent article of coke from the hill coals found in that region. The consequence is that the experimenters expect to produce by the use of this fuel a superior quality of iron at a reduced cost.

—A certain colored deacon, on occasions of missionary collections, was wont to shut his eyes and sing, "Fly abroad, thou mighty Gospel," with such earnestness and unction that he would quite forget to see the plate as it came around. "Oh, yes!" said the plate bearer, but just you give something to make it fly."

Prompt Reinforcement.

When the physical energies are overtasked or flag through weakness or disease, they need prompt reinforcement. Renewed vigor is most speedily supplied through the medium of a tonic stimulant, and among medicinal resources of that class. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters assuredly deserve a pre-eminent place. Weakness, whether constitutional or arising from disease or over-fatigue, cannot be better compensated for than by a resort to this prime strengthening cordial. The enfeebled invalid, the convalescent and the aged and infirm find that it is an unfailing source of vigor and comfort. Its combined tonic and alterative properties also constitute it an invaluable remedy for indigestion, weakness of the organs of urination, constipation, torpidity of the liver, and many other irregularities and disabilities, and render it an invaluable protection against malaria, as well as disorders of the stomach and bowels.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

Sudden Changes in the Weather are productive of Throat Diseases, Coughs and Colds. There is no more effectual relief to be found, than in the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

"Throw Physic to the Dogs; I'll None of It."

We do not in the least feel like blaming Macbeth for this expression of disgust; indeed, we are rather inclined to sympathize with him. Even nowadays most of the cathartics offered to the public are great, repulsive looking pills, the very appearance of which is sufficient to "turn one's stomach." Had Macbeth ever taken Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets he would not have uttered those words of contempt. It is really encouraging, when one is ill, to find that a little sugar-coated Pellet, no larger than a grain of mustard, will as promptly produce the desired effect as a dose of great, nauseating pills. These little Pellets, unlike other cathartics, are really nature's physic. They do not debilitate, but tone and invigorate the system. No family should be without Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.

RATTAN WARE MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz. a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

The Egg Dance in India.

[Scribner for November.]

A much more pleasing performance, and one which might, perhaps, better have been mentioned in connection with the exploits of the juggles, is the "egg dance." This is not, as one might expect from the name given it, a dance upon these fragile objects. It is executed in this wise: The dancer, dressed in a corsage and very short skirt, carries a willow wheel of moderate diameter fastened horizontally upon the top of her head. Around this wheel threads are fastened, equally distant from each other, and at the end of each of these threads is a slip-noose, which is kept open by a glass bead. Thus equipped, the young girl comes toward the spectators with a basket full of eggs, which she passes around for inspection to prove that they are real and not imitations. The music starts up in a jerky, monotonous strain, and the dancer begins to whirl around with great rapidity. Then seizing an egg she puts it in one of the slip-nooses, and, with a quick motion throws it from her in such away as to draw the knot tighter. The swift turning of the dancer produces a centrifugal force which stretches the thread out straight like a ray shooting from the circumference of the circle. One after another the eggs are thrown out in these slip nooses until they make a horizontal aureole or halo about the dancer's head. Then the dance becomes still more rapid, so rapid in fact that it is difficult to distinguish the features of the girl; the moment is critical; the least false step, the least irregularity in time, and the eggs dash against each other. But how can the dance be stopped. There is but one way,—that is, to remove the eggs in the same way in which they have been put in place. This operation is by far the more delicate of the two. It is necessary that the dancer, by a single motion, exact and unerring, should take hold of the egg, and remove it from the noose. A single false motion of the hand, the least interference with one of the threads, and the general arrangement is suddenly broken, and the whole performance disastrously ended. At last all the eggs are successfully removed; the dancer suddenly stops, and without seeming in the least dizzied by this dance of twenty-five or thirty minutes, she advances to the eggs, which are immediately broken in a flat dish to prove that there is no trick about the performance.

—"You will observe, from this word pater" said a schoolmaster to his pupil, "the great flexibility of the Latin language. Pater is a father; and here we have patrunis, an uncle; and propatrunis, a great uncle, on the father's side. Can you make any such change in our language? Pater, patrunis, propatrunis—father; is there any way you can change father into uncle in English?" "I don't think of any," replied young hopeful, "unless you can get him to marry your aunt."

—The man who is curious to see how the world could get along without him can find out by sticking a cambric needle into a mill pond, and then withdrawing it and looking at the hole.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Especial attention made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse.

CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent, capable and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be assured of the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

JOHN TAGGART."

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Hamilton Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful wrappers, and embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and sonnets, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

RE-OPENING OF THE BAY STATE HOUSE,
ON THE
European and American Plan.

The Bay State House, situated on Hanover street, is but a few minutes' ride from the Northern and Eastern Depots, having undergone thorough and expensive repairs, with the addition of new and spacious dining-room, a fine Billiard Hall, and several suites of private parlors, together with new furniture and carpets, and the introduction of all the conveniences of a first-class house, making it one of the best houses in Boston, was OPENED OCTOBER 18TH, 1875, under the management of FRANK S. BROCKWAY, long known in Boston and elsewhere as an accomplished and successful landlord. None but good servants will be employed, and no pains spared for the comfort of guests.

Coaches run past the house every few minutes to various parts of the city, and near all places of amusement.

Coaches will be at the depots and boats to convey passengers to the house.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but could get no good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Bangor Journal. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Reedsdale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

The Country Gentleman

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1876.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN possesses an unequaled staff of correspondents, in every State and section, among the Best Farmers of All Parts of the Country, and constantly reflects the practical condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United States and civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives in its Horticultural Department a continuous variety of information and suggestions, equal to or superior in its kind to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce and disseminate Improved Stock of every kind through the country; and commands to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of breeders and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN contains unusually full and trustworthy Market Reports, and devotes great attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN embraces numerous minor departments of a practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and so on, each forming a column or two for the Housewife and an interesting variety of Fireside Reading. It contains a well-edited Review of Current Events, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

BLUE LAWS OF CONNECTICUT.

Whosoever says there is a power and jurisdiction above or over this dominion, (but God's) shall suffer death and loss of property.

The judges shall determine controversy without jury.

No priest shall abide in his dominion. He shall be banished and suffer death on his return. Priests may be seized by anyone without a warrant.

No one shall be a freeman or give a vote unless he be converted and a member in full communion with one of the churches allowed in the dominion.

No Quaker shall vote, and no food or lodging shall be afforded him.

No one shall run on the Sabbath day, or walk in his garden or elsewhere, except reverently to and from meeting.

No one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds, sweep house, cut hair, or shave on the Sabbath day.

No woman shall kiss her child on the Sabbath or fasting days.

To pick up an ear of corn growing in a neighbor's garden, shall be deemed theft.

When an accused refuses to disclose his confederates, he shall be racked.

Whoever brings cards or dice into this dominion shall pay a fine of one pound.

A debtor in prison having nothing shall be let out and sold to make satisfaction.

Whoever sets fire in the woods and it burns a house, shall suffer death.

Adultery shall also be punished with death.

No one shall play any instrument of music except the drum, trumpet, or jews harp.

No gospel minister shall join people in marriage, as the magistrates may do it with less scandal to Christ's church.

Fornication shall be punished by compelling marriage, as the court may direct.

A man that strikes his wife shall be fined 10 shillings; a woman who strikes her husband shall be punished at the direction of the court.

No man shall court a maid in person without obtaining consent of her parents; 5f shillings penalty for the first offence, 10 for the second, and imprisonment during pleasure for the third.

Married persons must live together or be imprisoned.

Every male shall have his hair cut round according to a cap.

The Sabbath shall begin at sunset Saturday.

All owners of bulls and turkey cocks are ordered to shut them up on Sunday.

—An English country gentleman had a small son who, having been early taken about the stables and the kennels and initiated into their secrets, had become quite a baby expert in all matters pertaining thereto, and quite ready to give his opinion as to horse or a litter of pups with as much serious certainty as though, instead of being a child, he were an old and hardened sportsman and fancier. The country gentleman had the good fortune to be presented with twin daughters by his wife, and the boy, after his usual round among the animals, was taken to see these creatures as they lay in their cradle. The child looked at them gravely, pulled their legs, pinched their arms, opened their eyelids, and, after a moment of reflection pointing to one of the two, said, "Keep this one."

—One Corbin, a saloon keeper in Westerville, Ohio, who was made the subject of the most persistent attention from the crusaders and their allies during the late temperance crusade in that State, after a prolonged contest in the courts, has at last come out triumphant. He had been prayed with, cried over, threatened, mobbed, his license revoked, his windows smashed, his liquors spilled, his saloon set on fire and blown up on various occasions, but all in vain; and now he has procured a decision from the Court of Common Pleas reversing a judgment of the Mayor's court of Westerville, saddling a heavy bill of costs upon his persecutors, and establishing the great moral principle that no village council in the State of Ohio can by ordinance prohibit the sale of beer.

—A little girl whose parents took her on a visit to a neighboring city, attended church while there and witnessed the communion service. On her return from church some one asked if she had been to Sunday School. "No," said she, "they didn't have any Sunday School, but I guess they had every thing else; any way, they passed around whiskey and cheese!"

—"Eva, did you hear that lady's name that's come to see mamma?" "Yes; Mrs. Able." "I wonder if she's the mother of those two boys mother told us of. And one of them was naughty, you know, and killed his brother?" "What nonsense, Eva! Why, that happened ever so long ago? If she's anybody, she must be their grandmother."

—Stuart Robson, the actor, is said to have a habit of biting his finger-nails. He also has a small daughter. The dear child deliberately pared her finger-nails, and in the innocence of her heart approached her comical progenitor. "Papa," said she, "here are some finger-nails for you to eat."

—"Was the crowd tumultuous?" inquired one man of another who had just come from a mass meeting. "Too multuous," replied the other. "Oh, no! just about multuous enough to comfortably fill the hall."

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1875.

The Dover Election.

The republicans of our neighboring city achieved more than an ordinary triumph at the recent election. The democratic legislature of 1874 so gerrymandered the wards that a democratic minority should elect just half of the city councils, and the republicans with a majority of several hundreds were obliged to exert themselves to poll a full vote to retain control of the city. At the first election after the change of wards had been made, Hon. Edward P. Hodsdon, the republican nominee, was elected Mayor by only 61 plurality, receiving 814 votes to 753 for Tash, democrat, and 67 for Abbott, prohibitionist, the combined democratic and prohibitionist vote being 820, or six more than Mr. Hodsdon's vote. As few persons who hold the office of Mayor in any city are as popular at the close of their first term as at its beginning, there were grave fears among republicans throughout the State that Dover might pass into democratic hands when Mayor Hodsdon came up as a candidate for re-election. But the result proves that the fears indulged in were entirely groundless. The Reform Club, composed of men who had experienced sadly the evils of intemperance, and who had been reclaimed by the noble efforts of Messrs. Horne, Loyne and others, became a powerful element at the polls and largely assisted in the re-election of the worthy Mayor, who received 969 votes, Mr. Tash obtaining 749, four less than in 1874. Mayor Hodson, therefore, is no longer a minority official, but has the handsome majority of 220 to point to as an indorsement of his official acts.

The republicans of the second ward, hitherto democratic, made an astonishing gain, electing their three candidates for aldermen and three of their six candidates for councilmen, by majorities ranging from one to thirty. The Enquirer says that with a little stronger effort the whole ticket might have been chosen. In the fourth ward they came within six votes of defeating Councilman O'Neil, the only Irish citizen elected. The democrats are largely indebted to the Irish vote for their supremacy in that ward, but only want to use them as voters, never as candidates, cutting their names freely, last year and this.

The average republican majority in the city is 800. The democrats have but one of the eight aldermen and but five of the sixteen councilmen, the republican majority on joint ballot being twelve. The vote for Mayor by wards was as follows:

	I	II	III	IV	Total
Hodsdon	154	347	411	57	969
Tash	95	398	171	87	751

All honor to the republicans of Dover, who have made such a glorious record and encouraged their brethren throughout the State. Let the city of Keene rid itself at the coming election of its democratic Mayor, and with Governor Cheney once more as the standard bearer the republicans will sweep the State from Rockingham to Coos, and convince democratic tricksters who steal Senates and rely on midnight frauds for majorities, that the people are solemnly and relentlessly in earnest in rebuking their villainies.

Boston & Maine Railroad.

The annual report of the directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad exhibits the result of the operations of the road for the twelve months ending September 30, 1875, as follows:

The gross receipts for twelve months ending September 30, 1875, were.....		$2,288,740 18
Operating expenses, exclusive of taxes	$1,422,781 57
Taxes paid in all	98,340 30
		$1,522,561 77
Leaving as net earnings for the year....		$766,178 41
Interest and coupons paid during the year.....		$298,199 93
Leaving a balance of.....		$467,978 48

The gross earnings of the twelve months ending September 30, 1874, were $2,421,-799 27; and the expenses for the same time, including interest coupons and taxes, $1,-794,444 34; showing a decrease in the gross receipts of the present as compared with the previous year of $33,059 09, and in the operating expenses, including interest and taxes, of $13,683 14. The net income for the year ending September 30, 1874, after paying interest coupons and taxes, was $627,354 43, showing a decrease in the net income of the present as compared with the previous year, of $19,375 95.

The floating debt of this corporation has been reduced during the year $527,849 69, and stood, at the close of business, on the thirtieth day of September, 1875, at $373,-659 39. The same has been further reduced, since the closing of the accounts, by the payment of maturing liabilities amounting to $125,000. At the date of this report the whole floating debt of the corporation is $248,659 39.

Concerning the cheap trains for workingmen, the report says that they have shown no profit but an actual daily loss, and that unless they prove remunerative after a fair trial they will be discontinued.

News and Notes.

It has been discovered that of the eighteen men who have been chosen Vice Presidents of the United States, four have died before the expiration of their term of office,—George Clinton, April 20, 1812; Elbridge Gerry, Nov. 23, 1814; William R. King, April 18, 1853, and Henry Wilson, Nov. 22, 1875.

Hampton boasts of an artist of no small merit. Miss Clara Dodge, daughter of the late Capt. J. W. Dodge, while residing on the top of Mt. Washington, the past Summer, was engaged in painting pictures of mountain scenery. Some are done in oil on birch-bark, others on canvas. Miss Dodge is not only an artist by nature, but has had good advantages for the cultivation of art.

Vice President Wilson's funeral services at Washington on Friday were conducted at the Capitol. The face of the dead was still calm and beautiful in its dignity and repose, but in the last two days it had greatly changed. The hand of death was more marked, and the signs of approaching decomposition were manifest. The services were conducted in the Senate chamber by Rev. Dr. J. E. Rankin, and a funeral train took the body to Philadelphia. The train will leave New York to-night at nine o'clock for Boston.

The Faculty of Dartmouth College are arranging a plan for representing the college at the Philadelphia Exhibition. Samples of students' work will be sent, and other methods of showing the workings of the college will be employed.

The Nashua Telegraph says that in that city the Government has been a loser by the law increasing the postage on third class matter. One firm which had paid the post office over $3000 on matter of this class for fifteen months previous to the present law into effect, has not since paid more than $200 on the same class of matter. But what has been a loss to the Government has been a gain to the express companies.

For eccentricity at the late elections in Baltimore, several gentlemen have had introductions to the grand jury. It is said that some of them will receive appointments to the Penitentiary.

There was a town and gown riot in Cambridge, England, on the night of Nov. 8. The disturbance was begun by some undergraduates at a crowded promenade concert given in New Corn Exchange, and the police being called in to expel the offenders, a fight took place which ended in seven or eight members of the university being arrested. The riot was continued outside, and an unsuccessful attempt was made to storm the temporary lock-up in the Guild hall and rescue the prisoners. At a late hour the streets were full of a noisy mob of university men and townsmen.

Mr. Wilson is the second Vice-President from Massachusetts who has died in office. Elbridge Gerry being the other, his death having occurred on the 13th of November, 1814. Hannibal Hamlin is the only Senatorial survivor of Vice-President Wilson's first appearance in the Senate.

The people in the vicinity of Great Bay report that the oyster beds are very extensive, growing better as the water deepens, and no boundary being yet reached. On the first day of this month one man obtained thirty bushels, which he sold for thirty dollars. Their flavor is excellent, similar to the Providence River, and so large that the meat must be cut before the most practiced gourmand can swallow one. They are in water about ten feet deep.

The Aldine is such an excellent periodical that the public will be glad to learn that with the New Year it is to be issued fortnightly instead of monthly. It is designed to give more attention to art than heretofore, and a notable feature will be monthly letters on this speciality from the leading American cities.

The Vice-President's last utterances on politics were made on Saturday, and are given by the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun. The elections in Ohio and Pennsylvania, in his opinion, determined the question of the next Presidency. That a republican succession could only be defeated by the most utter folly of the republican party itself; that everywhere there was evidence of the return to the party of those who went off in the liberal movement; of this fact he had sufficient evidence in the numerous letters he had received during the past year from leading liberals. He expected in the next campaign to see the party thoroughly united. He said that the people would never be willing to intrust the administration of the executive of the Government to one who had been arrayed against it by voice or service, and that this was the record of every person named for the democratic nomination. He said that the security and perpetuation of the Union were the paramount issues in the minds of the people, and that this would override questions of currency, church and State, public schools, and all else.

The handkerchief which contained the missing portions of the body of Josie Langmaid has been found at Pembroke, not far from the scene of the murder. The handkerchief was empty, its contents having probably been devoured by some animal.

Mr. Chandler has ordered additional removals to be made in the Interior Department. Some of the prominent clerks, who have already been deposed, threaten to use great political influence to secure their reinstatement. To these Secretary Chandler has replied, that if they undertake this the causes of their removal will be made public. There is the best authority for the statement that Mr. Chandler, in his reorganization of the Department, has discovered the existence of at least four separate and independent rings composed of clerks which, if not oath bound organizations, had all the efficiency of such organizations and exercised similar terror over their members. Some of these rings have gone so far as to appropriate and mutilate the records of the office, and all of them have used public information for private gain. One of them has established a bank, to lend money to fellow-clerks at usurious rates. The members of these organizations have held secret meetings, and have pledged the joint political influence of the assistants to the support of any member of the combination whose place might be imperiled.

There is one very mad man in Oconto, Wisconsin. He was a candidate for the legislature, and being too high-toned to who was elected by one majority. He is disgusted with politics.

The proud gonfalon of the rag baby still floats, and its friends obstinately refuse to haul it down. Indulging in prophecy, the Cincinnati Enquirer says: "The substance, the spirit, the essential features of the Ohio platform will be adopted by the National democracy. It gained for us in this State 55,000 votes in a year. The New York bullionists' contraction platform lost 30,000 votes to the democratic party in that State in an equal length of time. The Ohio doctrine, understood, has behind it the majority of the people of the country. It rises out of the elections of this year more triumphant than the democratic declarations of any other State. It is not dead, nor does it sleep."

Nearly every able-bodied democratic voter in Mississippi appears to be a candidate for the U. S. Senate.

The republican press is unanimous in the conviction that the democratic majority in the next Congress will succeed in putting its foot in it so handsomely that the election of a republican President next year will be mere play. It must be admitted that history furnishes abundant ground for this belief.—N. Y. Tribune.

The official vote of Oregon gives Lane, democrat, for Congress, a majority of 267.

Schurz' "Centennial Thoughts."

If the audience in attendance at the lyceum lecture by Carl Schurz, Thanksgiving evening, were satisfied with the ideas presented to them by the distinguished Ex-Senator from Missouri, they must have been equally disappointed in the delivery. Reading from manuscript dwarfs the magnetic effect that oratory is expected to produce, and even Carl Schurz, though yielding largely to the temptation to grumble, failed to meet the anticipated success looked for. His theme was a good one, but his thoughts were of a melancholic origin. Splenetic at times, when he half apologetically claimed that treason to the party that elevated him to the Senate was excusable in the light of manly independence, he yet uttered many truths which were not cheerful to the thinker. It is true that extravagance, immorality, dishonesty and kindred evils abound in the United States, as elsewhere. But Mr. Schurz kept resolutely out of sight the fact that it is poor human nature that is at fault. It is pitiable as he pictured it that but few public men rise above selfishness, and though primarily meaning well, eventually find their integrity demoralized by the distribution of official favors to those who have aided them, some being notoriously incompetent. Yet it is a nice distinction to draw the dividing line between gratitude, or selfishness, and duty—difficult to discern the exact time when divergence toward the wrong end commences.

The politician, often the statesman, is satisfied to take things as they are, rather than waste time in the herculean and hopeless task of reforming the Nation. At best, the action of the noblest statesman is frequently subordinated to the will of an ignorant, willful and uncharitable majority, who regard their votes as property to be disposed of, not for the good of the commonwealth, but for their own self-interests. Carl Schurz can but realize this condition of things, which could not have escaped his eye during the contest which gave him a Senatorial seat. It is evident from the very condition of things that corruption must be inherent where the highest officers in the Government are subject to the whims and caprices of the lowest classes. Carl Schurz and all men who love integrity and esteem honor as the highest of attributes may regret the existence of those evils, but all the combined efforts for reform will be but temporary successes. A monarchy may render statesmen honest and dutiful to the Government, because of lack of temptation, but we hardly think Mr. Schurz prepared to abandon the poorer and untitled classes for the sake of higher attainments and more conspicuous virtue for the few. If Mr. Schurz attempts to carry out his suggestions, he will find the political millenium afar off. The only feasible plan to improve matters is to educate the lower classes to a higher standard of morality, and for one Mr. Carl Schurz failed to do so when in public life. The chastened mind often sees more clearly the dangers of the present and the future, and we trust that Mr. Schurz' recent admirable conduct in opposing inflation and repudiation, on the stump in Ohio, is only an earnest of an intention on his part to pursue a straight-forward cause which will bring him ultimately the satisfaction that a good conscience warrants. To reform human nature to the standard of the gods is a task though however well wished is yet beyond the ability of anything less supreme than those same gods.

My Favorite Flute For Sale!

THIS Flute was made in Paris, to the order of a great Flutist, at the cost of $100. The great player subsequently met with pecuniary embarrassment and sold it as a sacrifice to Capt. Moses Ricker of the ship Colorado, then at Havre. I bought it of Capt. R. for $60. The Flute has eight pure and solid silver keys, and one more, on a lower extra joint. It is lined and bound with genuine silver; and is of very sweet tone. Circumstances in a pecuniary view induce me to offer it for sale at only $50.

Thanksgiving Services.

The Union service at the North Church was well attended, and the published programme was carried out with considerable enthusiasm and satisfaction. Rev. Carlos Martyn was selected to pay a tribute to the memory of the deceased Vice President, and accordingly delivered the following eulogy:

"This is Thanksgiving day. I cannot doubt that we all have individual reason to be grateful for countless benefactions to the 'Giver of every good and perfect gift.' Surely, we can each exclaim with the psalmist; 'The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage.' Fit is it, therefore, that we should thus come together both to say and to sing: 'Bless the Lord, Oh, my soul, and all that is within me, bless his Holy name': who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; who redeemeth thy life from distraction; who crowneth thee with loving-kindness and tender mercies; who satisfieth thy mouth with good things; so that thy youth is renewed like the eagles.' Such utterances find their warrant in blessings received.

But to-day we have one special and common occasion for thanksgiving. I am persuaded that at this time, when we are first met as an assembly of citizens since the death of the Vice President of the United States, we are under obligation to be thankful for the now rounded career of Henry Wilson. It does seem as though that noble life was prematurely ended. And yet not so. God granted him life long enough to complete his transcendent mission. And how crowded his days were with good feeling, with great thoughts, with high actions, with holy experiences!

Henry Wilson, like Abraham Lincoln, was at once the creature and the type of our institutions. No other nation could have produced just such a man,—with the possible exception of England. I except England, because I have seen Disraeli, the Jew, the child of a race more hated than the negro, mount to the premiership in that country. But our statesman was a natural, and not, like Disraeli, an abnormal, issue. The free and open arena, the standing opportunity, the institutional invitation sent broad cast to such men to reveal themselves and make a public career,—these are peculiar to our soil, and they form our national glory.

The Vice President was cradled in our own New Hampshire. He was the child of poverty. He began life an illiterate mechanic. By inherent power, he expanded from a son of New Hampshire into a son of continental America. By industry, he built up his fortunes into an honest and frugal competency. By self-cultnre, he educated himself into fitness for his illustrious station. Great by virtue of original endowments, he was greatest in his moral character. Henry Wilson and principle were twins. On every question, and whatever might be the exigency of a party, you are sure to find him in alliance with what he believed to be the right. Sometimes he made mistakes. But his were errors of the head, not of the heart, of perception, never of intention.

In the tumultuous days gone by, how grandly he stood there in the Senate, the representative of the toiling millions, the wise, bold champion of the slave, the friend of the imperiled Union, the open enemy of fraud, the eager advocate of honest money, He was an unsmirched man. All through the recent terrible demoralization in Washington, he was like Bayard, "without fear and without reproach." In an atmosphere miasmatic with corruption, when the pestilence of dishonesty was slaying many and strong characters, he exemplified David's description of the righteous man; "A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousands at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee."

We may well remember, too, to-day, and in this Union service of evangelical churches, that Henry Wilson was a consistent Bible Christian, an evangelical church member. There is no scene in his historic life, rich as it is in picturesque episodes, that is finer, as I think, than that last night which he spent with his departed wife's little book of hymns,—'The changed Cross,' in his hand, tremulously feeble, while his eyes devoured and his heart responded to the Gospel truths there put into verse.

And what a fit place for the Statesman to die in,—that room at the Capitol, adjoining the chamber where he won his fame! Truly, he fell in the arena. He died at the post of honor.

Thanksgiving day, you know, originated in the devout recognition by our fathers of God's goodness in the harvest. Ah, but the chiefest harvest of a nation is its sons and daughters. Well, therefore, may we give thanks to-day for the ripe fruitage of the harvested career. New Hampshire cradled him, Massachusetts adopted him and gave him to immortal fame. Oh, happy States! rejoice in this your joint contribution to industry and honesty and well-doing and devotion to the public weal. Oh, great Republic! look forgivingly upon his failings, and make his virtues all your own."

Immediately after Mr. Martyn's remarks, the congregation sang "America," the effect of which was pleasant as well as powerful. An hour or less was then devoted to brief remarks from those who desired to publicly express themselves in regard to the occasion which called them together, the speeches being of a style resembling that of what is known among the Methodists as a "love feast." The novelty of the services made them quite interesting and perhaps profitable.

At the Unitarian church on Thanksgiving, the desk, altar and font were finely decorated in a very unique manner, with nearly all the products of the harvest—fruits, vegetables, which were sent in in abundance by the parishioners, and after services were distributed among the aged, sick and needy members. The font was transformed into a tall sheaf of wheat, surmounted by a golden pumpkin, while traces of corn festooned the desk; rich baskets of grapes and pears, and piles of rosy apples, were thickly strewn around, with heaps of vegetables.

Jottings.

It is surprising what an amount of favors are asked of newspaper managers by persons who never advertise and are not subscribers. If there is to be future reward in heaven for courtesies extended without expectation of thankfulness or reciprocation from the recipients, the editorial fraternity will monopolize a large share of the first attentions due those who unselfishly performed kind acts and cast their bread upon the waters in this earthly existence.

Naval Constructor Philip Hichborn, U. S. N., is detached from this Navy Yard and ordered to the Naval Station at League Island, after reporting at Washington Yard, for temporary duty, on the 15th of December. A more popular gentleman and naval officer was never connected with this Yard.

The second annual Ball of the Apollo Club, Thanksgiving Night, was a very enjoyable affair to spectators and participants, the ladies appearing in elaborate toilets and dresses. The gentlemen composing the Club, Messrs. Arthur G. Pfeiffer, Chas. W. Varrell, Chas. N. Thompson, John N. Hazel, Chas. F. Akerman, Augustus N. Wells and Michael Crowley, may be congratulated on their annual successes. The scene from the gallery during the opening march was a brilliant one, and the inspiriting music of Harlow's orchestral band kept the nimble dancers from their beds until nearly five o'clock in the morning.

Hon. Frank Jones has purchased a team of valuable horses from Albert Mathes, of Exeter, to assist him in representative duty at Washington this Winter. Rumor has it that Mr. Jones gave his handsome team, which he valued at $1000, and $2000 in cash besides, for the Mathes horses.

The Portsmouth Skating Rink management won't let its patrons transfer their tickets, but vouchsafes the privilege to any gentleman purchasing two tickets of asking a different lady every day to accompany him to the rink; for they say they have "no wish to shut down on mild flirtations or varied pleasures." How considerate!—Concord Patriot.

The Mechanics' Association of this city with ladies are to hold a social levee at the hall in their block on Monday evening Dec. 6th.

The New Hampshire Board of Agriculture are to hold a series of farmers meetings in Rockingham County during December. They will hold free public discussions on agricultural topics at the hall of Portsmouth Grange, over Craig's insurance office on Congress street, on Wednesday Dec. 1st, day and evening, at ten, two and seven o'clock. The public, including ladies, are invited.

The following model charge to the jury was delivered by Judge Foster, at the Circuit court last week, in a case that had occupied nearly a day in trying: "Gentlemen —I think there has been talk enough about this case. If you have any reasonable doubt as to whether this man is guilty, you will say, by your verdict, that he is not guilty; otherwise you will say that he is guilty.

The special United States taxes paid on distilled and fermented liquors in Portsmouth amount to about $200,000 per annum.

The second of Rev. Mr. Martyn's special discourses will be given on Sunday afternoon. Subject: "What the Empty Pews Say."

Long Wharf has again assumed a business look under the management of Morris Tredick, Esq. The buildings have all been repaired and the old tumble-down shed has been replaced by a new one, with apartments for carrying on all branches of the fish business. Mr. Tredick has cured a large amount of fish this Fall, for which he finds a ready market as soon as they are dried, as do all Portsmouth cured fish. He has employed a steam dredging machine and is digging the mud from his docks, increasing the depth of water so that vessels can unload in any of his stores.

Subject at the Mission, Sabbath evening, "The Hebrew captive," a cordial invitation is extended to all. Service to commence at seven o'clock P. M. "Dare to be a Daniel" will be sung during the evening.

Charles Brown, who hails from Boston, was arraigned before Judge Page on Friday for an assault on Sergent Dellinger of the receiving ship Sabine with intent to kill. Judge Page deeming the evidence sufficient to hold Brown ordered him to recognize in the sum of $800 for his appearance at the Circuit Court in April next. The attacks on marines and citizens are becoming too frequent, and the Judge proposes to hold all who may be brought before him and the case proven in sums sufficent to bring them before the grand jury.

The Whole People as with one voice, proclaim HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR the sovereign and infallible remedy for Coughs, Colds, and all Bronchial difficulties. It is the National Specific for pulmonary disease.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute.

"The sale of Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is rapidly increasing, and it will soon become a household word. It sells far in advance of any other remedy on our shelves." Smith, Doolittle & Smith, Wholesale Druggists, 26 Tremont street, Boston.

Prompt Reinforcement.

When the physical energies are overtasked or flag through weakness or disease, they need prompt reinforcement. Renewed vigor is most speedily supplied through the medium of a tonic stimulant, and among medicinal resources of that class. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters assuredly deserve a pre-eminent place. Weakness, whether constitutional or arising from disease or over-fatigue, cannot be better compensated for than by a resort to this prime strengthening cordial. The enfeebled invalid, the convalescent and the aged and infirm find that it is an unfailing source of vigor and comfort. Its combined tonic and alterative properties also constitute it an unfailing remedy for indigestion, weakness of the organs of urination, constipation, torpidity of the liver, and many other irregularities and disabilities, and render it an invaluable protection against malaria, as well as disorders of the stomach and bowels.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

Sudden Changes in the Weather are productive of Throat Diseases, Coughs and Colds. There is no more effectual relief to be found, than in the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

"Throw Physic to the Dogs; I'll None of it."

We do not in the least feel like blaming Macbeth for this expression of disgust; indeed, we are rather inclined to sympathize with him. Even nowadays most of the cathartics offered to the public are great, repulsive looking pills, the very appearance of which is sufficient to "turn one's stomach." Had Macbeth ever taken Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets he would not have uttered those words of contempt. It is really encouraging, when one is ill, to find that a little sugar-coated Pellet, no larger than a grain of mustard, will as promptly produce the desired effect as a dose of great, nauseating pills. These little Pellets, unlike other cathartics, are really nature's physic. They do not debilitate, but tone and invigorate the system. No family should be without Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.

A Fragrant Breath and Pearly Teeth

Are easily attained, and those who fail to avail themselves of the means, should not complain when accused of gross neglect. The SOZODONT will eradicate the cause of a foul breath, beautifying and preserving the teeth to the oldest age.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

THE WEEKLY SUN.

1776. NEW YORK. 1876.

Eighteen hundred and seventy six is the Centennial year. It is also the year in which an Opposition House of Representatives, the first since the war, will be in power at Washington; and the year of the twenty-third election of a President of the United States. All of these events are sure to be of great interest and importance, especially the two latter, and all of them and everything connected with them will be fully and freshly reported and expounded in THE SUN.

The Opposition House of Representatives, taking up the line of inquiry opened years ago by THE SUN, will sternly and diligently investigate the corruptions and misdeeds of the Grant administration, and will, it is to be hoped, lay the foundation for a new and better period in our national history. Of all this THE SUN will contain the complete and accurate accounts, furnishing its readers with early and trustworthy information upon these absorbing topics.

The twenty-third Presidential election, with the preparations for it, will be as memorable as the deciding upon Grant's aspirations for a third term of power and plunder, and still more as deciding who shall be the candidate of the party of reform, as well as electing that candidate. Concerning all these subjects, those who read THE SUN will have the constant means of being thoroughly well informed.

THE WEEKLY SUN, which has attained a circulation of over eighty thousand copies, already has its readers in every State and Territory, and we trust that the year 1876 will see its circle greatly enlarged. It will continue to be a thorough newspaper. All the general news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment; and always, we trust, treated in a clear, interesting and instructive manner.

It is our aim to make the WEEKLY SUN the best family newspaper in the world, and we shall continue to give in its columns a large amount of miscellaneous reading, such as stories, tales, poems, scientific intelligence, agricultural information, etc., for which we are not able to make room in our daily edition. The agricultural department especially is one of its prominent features, and the markets are also regularly reported in its columns; and so are the markets of every kind.

THE WEEKLY SUN, eight pages with fifty-six broad columns, is sold at $1.20 a year, postage prepaid. As this price barely repays the cost of the paper, no discount can be made from this rate to clubs, agents, Postmasters, or anyone.

THE DAILY SUN, a large four page newspaper of twenty eight columns, gives all the news for two cents a copy. Subscription, postage prepaid, 55c a month or $5.30 a year. Sunday edition extra, $1.10 per year. We have no travelling agents.

Address, THE SUN, New York City.

DR. QUAIN'S
MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package of Pills, their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 2, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now feel myself entirely cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials you said there were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement of your pregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE WEEKLY SUN.

1776. NEW YORK. 1876.

Eighteen hundred and seventy six is the Centennial year. It is also the year in which an Opposition House of Representatives, the first since the war, will be in power at Washington; and the year of the twenty-third election of a President of the United States. All of these events are sure to be of great interest and importance, especially the two latter; and all of them and everything connected with them will be fully and freshly reported and expounded in THE SUN.

The Opposition House of Representatives, taking up the line of inquiry opened years ago by THE SUN, will sternly and diligently investigate the corruptions and misdeeds of Grant's administration, and will, it is to be hoped, lay the foundation for a new and better period in our national history. Of all this THE SUN will contain complete and accurate accounts, furnishing its readers with early and trustworthy information upon these absorbing topics.

The twenty-third Presidential election, with the preparations for it, will be memorable as deciding upon Grant's aspirations for a third term of power and plunder, and still more as deciding who shall be the candidate of the party of Reform, and as electing that candidate. Concerning all these subjects, those who read THE SUN will have the constant means of being thoroughly well informed.

THE WEEKLY SUN, which has attained a circulation of over eighty thousand copies, already has its readers in every State and Territory, and we trust that the year 1876 will see their numbers doubled. It will continue to be a thorough newspaper. All the general news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment; and always, we trust, treated in a clear, interesting and instructive manner.

It is our aim to make the WEEKLY SUN the best family newspaper in the world, and we shall continue to give in its columns a large amount of miscellaneous reading, such as stories, tales, poems, scientific intelligence and agricultural information, for which we are not able to make room in our daily edition. The agricultural department especially is one of its prominent features. The fashions are also regularly reported in its columns; and so are the markets of every kind.

The WEEKLY SUN, eight pages with fifty-six broad columns, is only $1.20 a year, postage prepaid. As this price barely repays the cost of the paper, no discount can be made from this rate to clubs, agents, Postmasters, or anyone.

The DAILY SUN, a large four page newspaper of twenty eight columns, gives all the news for two cents a copy. Subscription, postage prepaid, 55c a month or $6.50 a year. SUNDAY edition extra, $1.10 per year. We have no traveling agents.

Address, THE SUN, New York City.

EPISCOPACY VS. PURITANISM.

History of the South Parish.

NO. I.

BY REV. JAMES DE NORMANDIE.

[Boston Transcript.]

The South Parish has had an historical existence as a body of worshippers, with a church and succession of pastorates of remarkable length—with interruptions hardly to be noticed—since the year 1638. And were it not that it was well to begin our history with some act as definite as the building of a chapel or the settlement of a minister, we might with historical propriety carry our date back 250 years and more, to 1623, when the very same colonists who, with their children, afterward built the first South Church and formed the first congregation at Strawberry Bank, in 1638, as we have seen, gathered, without doubt, regularly for worship according to the Church of England ritual, in Mason's Manor Hall, at Odiorne's Point, from 1623; and from that year the settlement at the Piscataqua is undoubtedly permanent. During this long period this parish has had a record which, for the length of its pastorates and the eminent character of its pastors, for the social influence and the prominence of its parishoners, and particularly for its harmonious and uninterrupted worship, is perhaps unapproached by any other parish in our country. In this time, reckoning from 1638 to 1873, a period of 235 years, there have been but ten pastors, of whom one died and another removed soon after their settlement, leaving thus for eight pastors in 231 years, an average of about twenty-nine years.

In this time the parish has been Church of England for a number of years; Puritan; Orthodox, so as to have invited the services and listened to the preaching of Jonathan Edwards; and Unitarian, without any vote or recognition of the various theological changes at any parish meeting, without any loss either of harmony or numbers therefrom, and without any pause or diminution of its parish welfare or its religious interests. All that has heretofore been written upon this subject has been hasty, superficial, and almost entirely from the standpoint of the Puritans, who invariably ignored or misrepresented the strong Church of England element, in whose interest the settlement was made—an element which never entirely died out in the long blank in its public worship—and which made the Piscataqua so different from the Plymouth colony in Massachusetts.

It has therefore seemed to me a profitable and interesting matter to set before you, with some degree of historical investigation and completeness, the moral appearances and the religious conduct of that early settlement, and of our own parish down to the memory of persons still living among us; to consider whatever secular events had a bearing upon, or went hand in hand with church matters; to reproduce as well as may be the gradually changing phases of worship and thought; to give some illustrations from the preaching of my predecessors; some brief sketches of those who were prominent in the parish or the town, when these were one and the same; and to see, by a faithful comparison withtimes forgotten, or rapidly passing out of our memory, whether we may reasonably conclude that, upon the whole society, our parish, and our religious thought have made any progress in a period now reckoned by centuries.

There may be three or four reasons assigned, for which persons are ready to leave the comfort and order, the luxury and the associations, of an old land and an old home. There is, in the first place, in every community a class of adventurers of the type of John Smith, men fond of the excitement of travel and novelty, who are ready to undertake any strange enterprise for the sake of the hazard, for exploration, or simply for curiosity. The wildness of the new is more inviting than the regularity of the old. Then there is always in old and wealthy communities a large class of persons with worn-out fortunes, representatives of families of departed splendor or prominence, who in a new place can maintain a position on cheaper terms, or who can follow with an easy grace employments they would not undertake where they are known; or more sons than can be placed in the ancestral neighborhood, or sons of wealth for whom many reasons make it better to find situations elsewhere; as on the continent one meets constantly with English men and women who, in humble places or at low rates, keep up an appearance of respectability they could not have at home—and as many from New England begin life at the West.

The social barriers which other lands have made impassable have by the American idea been entirely effaced by putting a few miles between our birth and our activity. "My son, you know," said a very poor woman to me once, "would never be anything in Portsmouth, but in Salem he is just as good as anybody." Such influences were not without their due effect in bringing the early colonists hither. An old writer, speaking of them, says, "If without offence it may be spoken, the multitude of patents granted to several gentlemen of broken fortunes hath provided an honorable exile or continement whither many deserving persons of better education than fortune were sent to shift for themselves in a foreign land, without being further tr ublesome to those nearer home on whom they had hopes of dependence; yet it must not be denied but that some of the undertakers were at vast expenses, casting their bread upon the waters, where none of their relatives or friends have as yet had opportunity to find it."

Another class of far-seeing, shrewd business men is always ready to send others, or to embark itself, and to bear any danger, delay and loss in any enterprise which offers certain and satisfactory returns—of which class were Ambrose Gibbons and Gorges and Mason. Last of all, questions of government or religion make it easy for numbers to endure any hardships, or abandon any associations, for a freer rule or broader liberties of worship, of which the Puritans were a type.

Now it is very difficult to analyze all the motives which enter into colonization. Perhaps all we have named do so in some degree, into each settlement. Nevertheless, as in individuals or communities there are prominent phases of character, so in colonies there are characteristics prominent and easy to be traced. In the Plymouth colony the prevailing idea at first was of religious liberty for themselves, not for anybody else; in the Piscataqua colony it was the spirit of mercantile enterprise. This spirit of enterprise, which in the seventeenth century was so active in the French, English, Spanish and Portuguese, vying with each other in the establishment of colonies, the exploration of these lands and the discovery of new sources of wealth, must have drawn very near to our coast in 1602. At that time there was no European family settled along the whole line of the sea from Florida to Greenland. Foremost among the men then filled with schemes for visiting and settling the New World, and gaining therefrom fame or wealth, was Sir Walter Raleigh, the scholar, author, courtier and adventurer. Among the men who had been interested with him in the discovery of Virginia was one Bartholomew Gosnold, who afterward, in March, 1602, sailed for America, sighted the Maine coast, and gave the name of Cape Cod. The voyagers were enraptured with the landscape, and one of them wrote after their return, "We stood awhile as ravished at the beauties and delicacy of the sweetness, besides divers clear lakes whereof we saw no end, and meadows very large and full of greene grasse."

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1875.

News and Notes.

The funeral services of the late Vice President will be held at Boston to-day at noon.

Gov. Ingersoll has appointed Ex-Gov. James E. English to be U. S. Senator from Connecticut to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Ferry.

At the present term of the Circuit Court, Charles C. Marden of Rye was granted a divorce from Mary A. Marden.

Celia Logan, in her New York letter to the Hartford Courant is responsible for the following: "There is a lady in this city who was once engaged to be married to John Wilkes Booth, but broke off the match and requested the return of her letters, which he refused. Her story goes on that she never heard directly from him again until two years after his reported death, when a man called at her house at dusk; she opened the door herself; he handed her a sealed package and disappeared. On opening it she discovered her own love letters to Booth, and a line unmistakably in his hand. It was—'I return your letters.' Inside of the letter was a piece of a Cuban newspaper. She is a firm disbeliever in his death."

On Thanksgiving night John V. Gunnison's steam saw mill and clothespin shop in Goshen was burnt. Loss $10,000; insured for $4900. Cause of fire unknown.

In answer to a friend's suggestion that Chief Justice Waite become a candidate for the Presidency, the Judge replies as follows: "Of course I am always grateful to my friends for any efforts in my behalf, and no one ever had those more faithful or indulgent; but do you think it quite right for one occupying the first judicial position in the land to permit the use of his name for political position? The office came to me covered with honor, and when I accepted it my chief duty was not to make of it a stepping stone to something else, but to preserve its purity, and if possible, make my name as honorable as that of my predecessors. No man ought to accept this place unless he shall take a vow to leave it as honorable as he found it. There ought never to be any necessity for rebuilding from below; all additions should be above. In my judgment the Constitution might wisely have prohibited the election of a Chief Justice to the Presidency. Entertaining such a view, could I properly or consistently permit my name to be used for the promotion of political combination, as now suggested? If I should do so, could I at all times and in all cases remain an unbiased Judge in the estimation of the people?"

The Danielsonville (R. I.) Herald appears this week under the title of the Windham County Press, and announces that it is "in entire sympathy with the financial views and doctrines of the republican party." The Herald was a democratic paper.

William B. Astor, who died last week, was born in New York in March, 1791. He inherited about $20,000,000 at the death of his father, John Jacob Astor, and his wealth has been constantly increasing. It is almost impossible at the present time to estimate the amount of his fortune; but it is stated, on apparently good authority, that the property may be safely valued at not less than $200,000,000, and nearly all in rented real estate, chiefly in New York City. He was thoroughly educated and well versed in literature, but of a retiring disposition, and mingled but little with the world. He was a liberal subscriber to many charities and supported the Astor Library founded by his father. He leaves three sons and two daughters. His wife was a daughter of General Armstrong who was Secretary of War in 1813.

A Candia man by the name of Osgood is said to have beaten a contrary horse to death.

Allen M. Tenney of North Charlestown, was killed while shackling cars at Brattleboro', Vt. His feet slipping on the rail, he fell across the track and the wheels passed over his head.

A little child in Deering got hold of a can of kerosene and swallowed some of the contents. An emetic saved the child's life.

An otter that measured four feet in length was caught in the trap of Charles H. Dorr, of Sandwich, recently. He was an old fellow and otter known better.

Plymouth Church has acceded to Mrs. Moulton's demand for a Congregational council.

Various excuses are offered for declining to accept the generous offer of the Fifth Maryland Regiment to escort the remains of Vice-President Wilson to Boston, all of which are very shallow. It is a pity that the power of deciding was left to short-sighted and narrow-minded officers, who seem to have been incapable of appreciating the character of the offer and the effect of its acceptance.—Globe.

The democratic State convention will be held at Concord Jan. 12th, to nominate Hon. Warren F. Daniell as a candidate for Governor. The convention for the first Councillor district will meet in this city Jan. 19th.

Henry Wilson leaves no children to perpetuate his name. He was married in 1840, to Miss Harriet Malvina Howe of Natick, a lady who is spoken of as possessing a refined and gentle Christian character. Their only son, a soldier in the Union army, died at Austin, Texas, December 24th, 1866.

Bigelow's majority over all, in New York, is 3,834. Last year Tilden's majority over all was 38,549. Net decrease in democratic majority, 34,715.

The number of Indians in the United States according to the official estimate of General Pope, is 316,000. These are classified as follows: Civilized Indians, 100,000; semi-civilized Indians, 135,000; barbarous Indians, 81,000.

The vote in New York State, as officially given is, Bigelow, democrat, 490,094; Seward, republican, 375,291; Dusenbury, prohibitionist, 10,869. This gives a democratic majority of only 3834.

William E. Murdock, a young man in the employ of Hon. Charles Holman, confectioner at Nashua, committed suicide on the 23d, by taking an overdose of laudanum. He was about thirty-five years of age. It appears that he was in his right mind during the afternoon, as he attended to his legitimate business as usual. During the afternoon he remained away from his work, and at about six o'clock was found in a critical condition. Dr. McQuesten was immediately called and his friends notified, but all efforts to save his life were fruitless.

Secretary Bristow's work of retrenchment in the custom houses of the country starts off at Portland, where an order has been received dismissing one deputy collector, one weigher and gauger and five inspectors, and cutting down all rates not fixed by law twenty-five per cent.

The Epoch editorially discusses the latest diplomatic communication received by Spain from the United States Government on the Cuban question: It says: "Spain is disposed to concede any just demands which America may make in the premises."

On Monday the town of Marlborough voted a gratuity of two per cent. of its valuation, amounting to about ten thousand dollars, as a gratuity to the Manchester and Keene Railroad. It is said that the building of the road is under contract, and work will be immediately begun.

The house of Sophia Pearson of Warner, was burglariously entered a few nights since by a tramp and a large amount of goods carried away. The Selectmen offer a reward of fifty dollars for the arrest of the villain.

The hour of Mr. Jefferson's great triumph in England is clouded with a great grief. His youngest child, a boy, just 4 years old, died in London two weeks ago, after an illness of four days. This child —Harry, the pet of the household—was born in Chicago on the night of the great fire. His death brings sorrow to one of the happiest homes on earth. By peremptory command of physicians Mr. Jefferson continued to act.

The Boston & Maine railroad company employs 1600 persons.

Charles H. Smith, Esq., of Newmarket, clerk of the New Hampshire House of Representatives in 1874, goes to Washington as private secretary to Hon. Frank Jones.

—The Brattleborough Phœnix says that no one article of food, on the authority of grocery dealers, has so increased sale as that of oat meal. Whereas a few years ago as occasional family used it, it has now become a leading dish with nearly every one. The proprietor of one of our principal hotels who uses it extensively says that the best that is now made is manufactured in Ohio, exceeding that which is imported from Canada and Europe in every respect, being free from grit and the bitter taste common to the imported article.

—Geraniums for winter blooming will want a light, warm place with plenty of ventilation. These plants must not be crowded together or but few flowers need be expected. Young plants must be kept free from dead leaves and be allowed to get rather dry; the growth is hardier and the plants keep better.

Home-liness.

When Captain Webb made the boast that he could swim the twenty-two miles of the Strait of Dover and when Jesus Christ boasted that he had not a place to lay his head they both exhibited a consciousness of power and adaptation inconceivable by the great mass of mortals. In Christ's case either his was free from the "dread of snakes" or else he had such a thorough knowledge of the constituent elements of home life as should make such a confidence possible.

Now who will dispute that the "present age" is not attempting wonderful things, glorious things, honorable things, heavenly things? But there certainly is, nevertheless, great grounds of fear that we individually and socially do not possess sufficient quantity of that peculiar kind of "eye salve" spoken of in Revelations which was the grand secret of power in both of the above cases.

Our age virtually ignores the things pertaining to Home. Now "putting on our spectacles" and applying the "salve" do we discover the existence of, or the want of those constituent elements which alone could in the least degree warrant such bold assurance and confidence? This is the question, and to supply any want that is the "how;" demanding our most immediate, careful and energetic consideration.

GRANDPA.

A Chattel.

She was sitting in a rocking-chair, and held a newspaper in her hand. From behind the handkerchief before her eyes, there issued, every now and then, a smothered sob.

"Why, Alice what is the matter," I ventured to enquire.

She did not answer at first, but presently became calmer, and ventured to tell me her trouble.

"You know, Harry and I have been to the city."

"Yes." And all sorts of improbable things were imagined.

"Well, we stopped at the —— House. Before we were married, I had everything that I desired. If I do say it myself, I never lacked for attention, and really had come to the conclusion that I was of some social importance. Now, what am I? An object, —something to be classed in with the lbs., and the bbls, and the pigs."

Her tears began to flow afresh when she handed me the paper, and I saw, among the list of hotel arrivals, "Mr. Harry Brown and wf."

—The Denver News tells the following story: "Plainsmen will be surprised to hear that there is something in the world that can run faster than a jack-rabbit. As a passenger train on the Union Pacific, heading east, was rattling along over the Laramie plains the other night, the engineer, Al. Johnson, looking from the cab down along the gleaming rails, espied a huge jack-rabbit bounding over the ties about thirty feet ahead of the cowcatcher. The engineer put on some more steam, and the ponderous locomotive shot ahead like an arrow, but the jacksonian rabbit pricked up his ears, slapped on a full caloric, and lit out at the rate of twenty feet a jump. Johnson's pride was touched. His locomotive, No. 149, is one of the biggest and swiftest on the line, and he was afraid that if he let the jack hare outrun him the boys would find it out, and he would be everlastingly disgraced. So he turned on more steam, and the engine made a bound under the cloud of smoke which belched from the smoke-stack, and the telegraph poles danced past wildly, and jack let out another section of his legs, and kept right along down the level grade, just out of reach of the cowcatcher. For five miles and a quarter the locomotive and rabbit kept up this speed, when the latter began to weaken. Johnson, reining in his iron horse, went out on the pilot, and, leaning forward, reached out and picked up the rabbit, as the engine jolted along slowly."

—Looking at a pile of knotty russets and greenings thrown out for cider, I asked the price. "Seventy-five cents a bushel," was the reply. "Cider is worth eight dollars a barrel, and nine bushels of apples makes a barrel of cider." According to that a fruitful orchard of any sort of apples in Connecticut is worth more this year than a vineyard in the best wine districts, for our apple juice is a crude product involving comparatively little labor. Wouldn't it do now for a man having choice fruit land to plant it with sorts that are surely productive and good for cider if not for the table, as a rather long-winded business move?—Hartford Courant.

—A hen never has a regular meal—she always gets a picked-up dinner.—Commercial Bulletin. And she has to scratch around considerably to get it, too. But then it doesn't cost anything. She has it all put down in the bill.—Boston Advertiser. Those punsters ought to be cooped up.—St. Louis Republican. Oh, no. Let 'em craw-l around for a full crop of puns on the subject.—Norristown Herald. To hatch up any more would require a complete insight into the chicanery of the business. And then, after all, you fellows would lay your heads together and pullet all to pieces. New York Commercial Advertiser.

—A New York farmer who has been very successful in breeding good milkers, says in order to rear cows to fluent milkers they should have succulent food from their birth until brought into milk, which we would have at an early age. A skillful breeder must understand adapting the various kinds of foods to develop essential points and fix them by habits in the constitution. The food of a calf when changed from milk should be cooked and fed warm, and, as nearly as possible, prepared for ready distribution in the system.

—"Gentlemen, I can't lie about the horse; he is blind in one eye," said the auctioneer. The horse was soon knocked down to a citizen who had been greatly struck by the auctioneer's honesty, and after paying for the horse he said: "You were honest enough to tell me that this animal was blind in one eye. Is there any other defect?" "Yes, sir, there is. He is also blind in the other eye!" was the prompt reply.—Detroit Free Press.

—The Island of Ceylon possesses a remarkable antique known as the "Lion of Pollannaruwa," which has just been removed from the jungle where it has lain for centuries to the new museum at Colombo. It is a huge lion finely sculptured in white stone, and is said to have been used as a judgment seat by the Singalese King, Nissaulla Mala, who reigned at Pollannaruwa in the twelfth century. The arrival of the lion has caused some excitement at Colombo.

—A little fellow, who was at a neighbor's house about noon the other day, watched the preparations for dinner with a great deal of interest, but when asked to stay and eat something, he promptly refused. "Why, yes, Johnny, you'd better stay," said the lady; "Why can't you?" "Well, 'cause," said the little fellow, "ma said I mustn't unless you ask me three times." They invited him twice more right off.

—An apprentice sailor boy fell from the round-top deck, stunned, but little hurt. The captain exclaimed, in surprise, "Why, where did you come from?" "From the North of Ireland, yer honor," was the prompt reply, as the poor fellow gathered himself up.

—They were talking of a death, when one man asked, "What were his last words?" "He didn't say anything," was the reply. "That's just like him," said the first man, with an approving nod, "There was no gas about him. He was all business."

—The average daily attendance at the public schools of the State of Virginia for the year ending July 31, 1875, was 103,972, being an increase of 5,000 over the previous year. There were 4,262 teachers employed. The whole cost of public education for the year was $924,118.

—"My friend," said an inebriated man on the Brooklyn ferry-boat yesterday to his neighbor, as he endeavored to set his watch by the steam-gauge, "do you see that minute hand jiggling back and forward, or is there something wrong here?" pointing significantly to his forehead.

—A New York merchant has been detected measuring thirty-four inches to the yard. Two inches is nothing on a towel, but it tells heavily on a woolen shirt when the thermometer drops down.

—Grandfather to his hopeful—"My son, which would you rather have when you get home, a little brother or a little sister?" Grandson—"Well, I would rather have a little pony."

My Favorite Flute For Sale!

THIS Flute was made in Paris, to the order of a great Flutist, at the cost of $100. The great player, for whom it was built, became embarrassed and sold it as a sacrifice to Capt. Moses Becker of the ship Colorado, then at Havre. I bought it of Capt. B. for $60. The Flute has eight pure and solid silver keys, and one more, on a lower extra joint. It is lined and bound with genuine silver; and is of very sweet tone. Circumstances in a pecuniary view induce me to offer it for sale at only $30.

Jottings.

The trees on Richards Avenue are in danger of being destroyed by the gravel and stones heaped around their trunks during the operations for the improvement of the Avenue. It is to be regretted that the improvements made are to be rendered less enjoyable by the destruction of these shade trees. They have fifteen years or more of growth, and being too thickly planted should be thinned out, the earth about the roots of those to remain loosened and enriched, and care taken to protect their growth.

About one hundred and twenty-five tickets to the skating rink have been sold.

The building on High street, formerly a carriage manufactory, is being refitted for a new enterprise, Portland parties having leased it for the employment of a hundred or more women in making coats for the Boston market. A day or two since, workmen engaged on the building discovered a coffin plate imbedded in wood work behind the plaster, bearing the name of Daniel Heunessey, who died Sept. 1, 1872. The relatives of the deceased were notified and his grave at the Catholic cemetery opened, but no attempt had been made to rob it, and a plate the exact counterpart of the one found was still on the lid. Duplicate plates had been made, and the first one was rejected on account of defects. The unknown individual who placed it in the Came building is responsible for quite a sensation.

Guns were fired from the navy yard battery on Saturday; thirteen at sunrise, minute guns at meridian, and twenty-one at sunset, in memory of the late Vice President Wilson.

Mr. Luther Benson, who recently lectured on "Temperance" in this city, had an audience at Manchester which filled Smyth's Hall. The Dispatch says: "While he was speaking, a man came into the audience, and taking a front seat amused himself with drinking from a bottle of liquor he held in his hand. As the speaker warmed up with his subject, however, the man gradually lost his air of bravado, became absorbed in the speaker, and while alluding to his mother, who had gone to her grave with a broken heart, the listener broke down and cried like a child. He came to scoff; he went home a repentant and a happier man, for his name was traced in trembling characters upon the pledge at total abstinence."

N. F. Mathes, Esq., purchased the brick block, No 10 North street, at auction Saturday, for $2500.

Arrangements have been made by Portsmouth Grange and Farmers' Club, for a series of farmers' meetings, to be held at the hall of Portsmouth Grange, on the first and third Wednesday evenings of each winter month. The first discussion will be on Wednesday Dec. 1st, at 7 o'clock, by members N. H. Board of Agriculture and others.

Portsmouth Navy Yard.

[Cor. N. Y. Herald.]

The Navy Yard at this naval station is naturally one of the most beautiful and best located in the country, and capable, with comparatively small outlay, of being made one of the most effective building yards in the world. And the Naval Committee of both branches of Congress on their examining tour to all the yards on the coast last year bore testimony to the staunch and workmanlike condition of all departments of this yard, so much so that the opinion of at least one Congressman was changed, after his visit, from a previous desire to recommend the discontinuance of this yard.

The yard is located — the buildings, wharves, floating dry dock, &c.—at present upon Fernald's Island, formerly so called, on the Maine side of the Piscataqua River; but the government a few years since made a very valuable and fortunate purchase of another large island called Seavey's, adjacent to the first, for $100,000, which extends far down the river, greatly increasing the deep water front and almost indefinitely enlarging the capabilities of the yard for improvement. The new purchase has been but little utilized as yet, except to furnish a much-needed supply of pure water for the yard, but whenever works for the manufacture of iron plating, &c., shall be added here, Seavey's Island will doubtless be the site for their location. At low tide, the shallowest channel soundings are fifty-three feet!

Portsmouth was settled in 1623, and from the very earliest date this has been a shipbuilding community, and skillful workmen in all departments of shipcraft abound here, which, coupled with the facts of the great depth of the river and harbor, and their perpetual freedom from ice in the coldest weather, renders the location in every way one hard to excel. The early frosts and clear cold weather of this region also constitute this a very useful quarantine station for infected government vessels and hospital for sick seamen, for the accomodation of which liberal anchorage is furnished near Wood Island, in the lower harbor, and suitable buildings have been erected upon this island, which have been leased by the United States for a long term of years.

This yard was never before in so good condition as now for turning out a large amount of work in a short time. The timber sheds, storehouses and reservoirs are filled with new material of all sorts, and most of it believed to be the best of its kind; and whereas, at the commencement of the late war, all the three shiphouses were filled with effete old hulks—literally shipwrecked, dry, rotten and worm-eaten before they were ever launched—now nearly every spot where a vessel might be built is clear of any encumbrance and ready to receive a new keel. Of these five might be laid at once, or three new vessels started, and two repaired at the same time —one each in two of the ship-houses, one on the railway, above the dry dock, one in the dock and one or even two on the timber slip, and the accommodations of Seavey's Island are almost limitless. One of the ship houses only is occupied, and this by the first rate iron-clad of upward of 2,000 tons, formerly called the Thunderer, but now changed to the Massachusetts—an immense hulk, but probably of little if any value as a vessel, as much of her oak timber is affected with the dry rot.

There are at present between 600 and 700 men in all departments, besides the numerous officers, foremen and clerks employed in the yard; but this number could be easily doubled or trebled at very short notice, if desired, as about 4,000 men were employed here during the great rebellion. Most of the workmen are employed upon the new steamers Enterprise and Marion, both being fitted for sea.

The following is a list and brief description of all the vessels now comprising the naval fleet at this station, with their conditions, viz. :—The third rate screw steamer Marion, which has been rebuilt or repaired by the government, not by private contract, from the old frigate of the same name; but as is usual in such cases of late years there is but very little of the old craft left besides the name, so thorough is the "repair." The new vessel is a beauty, and is understood by those who should be best informed here to be instructed to proceed to Europe and bring hither distinguished visitors or goods for the Centennial at Philadelphia, and to remain there as one of the sample vessels of the United States Navy during the Exhibition. She is a first class vessel in every respect, of about 1,100 tons, and is lying at one of the yard's wharves, nearly ready for sea. Orders were received a few days since to have the Marion ready for sea by December 1, to employ all the men requisite to this end, and to work on Sunday if necessary. Accordingly, the gangs of joiners, painters, machinists, riggers, etc., were immediately increased on board, and "the sound of the axe and the hammer" is heard lively enough on all hands. The Marion will be commanded by Commander Robert F. Bradford, of this city, now in charge of the Department of Navigation and Ordnance at this yard, who has been detailed for this duty, and is regarded as an able officer.

Then there is the third rate but first class screw steamer Enterprise—rate referring, of course, to the size and not the quality of the vessel—which was built by contract, at this yard, of government materials, by George B. Griffiths & Son, of New York, being "one of the class of eight," as they are called, which Congress, two or three years ago, ordered built by this plan. The builders are well known and experienced government contractors, and the vessel is first class in all respects, but perhaps it is only natural that the naval authorities and workmen claim superiority for the government built vessels for thorough stanchness. The Enterprise is about 1,000 tons, and is lying at the wharf with her machinery all in, lacking masts, rigging, inboard joiners' work and equipment, which, if necessary, could be finished and furnished ready for sea perhaps in sixty days.

The Essex, No. 1 of this class, was built here by government, and is now being finished at Chartestown yard.

The Ticonderoga, an old, third rate screw steamer, larger than either of the others, which returned from a three years' voyage last year, is lying at wharf, dismantled and waiting orders. She needs general repairs, including, doubtless, new boilers, and could probably be fitted for sea in three months or so.

The Kansas, a smaller fourth rate screw, also from cruise, is lying much in the same condition as the Ticonderoga, and might be fitted for sea in two months.

The Lancaster, second rate screw, which has been lying at Quarantine all Summer, is to be brought up to the yard next week, her stores and ordnance removed and hull dismantled. She is much out of order, and, being a larger vessel, would occupy more time in repairs.

The old frigate Sabine, anchored near the yard, is now used for a training ship for a hundred or more boys—and nice boys they are, too, from the towns and country all about—whose young ideas an enlisted schoolmaster, as usual on board men-of-war, is teaching how to sail and to fight for their flag.

The Speedwell, iron tugboat, is in commission and all ready for sea in any emergency, and the Emerald, a little steamer purchased in Philadelphia by ex-Assistant Secretary of the Navy Fox, during the war, is doing good service as a ferryboat between the yard and this city, a distance of one mile by steam, but three times that when rowed against the swift tide, as was always done previous to this boat's coming.

Within a year or two the yard has been lighted with Tiffany's olefiant gas, so that in case of need the workshops could be run day and night. The yard is in command of Commodore Andrew Bryson, with Captain Jonathan Young as executive officer, both of whom are efficent and popular officers.

TO THE HON. JUDGE OF PROBATE FOR THE COUNTY OF ROCKINGHAM:

Respectfully represents Alonzo F. Craig, Administrator of the estate of GEORGE B. CAMM, late of Portsmouth in said County, deceased, that the Personal Estate of said deceased is not sufficient to pay the just demands against his estate by the sum of five thousand dollars; that said Camm died seized of the right in equity to redeem certain mortgaged real estate situate in said Portsmouth with the buildings thereon, bounded northerly by Hanover Street, easterly by land of Frederick F. Moses, southerly by land of the Howard Benevolent Society, and westerly by land of Albert A. Fernald; the same being subject to three mortgages, one to Louisa M. Cutts dated November 16th, 1869, to secure the sum of two thousand dollars, on which is now due the sum of four hundred dollars and interest from November 16th, 1873, one to Daniel McIntire dated March 18, 1869, to secure twelve hundred dollars, now held by Horace Hall, which is now due with interest from April 18, 1874, and one to George M. Marsh dated November 30, 1868, to secure six hundred dollars, now held by said Hall, on which is due the said sum of six hundred dollars and interest from April 18, 1874. And said deceased left no other real estate in this State.

Wherefore he prays that he may be licensed to sell at public auction the right of redeeming said mortgaged Real Estate of said deceased as aforesaid for the payment of said demands.

Dated the ninth day of November, A. D. 1875.

No. 2. Mid-Summer Scene on the Boquet River, New York; group of cattle reclining and bathing in the stream, beneath a large elm, etc.

Rather than below their real value, being desirous to obtain by the sale, a part of the means for an outing or passage to South Carolina, where I have promised to be in December, as tendance of music and painting in a High School.

The paintings are now on free exhibition for a few days, at studio opposite the Post Office.

Daily Chronicle.

Why She Went Down Stairs.

[Virginia, Nev., Chronicle.]

"Gentlemen of the jury," he said, yesterday, "it has been asked by the opposing counsel why my client went down stairs. That the blush of shame did not mantle the cheek of my learned friend while putting such an inquiry argues a heart whose sensibilities are wholly deadened. The astonishment which is depicted upon your countenances, gentlemen, is sufficient to assure me that you appreciate the position in which this injured wife and delicate woman was placed. [The i. w. a. d. w. weighed 170 at least, and had a very red face of uneven surface.] Why did she go down stairs, gentlemen? The question has been asked, and I answer. Turn your gaze upon this beast; this monster in the semblance of a man; this demon in human form; this devil who insults God's image! Let him speak! [The beast, etc., evinced signs of rising wrath.] Take his sworn testimony. Here is the question: 'Why did Mrs. Bulgruddery go down stairs?' Answer—'I h'isted her.'

"Gentlemen of the jury, he h'isted her! Great heavens! he h'isted her? He, the brute, once, perhaps, a man, raised his foot and applied it to the form of her who, at the holy altar, he had sworn to love and cherish. She, a blushing bride, standing before the man of God, breathing timidly the vow which bound her forever to Bulgruddery. Then a happy mother, holding to her breast the pledges of love which Heaven had granted. And yet he h'isted her! Not only did he h'ist her, gentlemen of the jury, but it is in evidence that he took a flat-iron from her hand, and accompanied his kick with a blow from that useful domestic utensil. And yet the learned gentleman has the audacity to ask why Mrs Bulgruddery went down stairs."

At this point the excited attorney gave a wild laugh and was ordered to sit down. Bulgruddery was convicted.

—Charles Dudley Warner, writing from Venice to the Hartford Courant, says the Venetians turn the night into day. The theatres and concerts never begin till 9 o'clock in the evening, and are not out till 12; and, of course, supper (at the restaurant) won't be over before one or two o'clock. If you are invited to a regular weekly reception, and go at 11, you will find no one there except the hostess. Guests will begin to arrive at half-past 11; most, however, do not come until 12, and tea will be served between one and two. If it is a ball, you must not go before 12. The German will begin at 12 and end perhaps when the bronze figures on the clock tower in the Piazza are striking seven, and the pigeons of St. Mark are beginning to look for early corn. The advantage of this is twofold. In the first place, you can go to bed early in the evening, get up at midnight and dress and go to the ball and be in a refreshed condition to enjoy it. In the second place, you can sleep all the next day, as you have nothing whatever to do; in the garish daylight, this is a gain.

It Pays! It Pays!
WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this to an extent beyond that of any other publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, Novel Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete repertory of New Inventions and Discoveries; containing a weekly record and summary of progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years. It is the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for the shop and house will save a dozen times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Thousands of thousands of dollars are expended in getting up the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, and it has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents, a bound volume containing the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 140 Engravings of mechanical movements. Price 25 cents.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done so work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several friends, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did me any good. I have taken only three packages, and can say this time I now consider myself cured. Enclosed please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, which rendered me unable to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent you one box of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgic pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I send $1.00 to her, and finally conclude I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. THE WEEKLY SUN.
1776. NEW YORK. 1876.
Eighteen hundred and seventy six is the Centennial year. It is also the year in which an Opposition House of Representatives, the first since the war, will be in power at Washington; and the year of the twenty-third election of a President of the United States. All of these events are sure to be of great interest and importance, especially the two latter; and all of them and everything connected with them will be fully and freshly reported and expounded in THE SUN.
The Opposition House of Representatives, taking up the line of inquiry opened years ago by THE SUN, will steadily and diligently investigate the corruptions and misdeeds of Grant's administration, and will, it is to be hoped, lay the foundation for a new and better period in our national history. Of all this THE SUN will contain complete and accurate accounts, furnishing its readers with early and trustworthy information upon these absorbing topics.
The twenty-third Presidential election, with the preparations for it, will be memorable as deciding upon Grant's aspirations for a third term of power and plunder, and still more as deciding who shall be the candidate of the party of Reform, and as electing that candidate. Concerning all these subjects, those who read THE SUN will receive complete and accurate accounts, furnishing its readers with early and trustworthy information upon these absorbing topics.
THE WEEKLY SUN, which has attained a circulation of over eighty thousand copies, already has its readers in every State and Territory, and we trust that the year 1876 will see their numbers doubled. It will continue to be a thorough newspaper. All the general news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment; and always, we trust, treated in a clear, interesting and instructive manner.
It is our aim to make the WEEKLY SUN the best family newspaper in the world, and we shall continue to give in its columns a large amount of miscellaneous reading, such as stories, tales, poems, scientific intelligence and agricultural information, for which we are not able to make room in our daily edition. The agricultural department especially is one of its prominent features. The fashions are also regularly reported in its columns; and so are the markets of every kind.
The WEEKLY SUN, eight pages with fifty-six broad columns, is only $1.20 a year, postage prepaid. As this price barely repays the cost of the paper, no discount can be made from this rate to clubs, agents, Postmasters, or anyone.
The DAILY SUN, a large four page newspaper of twenty-eight columns, gives all the news for two cents a copy. Subscription, postage prepaid, 55c a month or $6.50 a year. SUNDAY edition extra, $1.10 per year. We have no travelling agents.
Address, THE SUN, New York City.

EPISCOPACY VS. PURITANISM.

History of the South Parish.

NO. I.

BY REV. JAMES DE NORMANDIE.

[Boston Transcript.]

[Concluded.]

Each voyage, whether successful or a failure, only attracted others, such is the fascination of a new realm. The city of Bristol in England was at that time foremost in all maritime adventures. Sebastian Cabot was a Bristol boy; a Bristol ship first touched our continent, and a Bristol ship sailed up our noble river. In the Spring of 1603 the city government and some merchants of Bristol, led thereto chiefly by a clergyman of the city, Richard Hakluyt, fitted out an expedition for trading and the further discovery of that part of the new world, which, in ignorance of its extent and the uncertain limits of charters, was called North Virginia. The fleet consisted of a ship of fifty tons, with thirty men and boys, and a barque of twenty-six tons, with thirteen men and a boy under the command of Martin Pring, and with a pilot who had been on the voyage the year before. They set sail from King Road, the anchoring ground, eight miles from Bristol, in March, 1603, and in June drew near to our coast, entered our harbor, and spoke of the "goodly ground and woods" along the banks of our river.

By 1614 the knowledge of our coast had grown more definite, and colonization began to assume a more permanent form. The zeal for sudden wealth from the riches of mines led to a hasty occupation of the South—of New Mexico by the Spanish and Portuguese; but the English and French came with a tardier pace to the fur and fishing trade of the North—and yet found, as we have found in California, that the vineyards and pasture lands and husbandry are a surer and greater means of wealth than mines of gold and fields of diamonds.

In March of that year, the remarkable adventurer, John Smith, sailed for North Virginia, seeking a mine of gold or copper, or, failing that, to fish and trade. He named the Shoals, which had previously been sighted and described, Smith's Islands; spoke of our river, and on his return drew a quaint map of the coast and wrote a history of his voyages, and left it for King Charles to charter the new realm—whereupon, in 1614, first appears our name of New England. To us, who glory in our beautiful river, it cannot but be interesting to notice the praises it called forth from the early voyagers and historians, as well as the late poets. One says "that westernmost and best river;" another, "the safe harbor and rocky shore of the Piscataqua;" another, "that famous, brave and navigable river of noat, which has been frequented ever since the country was first planted, whose channel is very swift and spacious, fit for vessels of great burden;" another, "of the great river and good harbor." And also in an old deed dated 1671, there is a will of one of the early merchants which runs thus: "I, Richard Cutt, for the love I bear unto William Vaughan, devise unto him my stone warehouse, situate at Strawberry Bank, and fronting upon the greate river Piscataqua." And one of our own poets sings of it thus sweetly:

"Like an azure vein from the heart of the main,
Pulsing with joy forever,
By verdurous isles, with dimpled smiles,
Floweth my native river.

Singing a song as it flows along,
Hushed by the ice-king never;
For he strives in vain to clasp a chain,
O'er thy fetterless heart, brave river.

Singing to me as full and free
As it sang to the dusky daughters,
When the light canoe like a sea bird flew,
Over its peaceful waters."

In 1623, this spirit of enterprise took form as a more permanent form, and with results reaching to the present day. Among a council of forty noblemen, knights and gentlemen to whom King James granted a charter "for the planting, ruling, ordering and governing of New England in America," we find two persons conspicuous in energy and adventure—Sir Ferdinando Gorges and Captain John Mason. Gorges was an officer of the English Navy, intimate with Raleigh, and sharing his daring spirit. He had learned from some Indians many particulars of this country—its rivers, harbors, islands, fisheries and products. His enthusiasm to found a colony was not abated by many successive misfortunes, and his faith in its final success never died out. "I doubt not," he writes, "it will prove a very flourishing place, and be replenished with many faire towns and cities, it being a province both fruitful and pleasant."

Mason was a London merchant, sometime governor of Newfoundland, where he learned something of these parts, and became as enthusiastic as Gorges to plant a colony—an enthusiasm which never left him during its settlement and growth. He was also Governor, it concerns us to remember, of Portsmouth, in Hampshire, England. These two men obtained successive grants for themselves, covering vast acres, and in the general ignorance of boundaries, often resulting in conflicting interests, and began at once the work of founding a colony.

The May of the month when that colony reached our coast will probably never be determined; but it would seem that some unknown bark landed, perhaps in June, two companies—first, one at Little Harbor, under the direction of David Thompson, a Scotchman, and afterward one eight miles up the river at Dover, led by the Hiltons—and both furnished with all the necessary provisions for permanent occupation. At Odierne's Point, Thompson erected salt works to engage in fishing, and a house, called afterward Mason Hall, to which were annexed two or three thousand acres of land, after the fashion of an English manor; and in that hall, there is no doubt, and that very year, 1623, the religious services of the Piscataqua settlement were first, and thereafter regularly, held.

I have been somewhat tedious in bringing you to the beginning of the religious history of our town; but I have had a purpose in it. There has been a studied effort in all writers upon our early history to ignore the strong Church of England element there was in our settlement, and to give an impression utterly at variance with all reasonableness, analogies and facts—that worship was begun at a later date, and not until under the auspices of the devout Puritans. The formal gathering of a church and the most acceptable worship have often been gathered and offered in places unconsecrated by formal ceremonies. Particularly easy it has always been for adherents of the Church of England, with their well-arranged and finished liturgy, to have their worship where other sects might wait for the word of a minister.

Colonies bring with them the faiths of their neighborhoods, and change them or outgrow them but slowly. The Puritans did not change their creed by emigrating; they would have asked nothing better than to worship by it at home. Mason was a firm upholder and supporter of the Established Church of England; there is every evidence that he intended his colony to keep up that faith. He made provisions in his will for the support of a clergyman; the men he sent out were attached to that form of worship, and they brought with them all that was necessary for the furnishing of the altar. In the first inventory of the goods belonging to our settlement, we find named for religious uses, one great Bible, twelve service books, one communion cup and cover of silver.

They did not come for religious liberty, nor make a constant talk of their godliness, but there is every reason to suppose their services were as regular, and their worship as acceptable as that of their neighbors in the Bay Colony. And amidst all the strangeness of their new home by the Piscataqua, and no infrequent turning to the old, there must have been one thing familiar and grateful, which seemed to them like reentering their accustomed sanctuary, when Sunday after Sunday they gathered in Mason Hall and listened to the well-known words of the English prayer book—

"Dearly beloved brethren, the scripture moveth us, in sundry places, to acknowledge and confess our manifold sins and wickedness."

But it is not to be supposed that the repetition of this confession was an acknowledgement that they were sinners above all other settlers.

News and Notes.

During the past week the activity in the fitting out of naval vessels has in no wise abated. Four iron-clads were ordered into commission, viz.: the Passaic, Wyandotte, Nahant and Nantucket. All orders made regarding the movements of vessels are still kept a profound secret at the Navy Department, yet it is known that four monitors were last week ordered into commission, and it is believed that three more will be during this week. The Supply will soon be placed in commission and used as the training ship at New York instead of the Minnesota. The following will soon be ready for commission: The Miantonomah, Amphitrite, Jason, Shenandoah, Wachusett and Alliance. Orders have been telegraphed to Rear-Admiral Worden, commanding the European squadron, to rendezvous his command at Lisbon and thence sail for home. This, it will be remembered, was the exact movement of the fleet of 1873 under Rear-Admiral Case at the time of the Virginius troubles. A singular circumstance in connection with the armament of the navy is that Rear Admiral Rodgers left Mare Island Navy Yard, California, to report in person to the Secretary of the Navy November 16, and arrived last week. Several high officers intimate that he is to be ordered to command the combined European and North and South Atlantic Squadrons.

Meriden, Conn., at the recent election voted to license, and there is a bitter feeling between the prohibitionists and license men. The former have been employing New York detectives, and on Saturday had nineteen persons arrested for the unlawful sale of liquors.

W. T. Boyd, the signal observer in charge of the Portland station, ascended Mt. Kearsarge last week in company with Mr. Edward Whitford and a guide. On reaching the summit the snow was five feet deep in drifts, and the thermometer ten degrees below zero. In making the descent Mr. Whitford plunged into a snow-drift, at the bottom of which was a deep morass. Sinking through the crust of snow, his feet went deep into the mire, and he was released from his perilous condition by the heroic efforts of his companions.

Secretary Bristow sent the following telegram to the United States District Attorney at St. Louis, Saturday: I learn from the morning papers that in the course of the trial of Wm. A. Avery, yesterday, a witness mentioned a rumor that I was interested in a distillery or liquor house at Louisville, Ky. Substantially the same rumor was circulated in St. Louis by corrupt officials and guilty distillers, their confederates and friends last Spring, obviously for the purpose of breaking the force of the proceedings against them. So long as the matter rested on mere street rumor or in the columns of newspapers friendly to the ring, I could not properly take notice of it; but now that it has been dragged into Court, as it appears, at the instance of indicted officials, I deem it proper to request that every person whose name has been or can be given you as having knowledge of such alleged facts should be brought before the Grand Jury and subjected to the most rigorous examination. The statement is absolutely and unqualifiedly false so far as it affects me, but I do not desire to allow the matter to rest upon my denial. I beg to repeat the request, heretofore communicated to you, that these frauds on the Government shall be probed to the very bottom; that every ramification of the ring shall be followed in every part, from the beginning to the end, and that no one having connection with or guilty knowledge of its operations shall be permitted to escape. So far as this Deparment is concerned, I ask that every allegation against every officer of it, from its head to its humblest employe, be thoroughly investigated and vigorously prosecuted if any ground exists therefor. I have read this to the President, who repeats his injunction, "Let no guilty man escape."

"Brick Pomeroy" denies that he has failed.

The Saco river is closed with ice from the head of tide-water to within a mile of its mouth. Two schooners are frozen in, but will probably be cut out.

Two negroes were hanged for murder at Sardis, Miss., on Friday.

Mark M. Robinson, a jeweller in the employ of S. E. Young & Co., was badly burned about the face Saturday afternoon at Laconia, while using an alcohol lamp. The wick flew out, covering his head with burning fluid. It is thought he will save his eyesight.

During the past year the average of reliability of the signal service has been about seventy-six per cent., and its predictions of general storms have been almost without exception correct.

Charles Richards, who says he belongs in Nashua, bought an ounce of laudanum, drank it, and told a St. John, N. B., policeman what he did. He was taken to the police station, where he took a lot of water, which acted as an antidote, and he is now well.

An Egyptian force occupying one of the districts lately taken, was surprised by a large force of Abyssinians and 1200 Egyptain soldiers were murdered, including a number of officers.

Moses Dickinson, an old man living alone in Amherst, Mass., was found murdered Saturday night; he had been dead some days. Plunder was undoubtedly the object. A tramp who worked for him is missing and is suspected.

The appointment of a Commissioner of Indian Affairs, in the place of Smith, has been tendered to Edward S. Tobey, Esq., of Boston. Mr. Tobey will accept the office. The appointment is a good one.

The Indians are troublesome at Cimarron, New Mexico, and the citizens are arming in anticipation of an outbreak. The Indians refused to give up some of their number who were engaged in shooting at the agency, and their rations have been stopped.

"The Sunset Pavillion," kept by Malcolm Mason, at North Conway has suspended; liabilities, $16,000.

The Cherokee National Council counted the votes cast at the general election in August last for principal and assistant chiefs, and declared Chas. Thompson elected principal chief by 11 majority, and Judge Davis Rae assistant chief by 120 majority. The Senate stands eleven Ross men and seven Downing or Thompson men, and the lower House nineteen Ross men and fourteen Downing men. Everything passed off quietly. Chief Thompson, on taking the oath of office, intimated that there would be no material change in the management or policy of his administration.

Naval Constructor Hanscom has just visited Port Royal, and from his remarks it is supposed that the Government proposes to make it a naval station.

Two brothers, Germans, named Joseph and Gustave Rogg, have been arrested in Claremont for breaking and entering several houses there recently; most of their plunder has been recovered. Joseph Rogg is also charged with committing an aggravated assault upon an old man last August. His wife committed suicide Thursday night by taking bedbug poison. She would probably have been arrested as an accomplice had she lived.

The trial of Thomas W. Piper, charged with murdering little Mabel Young in a Boston church, will begin Dec. 6.

A curious incident happened at the Railroad Convention in St. Louis. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston was called to the platform, and was met by Gen. Sherman, who greeted him cordially and shook him by the hand amid the cheers of an assemblage which was pretty fairly divided between the North and South. Gen. Beauregard was called for next, and Gen. Sherman gave him the same hearty reception. Next there were cries for Jefferson Davis, but there were also some audible protests, and he declined to go.

The estimated value of all the live stock in Exeter is $49,217. From June 30th, 1874, to June 30th, 1875, 17,250 lbs. of butter were made.

Messrs. Lewis Rice & Son, the proprietors of the American House, Boston,—a very popular hotel with Eastern people—are in trouble, and, it is said, must go into bankruptcy. The mortgage, with interest, on the House is $450,000, and the mortgagee is said to have taken possession.

The first thing that most of the republican members of congress do after their arrival is to go to the treasury department and endeavor to induce the commissioner of internal revenue to retain their friends who have been cut off by the recent orders consolidating the revenue districts, which affects a good many subordinates as well as the collectors who are dismissed. They are told in every case that the revenue is now being collected on business principles strictly, and that if they can prove that the action of the bureau is not calculated to serve the interests of the people, the cases will be reviewed.

The wife of Patrick Marr, at Franklin Falls, committed suicide by poison on Saturday, on account of a family quarrel.

Henry Wilson used to invoke the spirits through the mediumship of Mrs. Wildes and Mrs. Hardy, and was sometimes so delighted with the result as to insist on doubling the fee of the medium. For reasons which he doubtless deemed politic, he refrained from a public confession of his faith, and to all outward appearances continued to move in the Orthodox grooves.

The second trial of Elwin W. Major on the charge of poisoning his wife commenced at Nashua on Monday.

John Scannell, who murdered Thos. Donahue in Johnson's pool room, Broadway, New York, was acquitted on Saturday. The verdict was founded on the evidence of Scannell's insanity, caused by his brother's homicide. Judge Barrett was indignant, and plainly intimated his disgust at the verdict. The Judge remanded the prisoner until Wednesday to ascertain whether his insanity continued.

John S. Burdett, the democratic Treasurer of the State of Virginia, has been impeached. E. A. Bennett, State Auditor, is the next candidate for impeachment.

There has been a strong effort on the part of several newly arrived Congressmen to fathom the mystery hanging over Secretary Robeson's warlike preparations. The conclusion reached by some of these is, that the President has decided to recommend to Congress an immediate recognition of Cuban belligerency. Certain republicans are stoutly defending this course as a necessary party move, since, as they argue, if the President does not do this the democrats of the House will immediately propose and pass a resolution of recognition. Whatever these preparations may mean, they still continue. In addition to the fitting out of the sea-going vessels of the navy, all receiving ships are performing active duty. Certain army officers seem to feel convinced that the end of the present movements is to be an interference in Cuba, and there has been a comparison of views as to the time it will take to withdraw the cavalry and artillery forces from the frontier and replace them there with volunteers, whom it would be necessary to enlist, to take care of the Indians.

Missouri has adopted a new constitution by 76,238 majority.

Just before the close of business Saturday afternoon, in the Interior Department, Secretary Chandler signed formal notifications addressed to the chief clerk, three heads of divisions and seven other principal clerks of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, informing them individually that their services will be, from this date, dispensed with. The notices of removal reached most of the offices after the clerks indicated had left for the day, and in these instances were forwarded after them to their homes. Among those removed are H. C. Clum, for many years Chief Clerk of the Indian Bureau; A. W. White, who has been connected with the Department ever since its organization; Walter P. Irving, Knox E. Baugh, Chief of Finance Division. These clerks, with the remainder of the nine removed, all occupied the most important positions in the office. The pressure for office at the Interior Department is so great that the Secretary is obliged to refer all the applicants to the appointment clerk.

The Chauncey and Grand Tunnel coal mines, between Plymouth and Nanticoke, Penn., caved in Nov. 19th, two hours after the owner, who had fears of such a disaster and had been investigating for a week, had ordered the mines to stop work. One hundred and twenty-five workmen had been employed. The fallen area embraces over a hundred acres, and the damage is $100,000.

A fresh attempt is being made in New York to secure the pardon of Frank Walworth who murdered his father in that city a few years ago, and was sentenced to the Penitentiary for the crime. It is alleged that the young man is growing insane over his confinement, and many extenuating circumstances are presented which, it is claimed, call for executive interference in his case. It will be remembered that the elder Walworth, who was a writer of some note, and who was separated from his family, was in the habit of writing the latter threatening letters, which were calculated to keep them in constant alarm. It was a favorite practice of that gentleman to open a vein in his arm, dip his pen in the blood, and write these direful missives, after which he would wrap them around bullets and send them to his wife. They breathed wholesale slaughter, but were regarded by many as empty threats, and the fruits of a brain diseased and hardly accountable. The son finally sought his father to remonstrate with him against sending such letters, and while defending himself, as he claims, against an attempt by the father, or what he thought an attempt upon his life, shot the latter dead at his feet. The jury thought the case a strong one, and brought in a verdict of manslaughter. The attempt to obtain a pardon for the parricide will again arouse interest in the case, which was an altogether strange and tragic one.

Eight hundred people were thrown out of employment by the burning of the Boston Rubber Shoe Co.'s factory at Malden on Monday. The fire caught from a match used to light the gas. Four large brick blocks and a wooden building were burned. Loss $300,000; insurance $139,5000.

Hon. Charles O'Conor, the eminent New York lawyer, is dead.

Detective Hildreth returned from Canada and St. Albans, on Friday, having made a successful trip, by which he secured important evidence in behalf of the State as to the character of Lepage while living in that country. He ascertained that the statement of Mrs. Lepage relating to the attempted murder of her sister was entirely true, and it is corroborated by the statement of the sister herself.

One year ago James Taylor, of North Hampton, had a full-blooded Buff Cochin hen, which shed its feathers in the usual manner. When the biddy appeared in its new dress, it was noticed that she had changed her color to a pure white, which she retains up to the present time.

The new State Colorado is seven times as large as Massachusetts, and much longer than all New England. It has great resources. When we consider this and the extent of other States and Territories in the West, we have some idea of the prospective greatness of our country.

The Press and Dakotian, published at Yankton, Dakota Territory, notices with interest an account of a Teachers' Institute, held at Yankton, in which all the great and vital subjects relative to the improvements in the educational system were considered. The West is doing nobly in education.

—Apropos to the death of Wm. B. Astor a New York correspondent is reminded of other of New York's money kings who must in the nature of things soon pay the debt of nature and pass away. There is A. T. Stewart, with a wealth estimated at forty millions, now over 80 years old, but clinging as closely to his vast business as if he were in the prime of life. He is childless, and has no heirs except distant relatives in Scotland and England. It is thought that he intends to leave the bulk of his money to various institutions in and around New York, but as yet he gives no especial signs of any such intentions. Of late, Stewart has bought great quantities of real estate, and has made money rapidly. The Vanderbilt property is put at thirty or forty millions. Old "Corvey" is far on the shady side of life, and his prodigious fortune will before long come to be divided among expectant heirs. It is said his yearly income is three millions of dollars. Vanderbilt has many children. His eldest is William Henry, a man of fifty-five, and the good right hand of his father in business. He is likely to get the lion's share of the estate. The Commodore is very liberal with his money but he doesn't begin to spend his income. There will be a large lot of heirs to take what he leaves. Peter Goelet, a bachelor, has a property worth ten millions. He is seventy-five, and will probably leave his money to a nephew and two sisters. George Law is working as hard to get money as he did years ago, when poor. When he dies nearly twenty millions will go to some one who would hardly thank him for all his toil and trouble to make it. Daniel Drew is likely to die with a great many millions, and then the Methodist church, it is expected, will come in for a good slice. The rich bachelors of Gotham constitute a very interesting group, and would look well in a picture.

Jottings.

The lyceum managers have provided a very enjoyable musical entertainment for this evening—an instrumental and vocal concert by the Naval Band and Miss Emma J. Flanders, the occasion being the first appearance of the popular and accomplished soprano singer of the Unitarian choir, in concert here. Mr. H. L. Harlow has selected a most inviting programme for the instrumental performance, including several that are new. The opening piece is from Verdi's opera, "Macbeth," which will be followed by one of Mr. John F. Shillaber's clarinet solos, the first part closing with a selection from Verdi, by the full band. Part second opens with a violin quartet, by Messrs. H. L. and J. W. Harlow, Burnham and Reinwold. Mr. Frank Burnham is down for a cornet solo, "Alice Polka;" and "Reminiscences of Verdi" close the concert. Miss Flanders' selections for the evening include the cavatina "Robert," in the first part, from "Robert Le Diable," and "When the Tide Comes In," in the second part. The concert will commence at half-past seven o'clock. Tickets for the remainder of the Course $1.50; evening tickets 25cts. each—for sale at Preston's and at the Temple.

Farmers' meeting, for public discussion, at Portsmouth Grange Hall, on Wednesday evening, Dec. 1st, at 7 o'clock. The public are invited.

The alarm of fire about six o'clock on Sunday evening was caused by the burning of the house of Mr. Lewis L. deRochemont, formerly known as the Hill house, on the Newington Road. The fire was first discovered by some parties who were riding by from Dover, who saw the blaze on the roof near the chimney and alarmed the inmates; but the fire was under such headway that they were unable to save but a small part of the furniture, only one table, a few chairs and one bed and a few other small articles. There was an insurance of $2000 on the house and $500 on the furniture. Mr. deRochemont built a fire in the dining-room on Sunday afternoon for the first time since last winter, and the fire evidently caught from a defect in the chimney.

Over 19,590 pounds of butter were made in Raymond in 1874. Ten per cent. more has been made this year, up to date, than last. From January 15, 1874, to October 15, 1875, there was made 4,235 pounds of cheese. The citizens sell but little milk. In 1874, only 296 gallons of milk were sold, while Epping sold 1092 gallons. Raymond dairy produce finds a ready market in Manchester and Portsmouth.

A citzen of Portsmouth purchased a half-dozen salt-cellars, made of heavy glass, on Saturday evening, carried them home and placed them side by side on a dining table, in a warm room. On Sunday morning at four o'clock, one of the cellars flew apart, awakening every member of the family. The broken cellar remained on the table and the breakage does not intefere with its use—but the portions broken off were thrown on the floor in all directions, twenty or more pieces in all, one being as large as a filbert. The cause of the breakage is an unsolved mystery.

Hon. Frank Jones has given $300 toward the purchase of a chime of bells for the Methodist church at Dover.

A large steamer painted white, with two masts, probably one of the day boats between Portland and Boston, was seen off this port about three o'clock on Monday afternoon trying to make a harbor, and probably went into York harbor.

The heavy Northwest gale which prevailed on Monday blew down the flag and staff on the custom house.

A report is current that two companies of State Militia, the Strafford Guards, of Dover, and the Portsmouth Artillery, are to be ordered to garrison Fort Constitution, at the mouth of this harbor.

The police will give their second annual ball Christmas eve.

An elegant memorial window of stained glass, to the memory of the late Timothy G. Senter, Esq., formerly of this city, has been placed in the chapel of the Dean Academy, at Franklin, Mass.

The Eastern Railroad.

It is rumored that the bondholders of the Eastern Road, in London, who hold $2,000,000 worth, have made an arrangement with the Grand Trunk by which the latter road will lease the Eastern—as the Eastern now leases the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth road—agreeing to pay a certain percentage a year to the stockholders. In such a case the Grand Trunk will appoint all their own officers and run the Eastern simply as a continuation of the Grand Trunk. The guaranteeing of a percentage would send up the stock of the Eastern.

The Boston Herald says: These rumors lack some essential features of probability. The English capitalists hold some $3,000,000 of 6 per cent. Eastern gold bonds, while nearly $12,000,000 of indebtedness is held, mostly in this country. It does not, therefore, look practical for the Grand Trunk to accomplish such an object, even if it entertained such a one, which is somewhat doubtful, unless it went into the market and bought up the stock and bonds of the Eastern at such rates as would give it that road at something near its real value. This, it is said, is part of the programme; but if it were, we should see large blocks of stock changing hands and disappearing from the market. While such a programme as that hinted at would no doubt be favorable to Boston interests, it is not safe to let our hopes lead us into unreasonable expectations. The present Eastern corporation may or may not be in the throes of dissolution—rumors have even obtained currency that attachments have already been levied upon its property—but until its peculiar business is in a way of being adjusted, and the various local interests, which have powerful reasons to see that things are ordered to their advantage, are satisfied or defeated in their aims, it is rather too soon to map out its future under the control of any outside corporation. The late fall in Eastern stock may be significant of some contemplated movement adverse to the road, or it may be one of the vagaries of the stock exchange. Whatever its cause there is no one wise enough to see clearly out of the present troubles of the corporation.

New Publications.

Donnelley, Loyd & Co., the publishers of The Lakeside Library, announce a cheap edition of George MacDonald's new and famous historical novel, "St. George and St. Michael." It is a stirring story of the civil wars in England, when men argued with swords the great questions of civil and religious liberty. The present volume is already conceded to be MacDonald's greatest as well as latest work, and the author himself is justly considered the Walter Scott of the day. Though the ordinary price of the book is $1.75, The Lakeside Library edition is sent, postpaid, for only 25 cents.

The same publishers have also issued "Ward or Wife?" a sparkling, vivacious story, told in a brisk, crispy way, and, indeed, one of the most entertaining books of the season. It is sent, postpaid, for only twelve cents. Truly, these publishers have brought about the millionium of cheap literature. For sale by newsdealers, or sent postpaid by Donnelley, Loyd & Co., pub's, Chicago.

Prompt Reinforcement.

When the physical energies are overtasked or flag through weakness or disease, they need prompt reinforcement. Renewed vigor is most speedily supplied through the medium of a tonic stimulant, and among medicinal resources of that class. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters assuredly deserve a pre-eminent place. Weakness, whether constitutional or arising from disease or over-fatigue, cannot be better compensated for than by a resort to this prime strengthening cordial. The enfeebled invalid, the convalescent and the aged and infirm find that it is an unfailing source of vigor and comfort. Its combined tonic and alterative properties also constitute it an invaluable remedy for indigestion, weakness of the organs of urination, constipation, torpidity of the liver, and many other irregularities and disabilities, and render it an invaluable protection against malaria, as well as disorders of the stomach and bowels.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

Sudden Changes in the Weather are productive of Throat Diseases, Coughs and Colds. There is no more effectual relief to be found, than in the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches."

"Throw Physic to the Dogs; I'll None of It."

We do not in the least feel like blaming Macbeth for this expression of disgust; indeed, we are rather inclined to sympathize with him. Even nowadays most of the catharties offered to the public are great, repulsive looking pills, the very appearance of which is sufficient to "turn one's stomach." Had Macbeth ever taken Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets he would not have uttered those words of contempt. It is really encouraging, when one is ill, to find that a little sugar-coated Pellet, no larger than a grain of mustard, will as promptly produce the desired effect as a dose of great, nauseating pills. These little Pellets, unlike other cathartics, are really nature's physic. They do not debilitate, but tone and invigorate the system. No family should be without Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.

A Fragrant Breath and Pearly Teeth

Are easily attained, and those who fail to avail themselves of the means, should not complain when accused of gross neglect. The SOZODONT will eradicate the cause of a foul breath, beautifying and preserving the teeth to the oldest age.

My Favorite Flute For Sale!

THIS Flute was made in Paris, to the order of a great Flutist, at the cost of $100. The great player subsequently met with pecuniary embarrassment and sold it as a sacrifice to Capt. Moses Ricker of the ship Colorado, then at Havre. I bought it of Capt. R. for $60. The Flute has eight pure and solid silver keys, and one more, on a lower extra joint. It is lined and bound with genuine silver; and is of very sweet tone. Circumstances in a pecuniary view induce me to offer it for sale at only $30.

SPECIAL SALE —OF—
Two Large and Elaborate Oil Paintings,
3½x4½ FEET CANVASS.

No. 1. Brilliant Marine View on the Piscataqua, at sunrise, looking down river from the northern end of Noble's Bridge, embracing a part of Badger's Island, the Navy Yard, St. John's Church, etc.

No. 2. Mid-Summer Scene on the Boquet River, New York; group of cattle refreshing themselves in the stream, beneath a large elm, etc.

I offer them below their real value, being desirous to obtain by the sale, a part of the means for an outfit and passage to South Carolina, where I have promised to be in December, as teacher of music and painting in a High School.

The paintings are now on free exhibition for a few days, at studio opposite the Post Office.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure a patent as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to employ him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

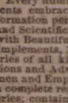
RE-OPENING OF THE

BAY STATE HOUSE,

ON THE

European and American Plan.



The Bay State House, situated on Hanover street, Boston, less than ten minutes' ride from the Northern and Eastern Depots, having undergone thorough and extensive repairs, with the addition of a new and spacious dining-room, a fine Billiard Hall, and several suites of private parlors, together with new furniture and carpets, and the introduction of all the appliances of a first-class Hotel, is now one of the best houses in Boston, was OPENED OCTOBER 1ST, 1875, under the management of FRANK S. BRIGHAM, long known in Boston and elsewhere, as an accomplished and successful landlord. None but good servants will be employed, and no pains spared for the comfort of guests.

Horse-cars pass the house every few minutes to various parts of the city, and near all places of amusement.

Coaches will be at the depots and boats to convey passengers to the house.

Terms $1.50 to $3 per day, including rooms.

It Pays! It Pays!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this to an extent beyond that of any other publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the world devoted to the Arts, Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Tools and Machine Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Workmen, Inventors, Engineers and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete repository of New Inventions and Discoveries, Science and Industry, which will keep the reader of N. Y. progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years, is the best, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for the shop and house will save many times the cost of the paper yearly.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; is every where admired in Colleges and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special Circular giving Club rates sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand inventions have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches by mail are examined free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. A bound volume containing the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 142 Engravings of mechanical movements. Price 25 cents.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to children, with its fashion plates and pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and the various dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and sparkle, are all invigorating to the mind. —Chicago Evening Journal.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can say myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials read you will see where they were sold in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. Inclosed please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them; and would like to know when I have taken enough to stop them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, and I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly purified. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Reedsdale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

In the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the fogs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE WEEKLY SUN.
1776. NEW YORK. 1876.
Eighteen hundred and seventy six is the Centennial year. It is also the year in which an Opposition House of Representatives, the first since the war, will be in power at Washington; and the year of the twenty-third election of a President of the United States. All of these events are sure to be of great interest and importance, especially the two latter; and all of them and everything connected with them will be fully and freshly reported and expounded in THE SUN.
The Opposition House of Representatives, taking up the line of inquiry opened years ago by THE SUN, will sternly and diligently investigate the corruptions and misdeeds of Grant's administration, and will, it is to be hoped, lay the foundations for a new and better period in our national history. Of all this THE SUN will contain complete and accurate accounts, furnishing its readers with early and trustworthy information upon these absorbing topics.
The twenty-third Presidential election, with the preparations for it, will be memorable as deciding upon Grant's aspiration for a third term of power and plunder, and still more as deciding who shall be the candidate of the party of Reform, and as electing that candidate. Concerning all these subjects, those who read THE SUN will have the constant means of being thoroughly well informed.
THE WEEKLY SUN, which has attained a circulation of over eighty thousand copies, already has its readers in every State and Territory, and we trust that the year 1876 will see their numbers doubled. It will continue to be a thorough newspaper. All the general news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment; and always, we trust, treated in a clear, interesting and instructive manner.
It is our aim to make the WEEKLY SUN the best family newspaper in the world, and we shall continue to give in its columns a large amount of miscellaneous reading, such as stories, tales, poems, scientific intelligence and agricultural information, for which we are not able to make room in our daily edition. The agricultural department especially is one of its prominent features. The fashions are also regularly reported in its columns; and so are the markets of every kind.
The WEEKLY SUN, eight pages with fifty-six broad columns, is only $1.20 a year, postage prepaid. As this price barely repays the cost of the paper, no discount can be made from this rate to clubs, agents, Postmasters, or anyone.
The DAILY SUN, a large four page newspaper of twenty eight columns, gives all the news for two cents a copy. Subscription, postage prepaid, 55c a month or $6.50 a year. SUNDAY edition extra, $1.10 per year. We have no travelling agents.
Address, THE SUN, New York City.

BEAUTIFUL THINGS.

BY ELLEN P. ALLEN.

Beautiful faces are those that wear—
It matters little if dark or fair—
Whole-souled honesty printed there.

Beautiful eyes are those that show,
Like crystal panes where hearth-fires glow,
Beautiful thoughts that burn below.

Beautiful lips are those whose words,
Leap from the heart like songs of birds,
Yet whose utterance prudence girds.

Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is earnest and brave and true,
Moment by moment the long day through.

Beautiful feet are those that go
On kindly ministries to and fro—
Down lowliest ways, if God wills so.

Beautiful shoulders are those that bear
Ceaseless burdens of homely care
With patient grace and daily prayer.

Beautiful lives are those that bless—
Silent rivers of happiness,
Whose hidden fountains but few may guess.

Beautiful twilight, at set of sun,
Beautiful goal, when toil shall won,
Beautiful rest, with work well done.

Beautiful graves, where grasses creep,
Where brown leaves fall, where drifts lie deep,
Over worn-out hands—Oh, beautiful sleep!

THE GRAND DUKE'S RIVAL.

[N. Y. Sun.]

Twinkling lights, glimmering through the crannies from a subterranean depth, the sounds of revelry, of half-smothered shouts, and of shuffling feet and the presence of many boys, jeering intently downward through the rails of a rusty iron fence, are the indication nightly at a ruinous old building in Centre street that the great Centennial Theatre is in full blast. The building is low-browed and smoke-begrimed; the roof is ready to fall in, the window panes and sashes have been pelted into bits, and rats and mice are by day its only occupants. It was formerly used by a Mr. Jones as a brass foundry, but it was abandoned in its old age over two years ago.

About a month ago an energetic little boy of Centre street, Bobby Cooke, obtained the consent of Mr. Jones to use the basement for a boys' theatre. Bob, who is only thirteen years old, went to work with a will. He erected a stage, got together a little company of amateurs, and gave entertainments to his comrades for the "small sum of two cents," as was announced on his playbills. The enterprise was successful from the outset; theatre goers flocked to the pit, and it was considered an unlucky night on which the ticket agent did not gather in at least a dollar and a half.

A tallow dip, in a tin reflector, shone from the door of the theatre entrance, and lighted the way into the damp, gloomy basement. Many boys leaned up against the brick pillars, looked laughingly into the half-lighted hallway, and for every person who passed they had the same cry: "I say, Boss, this's the Centennial Theatre; take us down, it's only three cents. Come, Boss, do."

Down a rickety flight of stairs, through a long hall, dark with mould and spectral with shadows cast by dim burning candles, up two or three steps, a turn to the left through a time and smoke-blackened room and you reach the entrance to the show room, at which stands the doorkeeper, collecting the money and thrusting off importuning deadheads. "I say, young fellow," said he, as a small boy with a handful of coppers tried to pass, "you're the chap that's struck us upon yer bogus pennies. T'ser ner use, yer can't come in, so git right out. You too," to another, "yer's the fellows that's kicked up the 'sturbance, yer can't come in, nuther." Passing the sentinel, who exclaims, "Say, boss, yer'd better take a orchestra chair, it's only five cents, and then yer can set in style," the visitor is ushered into the bright little histrionic temple of Manager Bob.

The room is about 30 feet by 15 feet, and about one-quarter is set apart for the stage. At the rear the seats, about a dozen plain pine benches, rise in tiers, and these are divided by an imaginary partition from the reserved seats, which are at the foot of the stage. The stage is elevated a foot or two, and is thickly covered with little movable scene boards, whose scenery is fresh from the brush of the artist, Lewis Orum. A life-size sketch of Gus Williams adorns the front board, and pictures of goddesses are mingled with those of burnt-cork minstrels. A photograph of G. L. Fox is fixed conspicuously in the top of the curtain. A bulletin in a corner announced on paper, in red chalk, that the "Big Three, Teddy Sullivan, Dick Burke, and Chris Letwith" will appear this week.

"Dick is the star," said little Robby, who, clad in a long overcoat, walked up and down among his audience, with his hands in his pockets and with a truly managerial air; "we're only just commenced," he continued, "but in a week or two we'll have things fixed up real nice. We'll enlarge the stage, have new scenes, and then we'll talk with 'Grand Duke' boys. Why, when they opened they had no stage and nothing; they were too poor to buy a footlight. We are having a first-rate run, and I put all the receipts over and above the expenses into improvements. There's where we do better than the 'Grand Duke,' for they took all their receips and spent them."

Just at that moment Bob caught a boy, who had dropped into a five cent seat, by the collar and tumbled him up on the terraced seats, and cried out, "Order here, boys, we must have order." He then went on:

"The hall costs us nothing, for Mr. Jones gives it to us free as long as we keep orderly. It's orful damp here," said he, pointing to the chilly black flag, "and we put mats on the floor; but I don't know what we will do in the winter, for Mr. Jones won't allow a stove here. The show lasts from 8 o'clock until 10. We've been running at two cents for admission, but lately we've had to raise the price to three cents. Now I can just pay the actors a moderate percentage on the receipts. When those are low, they don't get much pay. We have had a three dollar house several times, and once one that was worth four dollars and a half; the only night we had a bad loss that nearly ruined us, some fellows broke in, tore a new scene all to bits, and left only the tops of the trees hanging to the boards. They kicked up the carpet and smashed the footlights. Detective Dorcey is looking for them."

In the dressing, of which Bob was especially proud, were a paper of corks ready for burning, a few costumes, a piece of broken mirror, a chair, and a small patched pine table. Bob was going on to tell about his bright prospects, but he was interrupted by a flash of burning paper on the stage, a bell tinkled, and the green curtain was rolled down.

The first scene was the "Infelligence Office," and the different parts were performed with a skill that might grace the stage of many of our comedy theatres. Funny contortionists, expert clog dancers, negro minstrels, and variety showmen followed each other in rapid succession, and to each was accorded rapturous applause from pit and gallery. In the intervals of the parts the envious boys outside produced sometimes merriment and sometimes consternation by shouting to the audience. "I say, Johnny," shouted one a solemn part of the play, to one of the actors, "I say, ole boy, yer mother's out here lookun fur yer." Another cried out, "Cheese it fellers, here comes Lowery." The boys inside were perfectly quiet, and at the close of the play filed out demurely to their homes.

"If you'll just come here next week," said the little manager, "I'll show you something nice."

Daily Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1875.

News and Notes.

The Boston republican ward and city committee have nominated Halsey J. Boardman for Mayor. He had 72 votes, Mayor Cobb 66, Scattering 4.

It is said upon apparently good authority that President Grant has determined to remove E. F. Dunne, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Arizona, on account of the position he has assumed in his public speeches on the school fund question. He is an ardent Catholic, and has indicated his desire that his co-religionists shall have a share of the common school fund set apart for their special control. This places him open in opposition to the President's Iowa speech on the school question.

Collector Simmons states that he has saved about $90,000 by cutting down expenses this year, and he expects to have $20,000 more during the remainder of the fiscal year.

Hon. John S. Bennett died in Lawrence Monday morning, of heart disease, at the age of 66 years. He was formerly a resident of Newmarket, a member of the New Hampshire State Senate and a prominent democratic politician in this State.

The Mayor of New York receives $12,000 per annum, or $2000 more than a member of the Cabinet; while the Comptroller receives $10,000, as much as the Secretary of the Treasury.

Governor-elect Kirkwood, of Iowa, seems to stand a better chance than ever for the Senatorship, as the leading republican papers, which had previously denounced him for making the Governorship a stepping-stone to the Senate, are now weakening in their opposition.

Isn't it a little singular that several of the clergymen of these two cities should have neglected to make any preference to the death of Vice President Wilson, in their sermons yesterday?—Biddeford Times. Why should they prefer his death?

George W. Shannon of Candia, both of whose legs are withered to the knees, took himself from the poor farm four years ago and began to earn his own living by sawing wood and doing other things upon his knees, and now he has $600 in the savings bank.

There is a lady living in Stratham who is over 90 years of age, is the mother of nineteen children, and retains all of her teeth, which are in a sound condition.

Vice President Wilson was engaged to be married to Mrs. John A. Jackson of Williamson county, Tennessee. The marriage was to take place on the recovery of his health. It was mainly to see her that he visited Nashville last Spring. They met first at Washington, and had kept up a constant correspondence since. Mrs. Jackson was one of the most distinguished and highly cultivated ladies in the South.

Colebrook will probably be entitled to two representatives next year, instead of one, as heretofore.

The Secretary of the Navy still continues his mysterious operations. The Nantucket, the last of the ironclads that is finished and available, is ordered into commission. The complete list of available ironclads will now be ready for their most efficient service in a few days. It is even said that orders have been sent to Lisbon directing the entire Mediterranean squadron to return home. These orders, it is thought, have reached Lisbon. The entire torpedo corps is also actively engaged in the preparation of torpedoes. These operations are conducted with the strictest secrecy. Orders have been given in the Navy Department to permit no information of the movements of the ironclads to be made public. All the vessels on the Atlantic coast north of New Orleans have been ordered to rendezvous at Norfolk.

It is claimed that Governor Hendricks has been successful in securing the support of the Michigan delegation in the next democratic National convention.

It is understood that the collector of customs at Boston had joined with those at New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore in a determination to make a uniform reduction of fifteen per cent. in the salaries of the employes of his department, instead of reducing the force, in order to come within the requirements of the Secretary of the Treasury for a reduction of expenses from and after Dec. 1st. Secretary Bristow is of opinion that a reduction of salaries could well be made at the various custom houses, as the salaries there paid exceed those of employes in the Treasury Department. He thinks a cutting down of 15 per cent. would leave the rates of pay about the same as they were before Richardson increased them.

The democrats of Wood County, O., have withdrawn from the contest, and both republican Senators, Messrs. Brown and Swan, will take their seats.

Mr. Beecher having expressed a wish that his enemies be ejected from Plymouth Church, ex-deacons George A. Bell and Chas. C. Duncan were asked to explain their absence from service, having been absent a year though owning a pew and holding membership. Mr. Duncan obeyed the summons and protested against being dropped from the rolls. When asked his reason for continued absence Mr. Duncan bluntly replied: "It is due to the fact," "that, on evidence which is satisfactory to my own mind, I believe that Henry Ward Beecher is an adulterer and a perjurer." Mr. Duncan has for nine years been a member of Plymouth Church, and within that period has been a deacon, superintendent of the Sunday school, member of the examining committee, purchaser of expensive pews, and liberal contributor of money and personal services. His white hair and whiskers, and pleasant face, used to be familiar to the congregation. He was also a warm personal friend to Mr. Beecher. His first defection, observable by others, was in the early dealings of Plymouth with Mr. Tilton, when he strongly opposed the policy adopted by the church, and advocated a thorough investigation of the scandal.

The whaling business is reviving. The catch of whales in the Atlantic Ocean, the present year, has been good, and New Bedford ships heard from in the Pacific are meeting with success.

Holding fast to the old name, which it has carried successfully through the long period of thirty-four years, the American Agriculturist swings out its banner for the "Centennial Year" with the vigor of the prime of life, and with well founded promises of still greater achievements in its appropriate sphere—that of a plain, practical, highly instructive and trustworthy family journal. Its name, adopted at the start for a special field of work, has become almost a mis-nomer, because it is now equally useful to city, village, and country. The closing number of volume 34, now before us, like its usual issues, is full of good things, varied in contents, which are prepared with much labor, thought and care, and illustrated with over 60 well executed and well printed original sketches and engravings. This Journal is a marvel of cheapness, beauty and utility, costing only $1.60 a year, postage included, for its more than 500 double pages of useful information, and 500 to 600, or more, of fine engravings. Every family should have it. Orange Judd Company, Publishers, 245 Broadway, New York City.

The Lewiston Journal thinks that if the Grand Trunk should marry the Eastern railroad, the Maine Central and the Boston and Maine would join hands before long.

The Belchertown tragedy, whereby two young misses attempted to kill themselves, one successfully, as the outgrowth of a school-girl love affair, has its sequel in the attempt of another 14 year-old girl in that town to poison herself. She loved a wandering photographer, and she confided to her mates her intention of committing suicide if he left town. But her mates revealed the terrible secret, and her parents will endeavor to show her the errors of her ways.

G. P. Felt's house at Peterboro' was burned on Monday. Loss $2500; insurance $1500.

Mr. E. S. Tobey, of Boston, has informed Secretary Chandler that he feels obliged to decline the position of Commissioner of Indian Affairs tendered him by the President, as private business and especially a large trust recently confided to him will require his personal attention at home. Secretary Chandler expresses great disappointment at his declination, as he felt sure that he had secured the right man for the place, and that with Mr. Tobey at the head of the Bureau, and new men succeeding all the old employes removed last Saturday it would no longer be made a subject of suspicion, whether well or ill founded.

Paul Morphy, the chess player, isn't insane after all. The story originated from the fact that he is busy practising law.

Schooner John Somes was capsized in Boothbay Harbor Monday afternoon, and Captain Gott of Portland and one seaman were drowned. The others were saved.

The trial of Elwin W. Major for poisoning his wife has been postponed to Dec. 24th, on account of the illness of one of the prisoner's counsel.

Bank Robbery.

The particulars of the recent bold bank robbery in Monroe, Mich., reveal an extraordinary amount of daring on the part of the robbers. They entered the bank building through a rear window soon after midnight, and overpowered, gagged and handcuffed the watchman, and unceremoniously conveyed him to the cellar, where one of the rascals mounted guard over him. An old man who happened to come down the street was seized, handcuffed, gagged, and put into the bank. The night was cold, and the bank watchman, stripped to his shirt, was chilled through and seemed to suffer considerably. The ruffian who guarded him, seeing the state of the case, cautioned the watchman to keep still, but said they did not propose to allow him to freeze to death. Then he went up stairs, got the watchman's pantaloons and stockings, and put them on him. Having got everything ready the burglars went to work. The men did not seem to be in any hurry, or to be at all careful in regard to making a noise. They threw their tools on the floor, and with sledges went to work at the hinges of the vault. A very short time was necessary to give them access to the inside of the safe, and to give them $15,000 in currency and about $5000 in bonds. They then left the bank, first, however, releasing one hand of the bank watchman and blowing up the stove, probably with the idea of burning the building and getting a better start with their booty while the people were fighting the fire. The fire, however, did no particular damage. A livery stable was their next point of attack. Here was a man sleeping, and him they overpowered, gagged and tied. They then took a horse and buggy, and part left in the vehicle, the balance of the party stealing a hand-car and taking the railroad track. As soon as the bank watchman thought it safe to do so, he gave the alarm and the police started in pursuit. On the track the locomotive struck the hand-car which the burglars had abandoned. The horse and buggy were found by a man coming into Monroe, showing signs of very hard driving. No further traces of the burglars had been discovered at last accounts.

The Use of Cap's.

With your indulgence I will say a few words more relative to the use of capital letters. In the first number of the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, published Oct. 1, 1756, the first article by the publisher is addressed to the readers, and is what we should call a Prospectus now. Every noun begins with a capital. Grammars were then few, if any in the country. Probably Mr. Fowle had not seen one, nor any rules for the use of capital letters in writing. In very many writings in earlier times, there was a free use of capitals, more than would be judged proper now.

But the point I made in a former article and still make, is that the rules of grammar as to the use of capitals are not rigidly applied by writers. I do not say they ought to be. I say this, however. The rules ought to be absolutely right and then all should be governed by them. I said before, that in works printed in the highest style of the art, capitals are used where the rules of grammar do not allow them. I stand to that, and in fact approve of it. I will give but one example and that not in the very highest style of printing. In a book entitled Sabbath Hymns, used in many congregations of worship, No. 175 has these lines printed thus:

"O Farthest off, O Ever near Most hidden and Most blest."

The rules do not allow the capitals in the words Farthest, Ever nor Most.

And in my judgment such words as State, Legislature, Government, School Committee, etc., should begin with capitals. We never saw them begin with small letters only in the late Report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction of this State.

J. F.

At the Theatre for the First Time.

He occupied a seat in the dress circle, on Saturday evening. The play was Richard III, and Barry Sullivan seemed to have impressed him with the wickedness of his character. As the curtain went down on the first act, he remembered something; going down under his chair, he produced a black slouch hat, which had seen good service, placed it, bottom up, between his knees, and proceeded to transfer a half gallon of chestnuts from his overcoat pocket into the cavity generally occupied by his cranium.

A gentleman sitting on his right gave one glance of withering disgust, and then buried his face in his out-spread programme. As the curtain went up in the next act he was fairly at work, and divided attention with the stage to those around him.

At the first shifting of the scenes he stopped crunching chestnuts for a moment, turned to the gentleman on his right, and exclaimed.

"Dygeverseethisafore?

"Yes!" he replied savagely, gazing round at the same time to see if any of his friends were in that portion of the theatre.

"Well, how does this feller turn out, anyhow?"

Gentleman, at this juncture, had his left hand up to the side of his face, and seemed so intensely interested in the performance as not to hear him.

The separation of the Queen and her children worked intensely upon his feelings. As they went off the stage, he brought his hand down heavily on the gentleman's shoulder and broke forth:

"I'm darned if 'taint a shame, aint it, Mister? How'd you say this son of a gun turned out?"

Gentleman stared in vain for a vacant chair, then turned and meekly replied, "He gets killed in battle."

"Does he? You certain 'bout that, Mister? You know he's a hard customer to handle. But then if you say you've seen it afore."

Here he resigned himself to the chestnuts, and seemed to be deeply and silently interested in the play.

One of the ushers happened to notice him, and coming down, tapped him gently on the shoulder, and said: "See here, my friend, this is no hog pen."

"Well, who'n thunder said it was. If you're huntin' for a puttin' up place, you'd better move on."

An audible smile stole over the countenances of those in the immediate vicinity, and the usher continued:

"Well, see here what a mess you are making around here; this is made for ladies and gentlemen."

"Now, say, look ahere! I paid a half a dollar to come in here, and furdermore I want to see this here feller git killed in peace; but if you don't g'way and let me alone, I'll sling you down thar on the other floor and break your derned meddlin' neck; and I'll eat as many chestnuts as I want."

The usher retired, and then sat contented until Richard met Richmond, in the last act.

He leaned eagerly forward, his eyes fixed on the combatants; as the swords crossed, he grasped the arm of the gentleman on his right in a vice like grip, and caught the two edges of his hat with the other; he raised half way up in his seat, and at each blow he gave a convulsive jerk with his right hand; and the gentleman, who was rather small, in his endeavors to escape, was doing a sort of double song and dance exercise. As the death blow was struck by Richmond, he raised him clear off his feet and let him go right over the row of seats in front; at the same time he threw his other hand up, and one edge of the hat was loosened, and the contents, about a quart of chestnuts, was distributed over the heads of the audience in his vicinity. Giving one desperate yell to wind up with, he remarked: "This was a purty good piece, an I've stayed an seen that blamed buggar killed, but I wouldn't come inside this derned place agin if it busted up to-morrow!"

—Rev. W. H. H. Murray writes in the Golden Rule as follows: We do not imagine that death will affect us much in any way. It will be what a long, deep breath is to the body on a sultry day. So much of stimulation, of exhilaration shall be in it as shall be a satisfaction to us and shall fit us for further effort. But we do not imagine it will bring any change to organize capacity or prove a revolution in our faculties at all. It will give us new aspirations for and opportunities of growth, but that it will be any growth in itself we are not persuaded. Personally, we think of it more as an incident than as an event; more as an accident than as an experience in our life. It is ahead of us and we shall come to it and pass over it as our feet come to and pass over an imaginary line drawn across our path—the line affects neither us nor our way. It brings no change to us; it gives no new direction to our movement. It will be a gain because of what it brings us to, not because of its influence on ourselves. There is no reason to fear it therefore. We should fear sleep just as much as we do death, had we never experienced it. If it be as sleep we need not dread it for we shall all wake out of it if we have enough of the Divine life in us to wake us.

—Religious intelligence from Tennessee: "Her matchless and perfect figure was a model, and never showed to so much advantage as when she knelt for baptism."

"The Pilgrim Fathers, where are they!" It would be such satisfaction to haul them over the coals for settling in a location with such a Winter climate as ours. It is reverently hoped that they found a warmer atmosphere when they departed from it.

Cold weather came down "like a wolf on the fold" on Monday, and old Boreas just arose in his majesty and swept the earth with chilly breath, creaking the signs, howling through crevices, shaking old structures and behaving as if it was the rarest enjoyment making everybody who dared venture out uncomfortable in body and sore in spirit. Monday night was what the newsboys call a "stinger," and the mercury sank to five and in some localities fourteen degrees below zero. Tuesday was as cheerless a day as ever pedestrian encountered. The cold increased, the wind blew on, and humanity hugged closer the fireside and remarked: "Hope there'll be no fire alarm while this wind blows.

The navy yard chap who goes to the pay office to "agonize" the men into line, and who when directing that some plank should be placed parallel to a steam box gave the order to "paralyze them plank," made an appointment to meet a fellow workman "down objick the mast house."

The Portsmouth Washington Total Abstinence Society was organized in 1841, and still live—lives a great deal too still, some of its members think, and measures are accordingly to be taken, to bring the old society, and its objects and advantages, more prominently before the public. The list of members, from the start, through all the years that have elapsed, and the various removals or periods of special and increased interest that have occurred, is very long, and there are many names inscribed thereon who have neither remembered nor kept their pledge. But there is still a goodly roll of those who have proved true; and a committee has been appointed, consisting of Rev. Mr. Goss, Mr. Craig and Mr. Thorndike, to make arrangements for a social meeting and reunion of those ladies and gentlemen who are thought to believe in and practice total abstinence, and whose names are found on the old society's list. All such will receive notice and invitation in due time.

The Biddeford Times thinks Portsmouth people need not look upon the Hennessey coffin-plate incident as anything very mysterious, and says: "We have a coffin-plate in our office, on which is recorded the death of a woman, whose bereaved husband brought it to us for the purpose of copying her death for our paper. The husband is requested to call and take said plate away."

There is talk of forming an Anti-tobacco Society in Portsmouth.

The first of the series of meetings for the agricultural and other discussions, is to be held this (Wednesday) evening, at seven o'clock, at the hall occupied jointly by Portsmouth Grange and the Mercantile Library Association. Members of both Societies, and farmers, and the public generally are invited to attend. Members of the State Board of Agriculture will take part in the discussions this evening.

Uselessness.

Editor Chronicle; Permit me, though with a proviso, through the columns of your paper, to extend the right hand of fellowship to your valued correspondent, "Grandpa," of Monday's issue. In these days of sham, overdone-beef, and pinbacks, when no man knows just how his neighbor stands upon many of the great questions that in he days of our ancestors shook Greece from centre to circumference, it is refreshing to meet a fellow toiler who, diving beneath the surface for his mental pabulum is not satisfied with the skim-milk diet of the present "entertainment" but soars aloft, with ever expanding wings of faith, love, hope and charity, into the clear ether that bathes the shore of infinitude.

Evidently my unknown friend; for he must be my friend though unknown.

Two souls (you know) with but a single thought,
Two hearts (you know) that beat as one.

Par nobile fratrum!

is a proficient in the science of zoonomy, and is intensely alive to the practical in questions of metaphysical ethics when they imply a just appreciation of matter and form in all that pertains to the beautiful, whether exemplified in the arrangement of drapery, in bread making, or in kindling a coal fire.

What says the poet? "Omnia vincit amor, et nos cedamus amore."

"Grandpa" has evidently studied the great book of nature, and fully understands that "species are the modified descendants of other species." For proof of this I refer him to Perther, Wallace, Huxley, Lyell, Hackett, (not the Col.) and others; though what this has to do with "snakes" is more than the deponent knoweth unless "grandpa" has been on a protracted "tare;" in that case all is as clear as the bottom of the Madson street reservoir.

My proviso, alluded to in the first lines of this communication, signifies that I am in full sympathy, as this artic'e also I trust shows, with "Grandpa's" philosophy, so plain, simple and childlike, so Socratic in its nature is it, save where he needlessly and flippantly brings in a name, that, whatever its significance to him, is alive with the tenderest and most reverential memories to thousands of others.

Take your hat off, "Grandpa," when you speak that name, and do it reverently.

CON AMORE.

—Probably one of the worse businesses under the sun is that of a printer. His every deed seeks the light of day. Those of the lawyer lie in the dark boxes and between shelves—the doctor places his indifferent handiwork in the earth—the tradesman has but his customer to please, and in satisfying him his work is ended. But the printer—every ignoramus spells over the work of the printer. Fellows who would find it impossible to put twenty letters together grammatically will point out with glee a fault in his work—indeed it is usually this class of individuals who make it a point of finding out every little discrepancy. Did the public know the thousands of different characters, different letters and atoms comprised in a printer's every day life—did they but know the variety of altogether foreign subjects he has to set up, read, correct and revise day after day—they would wonder how he kept out of the lunatic asylum. But practice makes perfect, and constant friction has rubbed off all the rough edges from the character of the man of letters—nothing takes effect upon him—he can view errors of the most frightful description with calmness. After all, what is an error, grammatical or otherwise? Simply so many types out of place, that's all, and quite enough—but not enough to upset the equanimity of the printer.

—In his treatise on Physiology, Hinton gives us to understand that the passage of the ear does not require cleaning by us; nature undertakes that task, and in the healthy state fulfills it perfectly. Her means for cleansing it is the wax, which dries up into thin scales and peels off and falls away imperceptibly. In health the passage of the ear is never dirty, but an attempt to clean it will infallibly make it so. Washing the ear out with soap and water is bad; it keeps the wax moist when it ought to become dry and scaly, and makes it absorb dust. But the most hurtful thing is the introduction of the corner of a towel screwed up and twisted around. This proceeding irritates the passage and presses down the wax and flakes of skin upon the membrane of the tympanum, producing pain, inflammation and deafness. The washing should only extend to the outer surface, as far as the fingers can reach.

My Favorite Flute For Sale!

THIS Flute was made in Paris, to the order of a great Flutist, at the cost of $100. The great player subsequently met with pecuniary embarrassment and sold it as a sacrifice to Capt. Moses Hicker of the ship Colorado, then at Havre. I bought it of Capt. R. for $60. The Flute has eight pure and solid silver keys, and one more, on a lower extra joint. It is lined and bound with genuine silver; and is of very sweet tone. Circumstances in a pecuniary view induce me to offer it for sale at only $30.

Daily Chronicle.

—The Washington correspondent of the Courier-Journal says the most interesting occupation at present among the assembling Congressmen is the making of a new Speaker for the democratic House of Representatives, and on the part of the ladies of suitable toilets for the many festivities which are set down on the winter programme. The woman who makes a study of the art of dressing well, and gives her whole mind to it, feels the importance of selecting wisely and discreetly. By an inexorable law she must dress well. It makes no difference whether she can afford it or not, if she has a husband in public life he has to help sustain the position. There is no time for preparation as the occasions arise. The dinner dress for a state dinner at the White House must be ready before the inventions are out. Another for the diplomatic dinners must be thought of, for there is a fixed etiquette for such occasions. Then there are dresses for home receptions, carriages or visiting toilets, and something from last season fixed over for levees and cushes. There are many things to be thought of beside the dresses, as nowadays there are so many accessories to the toilet. For instance, sixteen is the regulation number of narrow silver bands for the arm. There are fichus for low-necked waists and sleeveless jackets for high; there are jabots, flowers, laces, gloves, feathers and jewels; there are hats for full dress; for demi-toilette and for ordinary wear; there are wraps for operas and parties, for visiting, and something suitable for every dress. There are enough to occupy every moment of time, even if the dress-makers come up to time and prove satisfactory. Besides the important occupation of what the fashionable woman is to wear, there are a hundred things left for the last weeks prior to the opening of the season.

—"My son," said a bland old gentleman to a little boy, "would you not like to come to Sunday-school to sing, and pray, and hear all about Moses and Aaron, and the whale, and the fiery furnace, Joseph's coat of many colors, and put your pennies in the box?" "Be you going to have a Christmas tree?" asked the child. "No," answered the old man; "but we are going to spend the money that would be spent for candles and oranges and candy in sending tracts to little heathen children in ——" "That'll do," answered the rude young boy, as he took a sight at the good man; "I don't train with no such Sunday-school as that," and he departed to stone a lost dog.

—Some men were talking about the nerve of William Tell in shooting an apple off his son's head. To vex an old lady who was listening, one of the men said, "That was Mr. Tell; but what did his wife amount to—why doesn't history mention her?" "I'll bet a hundred dollars!" called the old lady, in an excited voice, "I'll bet a hundred dollars that she sat up half the night before, patching that boy's trousers so he'd look decent to go out!"

It Pays! It Pays!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into the household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

which has been published weekly for the past 30 years, stands to-day in extent beyond that of any other publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to manufactures, Inventions, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Mechanical, Chemical and Scientific Progress of the World: Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful notes, Receipts, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete Encyclopedia of New Facts and Discoveries; containing a weekly record not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years. It is the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price, and for the shop and house will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars giving Club rates sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all Inventions patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention, by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. A bound volume containing the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 150 Engravings of mechanical movements. Price 25 cents.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them, some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did me good. I never take only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please send $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. H. LEONARD, Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels and Complaint of the Liver, and to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully, MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. The Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble will take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Reading, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

Notices of the Press.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well as entertainers of the public mind.—Boston Globe.

The character which this Magazine possesses for variety, enterprise, richness of its pictorial and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has not led the time, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. The Magazine has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Some of the most popular of modern novels have first appeared as serials in this Magazine. In all respects it is an excellent periodical and fully deserves its great success.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Country Gentleman

POSTAGE FREE FOR 1876.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published WEEKLY on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: Single Copy, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN possesses an unequaled Corps of Correspondents, regular and occasional, among the best Farmers of all parts of the country, and constantly receives, during the season, information of every kind, and comments upon the condition and progress of the husbandry of every section of the United States and civilized world.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives to its Horticultural Department a continuous variety of information and suggestions, equal or superior in the aggregate to what is obtained in the monthly numbers of most magazines devoted to Horticulture.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN has probably done as much as all other Journals combined, to introduce and disseminate Improved Stock of every kind throughout the country; and commands to a greater degree than any contemporary, the confidence and support of Breeders and purchasers.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN containing unusually full and trustworthy Market Reports, and devotes a special attention to them and to the Prospects of the Crops, in throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN embraces numerous minor departments of practical character, such as the Dairy, the Poultry-Yard, the Apiary, the Vineyard, and so on, and weekly presents a column or two for the Housewife and an interesting variety of Practical Notes, and its advertising pages furnish a directory of all the principal agricultural and horticultural establishments of the country.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, etc., USE Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE WEEKLY SUN.

1776. NEW YORK. 1876.

Eighteen hundred and seventy six is the Centennial year. It is also the year in which an Opposition House of Representatives, the first since the war, will be in power at Washington; and the year of the twenty-third election of a President of the United States. All of these events are sure to be of great interest and importance, especially the two latter; and all of them and everything connected with them will be fully and freshly reported and expounded in THE SUN.

The Opposition House of Representatives, taking up the line of inquiry opened years ago by THE SUN, will sternly and diligently investigate the corruptions and misdeeds of Grant's administration, and will, it is to be hoped, lay the foundation for a new and better period in our national history. Of all this THE SUN will contain complete and accurate accounts, furnishing its readers with early and trustworthy information upon these absorbing topics.

The twenty-third Presidential election, with the preparations for it, will be memorable as deciding upon Grant's aspirations for a third term of power and plunder, and still more as deciding who shall be the candidate of the party of Reform, and as electing that candidate. Concerning all these subjects, those who read THE SUN will have the constant means of being thoroughly well informed.

THE WEEKLY SUN, which has attained a circulation of over eighty thousand copies, already has its readers in every State and Territory, and we trust that the year 1876 will see their numbers doubled. It will continue to be a thorough newspaper. All the general news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment; and always, we trust, treated in a clear, interesting and instructive manner.

It is our aim to make the WEEKLY SUN the best family newspaper in the world, and we shall continue to give in its columns a large amount of miscellaneous reading, such as stories, tales, poems, scientific intelligence and agricultural information, for which we are not able to make room in our daily edition. The agricultural department especially is one of its prominent features. The fashions are also regularly reported in its columns; and so are the markets of every kind.

The WEEKLY SUN, eight pages with fifty-six broad columns, is only $1.20 a year, postage prepaid. As this price barely repays the cost of the paper, no discount can be made from this rate to clubs, agents, Postmasters, or anyone.

The DAILY SUN, a large four page newspaper of twenty eight columns, gives all the news for two cents a copy. Subscription, postage prepaid, 55c a month or $6.50 a year. SUNDAY edition extra, $1.10 per year. We have no travelling agents.

Address, THE SUN, New York City.

THE BOAT, BABY AND PILOT.

[Locke's National Magazine.]

Propeller, compound direct-action engine, two hundred horse power! A good sea-boat, ninety-seven feet over all, two hundred tons burden, coppered below, and a fine sea-green above the water-line. House on deck for engine, captain's quarters, cook-room, state-rooms, etc., with a wheel-house on top forward.

A magnificent creature born for the sea, and the pride of the captain's heart. He loved her from the top of her smoke-stack to the shoe of her fore-foot. The throb of her iron heart filled him with joy, and the creamy torrent beneath the stern was his delight. He admired his boat almost as much as he did his wife. Just now his wife peeped out of the wheel-house window upon the waters of the North River, and noted the ships, steamers, and the low trailing storm drifting with wind and rain over New York.

A short, well-made and rather plain young woman. Gray eyes, a bronzed complexion, and a quiet air of reserve, suggested a girl matured by the salt-breath sea. Her father had been a pilot, her home the southern shores of Long Island, her husband owned this boat, and on it she had lived since her wedding day. By name, both boat and woman were known as "Jane," with an affix—"Thompson"—for the wife.

She was quite alone and stood silently turning the wheel this way and that, and picking her way among the ships anchored or moving in the stream. A huge ferry-boat making for the Twenty-third street slip, loomed gigantic out of the mist, while her hoarse whisper sounded out two short gasps over the water. The woman raised her hand to an iron bar over her head, and the musical chord of A filled the air with sonorous din. The wheel turned quickly under her hands, and with these signals they pass in safety. The wife let fall one of the windows and looked earnestly out on the river. She was now opposite Twenty-third street, and, as the rain and mist swept away for a moment, she saw a scene of wild and stormy grandeur spread wide before her.

To the right, New York. To the left, the trees and lawns of the "Elysian Field," the heights of Hoboken, the black docks of the oil and coal companies, the anchored forest of masts clustered around the Erie landings, and the chimneys and steeples of Jersey City. Before her, one of the pathways of the world's commerce. A monster yellow elevator came pushing up the stream. A tangle of ferry-boats shot like shuttles across the warp of the river, weaving the web of trade. A White River boat, vast, unwieldy, and black with people, came sweeping onward past the loitering elevator. A black raft of canal-boats drifted with its steamer against the wind. A three-master, with wings spread wide, plowed the foaming path against the tide, and a mighty steamship stood slowly turning in mid-stream. Wind and tide struggled in white-capped waves, and over all fell the rain in circling, fitful showers. The confusion, the uproar of the warning whistles, the speed and restless power of the moving vessels, might well have blanched the cheeks of a man. The captain's wife saw it all with calm gray eyes, and with steady nerves carried herself unharmed along the watery way. She blew the resounding chord of A in commanding measure and spiteful shrieks, and booming drones they answered her. The towering river boat swept past, and the people looked in wonder at the woman's face gazing out the wheel-house window. The wide-swung boom of the schooner threw a shadow over the wet deck, and the swash of the two ships dashed in spray over the bows. A long-armed steamer rushed in frantic haste across her bows. The woman merely bit her lip with impatience, as she pulled her bell. The engine stopped, and the boat slowed down gently. Then on again past the low stem, and through the creamy wake of the impertinent paddler. Another ocean-steamer backed out into the stream, just as a whole fleet of lumbering sloops swept up abreast. The deep roar of the steamship's whistle filled the air, and the wet sails were swung round in hasty escape.

The door of the wheel-house opened, and the captain entered. A seafaring man, tall, bushy-bearded and manly. He quietly took the wheel, and the wife sat down on the leather-covered sofa behind him.

"The Frenchman is out, and the National has started. The Canada has whistled but the rest seem quiet. I suppose the White Star will go below?"

"Yes," said the man, "It's low course of tides. She'll go down and wait."

The wheel flew round quickly, and the scene outside seemed to sail round from left to right as the boat turned in toward the old dock of the White Star Steamers at Pannia Ferry. The bell rang and the boats stopped, and lay rolling gently from side to side on the water. The black bows of the steamship towered high above the yellow water, and the four masts seemed to stand an indefinite distance inland. Clouds of black smoke were pouring from the huge funnel and angry puffs of steam spurted from her rusty black sides. A deep roar burst from her whistle. The boatswain's whistle piped shrill on deck. An eager crowd of people gathered at the head of the pier.

"I suppose we'll have to take the mails and the Late steerage down?" said the wife.

"That's the order," replied the captain as he rang the bell.

The engine in deep gasps shook the boat as she gently moved ahead and turned aside to escape the steamer. The immense mass of the steamship moved slowly forward. There were cheers high on deck, half unheard in the dismal drone of the whistle. Slowly the majestic creature slid into the river. It cleared the dock, and hundreds of heads peeped over the high rail, looking down. The captain's wife stood up, and leaned out the window and gazed up at the enormous mass moving past. The condenser was throwing a steaming torrent of water from her side and it fell in a cataract on the tow-boat as it passed. Swirling, binding clouds of steam puffed in her face, and the boiling fury of the great propeller made the boat rock. She gazed all unmoved and then she looked down on the dock to see if any one were left behind. A gentle jar, and in a moment they lay quiet at the wharf.

The mails and steerage are always late. The advertised sailing hour had been announced for two months, and yet half a hundred people were collected on the pier. Returning emigrants, well-to-do farmers and mechanics, broken-down exiles, glad to escape from the hurrying, anxious America, young men taking their wives out to see the old country, mothers returning to the old folks at home, widows and children seeking the security and peace of almost forgotten England.

The captain's wife watched them from the wheel-house window—a motley company, burdened with valueless treasures and the tin ware of their steerage table. They crowded on board the Jane, and sat down on the wet deck, in all the rain and drizzle. One young woman in faded black led a crying child by one arm, and tried to support a baby with the other.

"Poor woman! She looks all dragged out. I've a mind to take her in our state-room, John."

"Yes, I would. She'll have a tough time of it going down."

With real sympathy she opened the wheel-house door and stepped out on the roof of the house.

"Let the woman with the baby have my room, Jack."

"Yes, marm."

The sailor offered a tarry hand to the woman as she stepped upon the plank, and glancing up to the mistress, said cheerily:

"Aye, aye, marm, I'll mind her."

She seemed timid and held back.

"Never ye fear, mum, come right along. Tip top quarters fer yer here."

She still hesitated.

"Wait, I'll come down for the baby."

The woman looked up at the figure on the house-top with gratified surprise.

"Now give me the little one, Jack; take the other child. This way, please."

A gray-haired old Englishman offered his arm with a dignity and grace in curious contrast with his faded clothes.

"It's to old England you are bound, marm?"

The woman nodded her head and sudden tears filled her eyes.

"This is my state-room," said the wife. "You and the little ones are welcome to it till we reach the steamer."

The woman entered and sat down on the sofa, and stretched her arms for the baby.

"No. It's asleep now. I'll put it in the berth. Shut the door, Jack."

Such a cozy home. A square room with doors on two sides, and two windows looking out on the deck. There were two neat berths on one side, a table, mirror and sofa on the fourth, and in the centre a steam radiator with a marble top. Two comfortable chairs, a sewing-machine, work-table and a faded carpet. On the walls a few prints, a sailor's cap, and a small case of books. Lace curtains before the berths, and beneath a set of drawers.

The stranger took the other child in her lap and gazed round the room in evident surprise.

"This is my home," said the Captain's wife.

"It is very pretty. And you live here?"

"Yes, we live on the Jane. It is my husband's boat. Are you going to England?"

"Yes, that is my home. I lived in Kansas before my husband died."

"And have you just come from there?"

"Yes. We were fifty-six hours on the road."

"It was a long ride. I have never been West. New York, or rather North River is my home. I've never been away from this coast. Oh! wouldn't you like some tea? The kettle's on, now?"

The woman gave a look of unmistakable pleasure.

"Yes, thank you. We've had nothing to eat since—Ah! what is that?"

"Oh, that's nothing. I'm only the engine in the next room. We are starting."

The jar and tremor of the boat seemed to frighten the mother.

"Never fear, it always trembles."

Just here the door opened and a colored girl put her head into the room.

"Did you ring, ma'am?"

"Yes, Dinah. Bring some hot tea and a bit of lunch."

It was a feast for the hungry boy, and the mother seemed too grateful for expression. Even the little one waked to have his feast, and thus they sat as the lively Jane sped through the storm and the sea. Ship's masts and trailing clouds of smoke swept past the window. The rain rattled in trickling torrents on the roof, and the teaspoons rattled in silvery treble on the table in the jar of the machinery. The baby slept again; lulled by the lullaby of the throbbing engine beating its impulse in steady rhythmic measures.

A shadow swept past the window, and the wife rose and looked out.

"The steamer is anchored just inside the Narrows. I must go and see if John wants anything. Make yourself comfortable till they come for you."

The tug had come up along side the steamship, and was preparing to put a line to her. The storm seemed to rage in wilder fury here. Huge waves rolled in from the sea, and the Jane seemed a mere cockle shell as she pitched and reeled over them. The steamship lay quiet on the water, her vaster bulk making her indifferent to these comparatively moderate seas. A ladder with a plank lashed to it was run out from the steamer's deck and it fell on the top of the house. Another ladder was put up from the deck, and, one at a time, the steerage passengers were handed up. As the Jane rose on the crest of a wave the ladder was for an instant level, and then, with a quick run, the men and women were hurried on board. Arms were stretched to assist them over the perilous way, and Jack and the captain steadied the ladder. Not a word was said. It was useless. The screaming of the wind in the iron rigging, the roar of the steam blowing from the safety-valve, the clank of the anchor engine, and the smash and dash of the waves mingled in stormy uproar. The boatswain's whistle piped shrill over all, and the monster began to move. The waves caught between the two steamers leaped in white clouds of spray over the wheel-house. The condenser began to throw a huge steam of hot water over the Jane's deck. There were hoarse commands, shrill pipings, and frantic gestures. The last mail back went flying through the air, and the last wretched passenger, wet and frightened, was put aboard. The wife with steady nerves held the wheel. She started her engine and flung the wheel round with vigorous stroke. The boat churned up the sea, and with a staggering plunge struck off from the steamship. A sudden calm fell on the boat, and there was only the wash of the sea and the throb of the engine.

The captain entered the wheel-house beaming with delight.

"Capital, Jane. You handle her beautifully."

She smiled as she gave up the wheel, and with a wifely kiss, said:

"Of course, dear. It's our boat, and my husband was my teacher. Say, John, did you see the widow with the baby? It was such a lovely baby. It made my heart ache to think of them with all those steerage. I gave her a lunch and she seemed very grateful. Think of it! They came all the way from Leavenworth, Kansas, alone."

"See how the Englishman takes the sea. It's magnificent!"

The wife rose and letting down a window on the leeward side looked out on the mighty steamship just passing the forts at the Narrows. It felt the sea and rose upon the waves with a slow ponderous motion, full of grace and majesty.

"Splendid ship—but somehow I don't quite like her model. It's too long and narrow—like a sharpened log. Say, John, will you have dinner now? Jack can steer awhile."

"Yes; I'll be down presently."

The avalanche of democracy precipitated upon Washington by the near approach of the beginning of the first session of the Forty-Fourth Congress proves to be a perfect bonanza for the dealers in Bourbon and similar liquids.

The wife opened the door and stepped out on the deck over the house. For a moment she gazed after the retreating steamship, and then went slowly down the steps to her stateroom. In an instant after, she came flying up again in frantic haste. With tear-filled eyes and quivering voice she opened the wheel-house door and cried:

"Oh, John! The baby! They have left the baby!"

"Good heavens! What do you mean?"

"They have left the child in our room. It's asleep in my bed. The woman—must—have left it in the confusion, and—"

The rest of the sentence was lost in the roar of the steam whistle. The captain sprang to the speaking tube and shouted to the engineer:

"Give it to her wide!"

The wheel went round with a rush, and the boat keeled over in the water.

"Call Jack, Jane. Tell him to get out the flag and run her up, 'Union down.'"

The stokers in their cave shoveled their glowing caverns full. The feed-pumps clattered in angry fury. The rusty boilers seemed to strain and hiss with pent-up frenzy. The engine roared. The quivering hand of the steam-gauge rose among the high figures. On deck the men ran hither and thither in hot haste. The wife stood with fluttering dress and hair streaming in the wind, clinging to the rail of the vessel.

"Haul in the line."

"Aye, aye, sir," came up in jolly chorus.

The boat quivered and shook with the strain of her engine. The water boiled under her stern, and she plunged forward straight to the sea. The forts swept past in the mist. The waves struck her bows and showers of spray flew over the woman clinging to the rail, and poured in streams from her water-proof cloak. She crept slowly down, and with a hand on the rail at every step, made her way along the flooded deck. The water hissed and seethed in bubbles as it swept past, and the rain blew cold in her face. She opened a door and stepped into the engine room. For a moment she stood gazing at the cylinders, and at the shining pistons sweeping up and down in rhythmic energy.

"Is this the best she can do?" she asked anxiously.

The gray old engineer opened his eyes wide.

"She never did the like o' that before! What's the matter, mum? Has the steamer had trouble?"

"No. It's only a baby—left behind."

It lay with one rosy hand doubled up under its head, asleep. The wife sat down by the berth and lifted its clinging curls with tender care. Then she stooped and kissed it.

"Poor baby!—It shall see its mother when it wakes—if we catch them."

The engine throbbed in ceaseless energy. The boat reeled and plunged over the sea and the lamps swayed in the motion.

"We must be out in the bay. I wonder where the steamer is."

She rose and, opening the upper half of the door, gazed long and anxiously at the steamship so far ahead.

"Ah! They see us. They are blowing off steam."

A faint cloud of white hung over the steamship, and the wife noticed as they rose on a wave that the white waters at the stern had disappeared.

"Where is the child?" said the captain, as he appeared at the door.

"Come in and see."

They both entered their chamber and stood watching the pretty one asleep.

"It was fortunate you found it. What could we have done with it?"

"It isn't that, John. I was thinking of the poor mother."

Hearing the voice the babe awoke and gazed with blue-eyed wonder at the strangers. Then it began to cry softly and the woman took it to her breast and comforted it with motherly tenderness.

"Have it all already, Jane, when we come alongside. Those Englishmen will swear like mad when they find what has kept them."

"Hush, my baby! Mother will come to her soon."

The engine made strange lullaby and the child slept.

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1875.

News and Notes.

Vice President Wilson was buried at Natick, Mass., on Wednesday.

On the morning of Nov. 30, at two o'clock a dwelling house was burned, at a little place called Pony Hollow, about sixteen miles northeast of Elmira, N. Y. The man occupying it, named Albert Wood, was obliged to jump from the second-story window, and called to his wife to throw the children out to him. Before she could do so she and three children, two of her own, under six years of age, and a niece named Axtell, about nine years of age, were burned to death.

A freight train on the Kentucky Central Railroad was thrown down an embankment, near Paris, Ky., and the engineer, Wm. Thomas, was instantly killed. The fireman and brakeman were severely injured. The engine and ten cars were wrecked.

The republican State convention will be held at Concord Jan. 5th, 1876.

Lake Huron is covered with ice as far as the eye can see.

Orders have been received at the Brooklyn Navy Yard to place ten more monitors in commission, and the various naval rendezvous throughout the country have been instructed to enlist available men of all grades.

Congress meets next Monday.

O. C. Moore, Esq., of that excellently edited daily, the Nashua Telegraph, and wife were recently visited by friends, on the occasion of the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage, and among the presents received a beautiful swinging ice pitcher and a gold-lined silver service. Gen. and Mrs. Aaron F. Stevens presented them a magnificent silver tureen and ladle.

Rev. J. D. Fulton having failed to resign his pastorate in Brooklyn when requested, the Society has dismissed him.

The United States consul at Liverpool has reported to the State department the rescue of James C. Bassett and Albert Boyd, two seamen of the fishing schooner Eppstar of Gloucester, Mass., who were separated from their vessel while setting their trawls during a dense fog on the banks of Newfoundland, and who were reported lost. They were rescued by the master of the Cascatelle and taken to Liverpool.

Two slight shocks of earthquakes were felt at Keene, on Wednesday morning, the 1st, at four and six o'clock.

Judge Advocate-General Joseph Holt of the army has been retired, upon his own application, and Assistant Judge Advocate-General William McKee Dunn has been appointed Judge Advocate-General to fill the vacancy, the appointment to date from Dec. 1, 1875.

The telegraph announces the death of Hon. Benjamin P. Avery, U. S. Minister to China.

The following is a correct list of the contested seats in the House of Representatives: Alabama, Bromberg vs Haralson; Florida, Finlay vs Walls; Illinois, Lemoyne vs Farwell; Louisiana, Spencer vs Morey, and Breux vs Darrall; Massachusetts, Abbott vs Frost; Minnesota, Cox vs Strait; New York, Lowery vs Norton, Thirty-third District; South Carolina, Lee vs Rainey, and Batts vs Mackey; Virginia, Platt vs Goode; Idaho Territory, Fern vs Bennett; Utah Territory, Baskin vs Carmon.

Information from the Rio Grande shows that the troubles along that river growing out of cattle raids by the Mexicans are as bad as ever. The Mexican raiders have a contract to deliver 18,000 head of cattle at Monterey, and expect to steal them from Texas.

Joseph Burroughs, of Greenfield, Mass., was awakened by loud and persistent knocking at his door and a man's voice entreating, "For God's sake let me in." After some delay Mr. Burroughs took him in, and discovered that he was indeed in a deplorable condition. Both feet were frozen stiff, making amputation probable, and he was otherwise severely chilled. Everything possible was done to alleviate his sufferings, which were intense as soon as he became warm, and after being warmly dressed he was taken to the station-house. He says he left his room at the Union House while asleep, and wandered about until awakened by the extreme cold.

A twenty years old youth named Matthews, living at Hinesburg, Vt., quarrelled with his mother and immediately went into the woodshed and shot himself through the heart with a rifle, dying almost instantly. He was subject to fits.

Secretary Robeson has ordered a number of recruits to the Rio Grande to serve in the launches in use there by the navy. The army and navy are co-operating under Gen. Ogel against the cattle thieves. Minister Foster is on his way to consult with the President as to steps to be taken to secure a treaty provision under which United States troops will be allowed to cross the border in pursuit of raiders. There is reason to believe that such a concession can be obtained from the Mexican Government.

—Over ten years ago, a negro called upon a claim agent at Detroit, and filed a claim against the Government for bounty and back pay for services in the navy during the rebellion. The papers in the case were duly made out and sent to Washington, and a favorable answer was received, but the man vanished mysteriously and was not heard of till last Saturday, when he walked into the office of the claim agent and surprised him by inquiring, "Is you got dat money yet?" He explained matters by stating that shortly after leaving Detroit, ten years ago, he was arrested in Toronto for highway robbery, and had been confined in Kingston penitentiary ever since.

My Favorite Flute For Sale!

THIS Flute was made in Paris, to the order of a great Flutist, at the cost of $100. The great player subsequently met with pecuniary embarrassment and sold it as a sacrifice to Capt. Moses Hicker of the ship Colorado, then at Havre. I bought it of Capt. R. for $60. The Flute has eight pure and solid silver keys, and one more, on a lower extra joint. It is lined and bound with genuine silver; and is of very sweet tone. Circumstances in a pecuniary view induce me to offer it for sale at only $50.

"Heal Thyself."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book of about 900 pages, illustrated with over 250 engravings and colored plates, and sold at the exceedingly low price of $1.50, tells you how to cure Catarrh, "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Sick, Bilious, and other Headaches, Scrofula, Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases; all diseases peculiar to women, and most other chronic as well as acute disorders. It contains important information for the young and old, male and female, single and married, nowhere else to be found. Men and women, married and single, are tempted to ask their family physician thousands of questions on delicate topics, but are deterred from doing so by their modesty. This work answers just such questions so fully and plainly as to leave no one in doubt. It is sold by Agents, or sent by mail (post-paid) on receipt of price. Address the author, R. V. Pierce, M. D., World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y.

From the Lafayette Daily Courier.

A VALUABLE WORK.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, distinguished in surgery, and the general practice in the profession he honors, has made a valuable contribution to the medical literature of the day, in a comprehensive work entitled "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." While scientific throughout, it is singularly free from technical and stilted terms. It comes right down to the common sense of every-day life. Dr. Pierce is a noble specimen of American manhood. He has sprung from the people; and, with many sympathies in common with the masses, has sought to render them a substantial service in this the great work of his life.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

It Pays! It Pays!
WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer, or Professional man, to keep infeed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

IT PAYS the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this to an extent beyond that of any other publication, in fact it is the only weekly paper published in the United States devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and new discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers. Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete repertory of New Inventions and Discoveries; containing a weekly record not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics, and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past Thirty Years. In the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the World.

The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. And for the shop and house will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of great value to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1876.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and several hundred engravings. Forms a splendid volume for preservation for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circular giving Club rates sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN of all inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to parties attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents. A bound volume containing the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 142 Engravings of mechanical movements. Price 25 cents.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained new orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL P. LAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I serve to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials you said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. Enclosed please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often rendering me unable to stoop to pick up any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Consumption, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and one in Reading, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

Jottings.

A battalion of marines under command of Capt. Frank D. Webster of this city served as the immediate body guard to the remains of Vice President Wilson on the passage of the funeral procession through Philadelphia.

David L. Magoon, the supposed wife murderer, is not likely to live long enough for a second trial. He fails rapidly and seems disheartened and dejected.

Boston capitalists have been inspecting Gerrish's Island, with a view of erecting a large hotel there and converting the spot in to a summer resort, provided a satisfactory purchase can be made of the entire island.

There is good skating on the North Mill pond.

A charming wedding took place this morning, Nov. 15th, in St. Paul's Church, the parties concerned being Rev. Frank Somerville Harraden, Rector of Bede Hall, a school for boys, in the diocese of Albany, N. Y., and Lizzie Helen Carr, daughter of Benjamin Carr, Esq. The ushers were Col Frank H. Pierce, Dr. Stillings, Frank E. Brown and A. H. Robinson. The bride was beautifully dressed in white. Prof. Morey played the organ in his usual brilliant manner. The ushers did their part well. Dr. Evans performed the marriage ceremony; the Bishop pronounced the benediction, and the bells rang out merriest chimes. After the ceremony at the church, the invited guests repaired to the house of the bride's parents, where they had ample opportunity to examine the beautiful presents showered upon the bride and groom, and to partake of a bountiful collation.—Concord Monitor.

The republican Senatorial convention for this district and the Rockingham county convention will be held at Exeter, Jan. 13th. The Councillor convention for this district will meet in this city Jan. 11th.

Lieut. David Urch and Sergeant John S Tilton visited Manchester on Tuesday as a committee from the Artillery Company to confer with Centennial Commissioner George W. Riddle in regard to transportation to Philadelphia, arrangements for remaining there, and to ascertain what action the Amoskeag Veterans and other orgaizations will take. The Portsmouth Artillery Company was established June 6, 1775.

U. S. S. Speedwell goes to Boston today for a draft of men for U. S. S. Marion.

Schooner Speaker, Boston for York, went ashore on Thatcher's Island Nov. 29. She will be a total loss. Capt. Matthews and others of York own her, and there is no insurance.

The officers ordered to U. S. S. Marion reported for duty on Wednesday.

The clarionet used by Mr. John F. Shillaber in the rendering of Bergsen's beautiful concert Aria Tuesday evening is an elegant and costly instrument, made of ivory. As there is only six of the kind in this country or Europe, its owner is justly proud of the sweet-toned instrument, which he handles so skillfully.

Ashbury Bridges, a sailor belonging to the schooner Isola, was knocked overboard Tuesday morning, Nov. 30 by the foreboom, off Boon Island. He belonged to Castine, Me., was 32 years of age, and leaves a wife and five children.

Schooner Jesse Williamson, Jr. Seward, appears to lie easy, and it is expected that she will be gotten off. Cargo insured. Vessel is under bonds, having collided with a canal boat in New York harbor recently, causing the latter to burn up by the ignition of matches in the cabin.

Luther Benson, Esq., the famous temperance lecturer, will speak at the Temple next Sunday evening.

"Con Amore" inquires the application of the term "snakes." Grandpa's observation places them in very close alliance with a person who has no place but the ground to lie his head. Two reasons for not taking his closing advice: I avoid too much taking off of the hat in this climate on account of the danger from cold; also have not much time for any other mere "outside" tokens of regard, but at the same time will match my deference for Him who had received a name above every name against any amount of mere profession.
